M-G-M STAR MARKS TRIUMPHANT RETURN IN STIRRING DRAMA

Bright as a shining new penny, chockfull of story value and human interest is "Marriage Is A Private Affair," the new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picture which plays to-day at the Prince Edward Theatre to mark Lana Turner's return to the screen after a long absence.

The story, based on the best-seller by Judith Kelly, fits Lana like a glove. In the film, Lana plays irresponsible Theo West, whose road to love and happiness is torturous indeed. She married Lt. Tom West (John Hodiak) after a romance which begins at an Officers' Canteen. Her frivolous ways make it doubtful whether the marriage will last, but she settles down after a blessed event.

She tries to model her life after that of two of her closest friends, but her faith in marriage crumbles when she learns that the girl is carrying on with another man. Theo encourages the attentions of another officer, Capt. Miles Lanceing (James Craig) and becomes confused as to just where her heart belongs. How the problem is solved is something you'll be wanting to see for yourself at the Prince Edward Theatre.

Lana turns in a memorable performance which surpasses even the dramatic ability she has shown in previous roles. She has thoroughly mastered the nuances of her role and makes Theo someone you are certain you know in real life.

Both Hodiak and Craig are outstanding in their support of the star. Certainly both are headed for stardom. For that matter, the entire supporting cast is just what M-G-M ordered. There are Frances Gifford, Hugh Marlowe, Natalie Schafer, Keenan Wynn and Herbert Rudley among others, all fine actors and all hand-picked for their jobs.

THE KIRK PULPIT

Preaching on the text, "For whosoever shall be ashamed of Me and of My Words, of him shall the Son of Man be ashamed, when He shall come in His own glory, and in His Father's, and of the holy angels" (St. Luke 9, 26), the minister, Rev. T. M. Bussell Somers, said: Again, the cause of this shame may be social pressure.

We may be ashamed of Christ as Simon Peter was. And the amazing thing is that in such a true and loving heart there should have been any room for shame at all. But Peter sat by the fire in the courtyard, and they taunted him with his discipleship; and then the girl who kept the wicket recognised him, and every one present was antagonistic; and Peter denied his Lord—Peter was ashamed of Him—and the shame had its source in this society. Had it not been for Peter's company that night, we should never have had the tale of Peter's fall. Alone, in the dark streets, with what a burning loyalty he would have lifted up his heart to his great leader! But Peter was impressionable, easily influenced, quick to receive the impact of environment, and his society made him ashamed of Christ.

Are there none today who are like Simon Peter. Are there none who deny Christ because of social pressure? Are there none who are silent and afraid to speak because of the men and women who surround them? In careless homes, in crowded stores or offices, in social gatherings or in the circle of friends, is not the old tragedy reenacted sometimes, and does not their company make men ashamed of Christ?

TRINITY UNITED CHURCH

At the morning service in Trinity Church, Nov. 19, the minister's text was: "Choose this day whom ye will serve", from the book of Joshua, 24th chapter, and part of the 15th verse. The minister emphasized how from the beginning human beings have chosen the God whom they serve, and in the process seek to make the God whom they want to serve after their own image and in accordance with their own ambitions and purposes. There were two things in Joshua's challenge. (1) There is the God of Jesus. (2) The people have the privilege of choice. That privilege has often resulted in man choosing other gods than the God of Jesus Christ, and in his wrong choice he has always brought upon himself disaster. The minister pleaded for boys and girls, and men and women to choose this day whom they will serve.

The Army Cadets under the leadership of Lieut. Walter Dickson and the Y's Men's Club both attended, and occupied special pews in the centre of the Church.

At the evening service the minister spoke about Christian women, and referred to the place which women have always occupied in the Christian Church, and that recognition of the value of women is always based upon Christ's teaching concerning their value in the sight of God. The minister challenged the women of the Church to become more active in the organizations which within the church itself have great possibilities for good in many ways.

The Sunday School at ten o'clock was an Open Session, and slides were shown depicting the work of the Christian Church in Honan, China, work which is still being carried on despite the occupation of the territory by the Japanese armies.

The music for the day was under the direction of A. Roy Kendall, L.R.A.M., A.C.C.O. The anthem, "Great is the Lord" was sung at the morning service. At the evening service "Prayer Perfect" was sung by Mrs. A. Johnson while the anthem "Light of the Lonely Pilgrim's Heart" was sung by the choir.

