During the year the teachers of this institution, met from time to time during the session, after having done their prescribed reading, to discuss teaching problems. The second course provided by the University of Chicago has just been completed, and all the papers were marked Grade A. Hitherto teacher training work has been confined to First Year students, but there is now being planned an extension course of three or four weeks for Second Year students seeking to qualify for a First Class teacher's license. This course is to begin at the end of the College term.

This year a voluntary course of two and a half weeks, beginning Monday next is to be provided by the Board of Education for students who have completed their First Year and who intend coming back next year. These students by taking this course now will be able to clear off in part, qualifications demanded for next year's First Class license.

Dr. Robertson then commented on the Honour Lists, (showing that the students were well maintaining the good standing of the institution) and on the magnificent prize list. He specially referred to the Frank R. Hartz Prizes, the J. Leslie Shaw scholarship, and a new prize this year donated by Mr. George D. DeBlois. All the prizes have contributed greatly to the increased energy and attention displayed by the students.

Dr. Robertson also spoke of the remarkable record of the Docketry brothers, Malcolm, winner of the Anderson gold medal had a keen competitor in Hazen Wigmore, who has not yet attained his sixteenth year, and whose marks were within a fraction of one per cent. of those of the winner.

THE VALEDICTORY.
 Your Honour, Honourable the Minister of Agriculture, Mr. Superintendent of Education, Members of the Faculty, Fellow Students, Ladies and Gentlemen,—
 The close of another college year has come upon us. Another class of graduates, having completed their course, have assembled here for the last time to receive the reward of their diligent labour, and to bid adieu to Alma Mater before they go forth to the stern realities of life. To me has been given the privilege of saying a few parting words.

Sadness fills our hearts at the thought of the separation before us. Our time spent here in College has been such as we can look back upon with pleasure. As hands are extended and farewells are said we linger for a moment to think of the past and to look forward into the future. When we began our course at Prince of Wales College we looked forward to our graduating day with pleasant dreams and happy plans. But now our sojourn here has come to an end. We know that the fulfillment of our dreams and the realization of our ambitions required diligent and faithful work, and so we have gained a small insight into the deeper and better things of life.

Prominent among the many treasures which the college student takes away with him is one which in after life he will cherish and guard as one of his most valuable possessions, the one of days spent, of deeds done, of companions met, in the "golden years" of college life. The influence which such memories exert on our future life was aptly expressed by the poet, Moore, in these words:—
 When time who steals our years away,
 Shall steal our pleasures too,
 The memories of the past will stay,
 And half our joy renew.

The intellectual standard of our College has been ably upheld during the past year. As for our debating society, we feel that it has been quite as successful as in former years. The advantage of this training for public speaking is inestimable; the student who takes part in debate develops a certain responsibility which makes him a worthier member of this institution, and in later years a more valuable citizen of the world.

Our paper of the College Times, does much in drawing out the journalistic abilities of the students, and has a far greater influence on College life than might be supposed.

Our social life has been well attended to by the various organizations! In the course of the year, several enjoyable and successful entertainments were held. In this respect we are indeed grateful to the management of the Y.M.C.A., whose efforts were untiring in making the social life of the students enjoyable. We shall remember with pleasure the kindly interest which the pastors and members of the various city churches showed to us.

Our athletics during the year were conducted in an efficient manner. The various sports were indulged in with zest and enthusiasm,

Long, long be our hearts with such memories filled!
 Like the vase in which roses have once been distilled—
 You may break, you may shatter the vase, if you will,
 But the scent of the rose will hang round it still.

Your Honour, Honourable the Minister of Agriculture, Mr. Superintendent of Education, Ladies and Gentlemen, farewell.
 Alma Mater, adieu!

Hon. W. M. Lea, after expressing his pleasure at being present complimented His Honor on the generous prizes he had presented. "We are now at an age," he said, "when special training is required. A lack of all trades no longer has a place in this world. He spoke of the way in which heads of great industries stressed the necessity for proper preparation for after life. Though the educational system of Prince Edward Island was often criticized, he believed it one of the best in the world inasmuch as the government treated the poor school districts as well as the rich, so that no matter what the district, the teachers would receive nearly the same salary.

Under those systems in which the municipality raises the money to pay for the maintenance of the school, this was the case. "He went on to remind the young men particularly that in after life those mature men—their employes—would accept them at their face value. Hence they should guard against adopting silly mannerisms and bad habits which might militate against their employment.

Mr. Lea warned the students against the danger of allowing the distractions and the pleasures of the town to tempt them from their studies. He thought for this reason that those students had a better chance to do good work who had had their preliminary training in the country, rather than in the city.

He spoke of the privileges enjoyed by children of this generation as contrasted with former generations. Opportunities were greater, but it was more than ever necessary, in this age of specialization, to work hard.

Prof. H. H. Shaw, Chief Superintendent of Education, then addressed the audience. "We hear a number of complaints about the failures of students who attend Prince of Wales College, and I am glad the principal, in his address, pointed out the cause of these failures. In order to achieve success, you must "scorn delights and live laborious days." You can't have distracting pleasures, and still have the success.

Another thing the principal stressed, is the "great development of modern science.

The importance of that subject in this institution was being realized. But there is great need of apparatus and equipment—not only in this institution, but also in the preparatory schools.

Prince of Wales has been trying to do in one term, what in every other province is done in two. With them, the academic training is completed, before the teacher training is begun. Dr. Robertson deplored the youth of those who go out from these walls to be teachers. But often, youthful enthusiasm makes up for lack of experience, and insures success. But this is not to be taken as a substitute for experience.

Mr. Shaw went on to thank His Honor for the interest he had taken in education, as evidenced by the prizes he had donated, particularly the cup awarded annually to the school with the most beautiful grounds.

Malcolm Docketry, winner of the Anderson Gold Medal, awarded to the student standing highest in the Third Year, and Stuart Docketry, who leads his class in the Second Year; art brothers, sons of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Docketry, of Cardigan. Malcolm matriculated into the College in 1925 at the head of the list. He led his class in the First, Second and Third Years. Stuart matriculated in 1926, at the head of the list, and also led his class in the First and Second Years. This brilliant record by two brothers, so far has not been equaled in the history of Prince of Wales College.