Plans Completed For New British House Of Commons

BY ALAN RANDAL
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

LONDON, Nov. 17 — (CP) — Plans are complete now for rebuilding the House of Commons, damaged by bombs on May 10, 1941. The cost, if the House finally approves the present rebuilding scheme, will be about $5,000,000 over a period of six or seven years.

In the new House, Princess Elizabeth is to have her own special gallery, facing the speaker. This is a departure from precedent, due to the fact that the heir to the Throne is a woman. In the old days the first seat in the peer's gallery immediately over the clock was reserved for the Prince of Wales on important occasions.

However, in the new chamber the princess will be able to enter her gallery by private elevator and by a special entrance. No ceremony will be attached to her visits.

The proposed new chamber was designed by Sir Giles Scott. It will occupy the site of the old one, will be the same size and will have an up-to-date system of lighting and ventilation and will provide more accommodation for the public and the press.

For comfort, the Commons could perhaps do with a larger chamber, but after considering the matter, a select committee reported, "your committee were unanimous in their opinion that the sense of intimacy and almost conversational form of debate encouraged by the dimensions of the old chamber should be maintained."

So the chamber will remain 68 feet by 45 feet six inches and will seat only 370 of the 615 members of Parliament. The press seats are to be increased from 93 to 161 and for the first time M.P.'s are to have rooms in which they can interview constituents and a secretarial room in which to dictate letters or rehearse speeches.

The heating plans aim to reproduce in the chamber, winter and summer, "all the atmospheric conditions of a warm spring day out of doors."

As to the ventilation, it will be designed to produce "conditions conducive to alertness," or, as the committee in another section of its report puts it, "tend to produce cool heads and warm feet and not vice versa."

And in future the ladies' gallery, with its traditional grille behind which women peered, themselves unseen, at the members, will be abolished. Women will sit on a par, with men, in the public galleries.

Demobilization Plan for R.C.A.F.

OTTAWA, Nov. 18 — The following details of the R. C. A. F. demobilization plan have been announced:

The aims and objects of the plan Maj. Power said, were to 'provide the personnel to secure and maintain air superiority and air supremacy in every theatre of war. This purpose has been accomplished."

1. Britain no longer requires air crew from the plan and, in fact, has cancelled sailings of trained personnel waiting at embarkation depots. It has been reported that the last air crew personnel went overseas four weeks ago.

2 Australia and New Zealand — partners in the plan—have stopped sending trainees to Canada. Their men in the training scheme will eventually go to Pacific operations.

To Be Released

3 All recent and future aircrew graduates—estimated to number 10,000 — who have not received operational training will be given a month's notice, released from active service and transferred to a civilian reserve.

4 The reserve will be liable for recall during hostilities for refresher training and will be entitled to mustering-out benefits on release.

5. The graduating civilian reserve will be accorded non-commissioned or commissioned rank depending on their merit.

6 Trained plan instructors will supply the small flow of aircrew needed to keep operational training units active as the plan's schools close up behind them.

7. Aircrew instructors, who because of age—over 35 for Squadron Leaders and over 32 for Flight Lieutenants and under—and a medical category that cannot be employed overseas, will be released.

Have Their Choice

8 Aircrew completing an operational tour have a choice of demobilizing or taking over administrative work to replace non-flying personnel. If they don't succeed as administrators and can't be employed on flying duties, they will be released. However, they are not precluded from joining a post-war R. C. A. F.

9. Non-flying officers may apply for demobilization when repatriates are available to take their places.

10. Ground crew personnel will be released on a priority basis with top rating going to the man repatriated from overseas service down to the lowest rating for a man who has under two years of service. This demobilization will be carried out on a monthly quota basis.

11. Coupled with ground crew priority demobilization is a repatriation plan for personnel with at least three years overseas service.

12 Married women's Division personnel will be released when replacements are found and, except in restricted trades, and W. D. personnel may retire to civilian life on application.

13. Civilian training plan employees will be released as establishments close.

Means of Disposal

14. Closed establishments will be used for storage in some cases and in other cases will be turned over to the government war assets corporation for disposal.

15. Retained establishments will be kept with skeleton training staffs and with airdromes under care and maintenance ready to operate at full strength on short notice.

16 A number of squadrons will be maintained to patrol Canadian coasts.

Maj. Power's announcement brought up to date statistics of the big plan that caused President Roosevelt to dub Canada "the Airdrome of Democracy."

When the plan ends March 1st, it will have graduated 224,296 trained personnel. Canada's share of this trainee total is made up of 70,619 air crew and 93,178 ground crew. The total strength of the R. C. A. F.—made up of air crew, ground crew, administration and other personnel—reached a peak of 215,173 at an unspecified date and is at present down to 206,300 compared to its war outbreak strength of only 3,048. Present overseas strength is estimated at 70,000.

When the training plan was in full production it was operated by a staff of 101,418, made up of 69,753 Canadians and 31,6656 from other Empire countries.

Disband Air Defence Corps

OTTAWA, Nov. 17 — (CP) — Disbandment of the Air Defence Corps in Canada and Newfoundland, a civilian organization of 23,000 observers, was announced tonight by air force headquarters.

The announcement said the possibility of enemy air attack on Canada has been minimized to an extent which safely permits the disbandment of the corps, which has functioned under R. C. A. F. supervision since 1940 as an aid in the air defence of the Dominion.

The corps provided reports of all aircraft movements in Eastern Canada, Newfoundland, Labrador, British Columbia and the Northwest Territories. The observers also did "valuable work" in reporting submarines and mines in Canadian waters and the location of Canadian aircraft in distress.

Air Minister Power, announcing the disbandment, said:

"By your loyal service, since 1940, an efficient reporting system was organized which did a remarkably fine job and which was ready at all times to guard against a surprise attack by the enemy. Fortunately such an occasion never arose, but in many other ways your services have proven invaluable."

The announcement said members of the Corps are being asked to discontinue reporting aircraft movements over their places of residence but have been urged to continue reporting incidents of aircraft in distress. Arrangements have been made for such reports to be routed quickly to the nearest R. C. A. F. station or other air force unit designated to act in such an emergency.

Churchill Makes Apology For High Commissioner

LONDON, Nov. 18 - CP Reuter)- Prime Minister Churchill told the House of Commons that Malcolm MacDonald, United Kingdom High Commissioner to Canada had Expressed "unqualified regret at any misunderstanding" his remarks about future British government leaders and parties in a recent speech in Canada may have caused.

A Labor member asked if Mr. Churchill's attention had been drawn to his speech "airing his opinion about future leaders in government and parties in this country and discussing their qualities" and asked whether the Prime Minister would inform High Commissioners that such speeches were not consistant with duties and the status of their appointment.

In his recent speech, Mr. MacDonald, who predicted that Foreign Secretary Eden "most likely" would be the next British Prime Minister and that Home Secretary Herbert Morrison or Labor Minister Bevin would be Prime Minister if he Labor Party won the next elections.

Sees Aachen People Divided After Defeat

By DON WHITEHEAD

AACHEN, Germany, Nov. 17 — (AP) — Defeat has driven apart the people who come drifting back to the shambles of this city, instead of uniting them in a common bond of mutual understanding.

A primitive urge for survival has made the civilians grasping and suspicious and there's no apparent community feeling left among the people. There seems to be no tie binding them now that they look to defeat for Germany.

Many of these people, who face a winter with little food and fuel, denounce others as Nazis and inform on their neighbors.

Only about five per cent of the 11,000 civilians now in Aachen will admit to Nazi party membership. No high Nazi officials were found among those who chose to stay here rather than follow German orders to evacuate before the American forces arrived. The highest Nazi who remained was sub-secretary in a local branch of the party. His was the job of notifying Nazis of war casualties in their families.

That some German soldiers still are hiding in Aachen's ruins and old tunnels is obvious since sentries have shot at German-uniformed figures seen slinking about the city at night.

The northeastern section of Aachen still is considered part of the nearby combat zone. As a result, much of that area has not been thoroughly searched.

The 200 to 300 civilians who have been returning to Aachen daily are checked by interrogation teams before they receive passes for re-entry.

As I watched one such procession, some appeared prosperous and were well dressed. One proved to be a former major in the German air force.

Demands Why Senate Not Called

MONTREAL, Nov. 18 —(CP)— Senator C.C. Ballantyne ,Progessive Conservative leader in the Senate said tonight he could not understand why Prime Minister Mackenzie King did not summon the Senate to meet when he called on members of the House of Commons to gather in Ottawa Nov. 22.

Because of the exigencies of war, a rule had been adopted at the end of each session foregoing prorogation in the usual manner, simply adjourning at the call of the speaker of each House, Senator Ballantyne said. There was no denial that a great crisis existed due to the lack of reinforcements to the Canadian forces overseas and therefore both branches of Parliament should have been summoned to deal with the question instead of the Commons alone.

There were many men of experience in the Senate and their views could well clarify a situation which was "far from clear at the moment."
