SANE ADVICE ON VICTORY LOAN

TORONTO, Nov. 6.—Archbishop McNeil says:

"Men, money, munitions— these are strictly sinews of war. Not all of us can aid King and Country by going to the front or by working in munition factories; but all, both men and women, can and should aid by lending money to the government for war purposes. The Victory loan is being placed before the people for subscription in large or small sums, and it is our patriotic duty to see that the Victory loan is over-subscribed. Anyone who allows the desire for unnecessary luxuries to stand in the way of buying a government Victory loan bond is deficient in patriotism.

"The future of Canada is involved in these government loans. One of the serious drawbacks of Canada in the past has been the fact that it was entirely a debtor country. We derived no public revenues from investments in other countries, and a large percentage of the revenues raised by taxation went abroad in payments of interest. The war has given us the opportunity to reverse the process. We now lend money to England and spend it in Canada in the manufacture of munitions. This money will be refunded to Canada with interest. Of course, Canada must use a large part of the loans from the people to finance the Canadian expeditionary forces; but if we all became thrifty in our personal expenses and lend to the government what can thus be saved, Canada would not suffer seriously during the financial reaction and adjustments after the war."

ANNUAL MEETING

The Annual General Meeting of the Children's Aid Society and all citizens interested in the welfare of children will be held in the City Court-room on the evening of Monday, the 19th November, at 8 o'clock.

For The Stay-at-Home

The man who is staying at home having all he wants to eat and a comfortable place to sleep, thinks of the boys in the waterlogged trenches in Flanders fighting the world's greatest battle for civilization. The man at home feels that things are not equal, and that he ought to be doing something.

Victory Bonds give him his chance to take a hand in the fight.

His money gets into the fight. His money feeds and clothes the men in Flanders. It buys him ammunition and it insures the job of the man at home; for without this money the war industries will be paralyzed.

Socks are Greatly Needed at the Front

Miss Bella Bagnall, who has undertaken the charge of the mailing of socks to the boys overseas in connection with the St. James' church Guild, has received a nicely worded letter of thanks from Robert Anderson, city, who among other interesting things, says:

It was a great surprise to receive your letter and parcel the other day. You people of St. James' church are awfully good, as this is the second time this year I have been remembered . . . . I sent a pair to Clayton Shaw and gave a pair to Grove Carter, and kept two pairs myself. They are just the right thickness and weight and so well made. I do not know what I shall do to repay some of the kindness bestowed upon me since I came over to this country.

George E. Webster, another Charlottetown boy in writing, says:

"A good many days ago there came a parcel of five pairs of white socks from St. James' Guild. The day before yesterday your note arrived. It is really now about time that I wrote to thank St. James' Guild and particularly you.

"I did as you directed. I satisfied my own needs by keeping two pairs for myself. The remaining pairs went to those of the tent who wanted socks. They were glad to get them, and I feel sure that they will write to express their appreciation of your kindness.

For my share of the parcel accept my sincerest thanks. The light pair of socks were fine. If the present time were the springtime, and we were just commencing the period of fine weather that is rapidly becoming a thing of the past. I might be tempted to write a dissertation on the superiority of light-weight socks over heavy in summer-time. However, the approaching rainy season saves you the agony of reading such an effort. Heavy socks, with good long legs, is what a man on active service will want from now until—— Well, I hope you won't be knitting socks for men on active service next summer.

"You say that the Guild is only a small society. I want to wish it success. If it were to do nothing more than knit socks for soldiers it would be doing work that would earn for it undying gratitude. In a book written in 1915 an English officer says jokingly: 'I know that the really big things, the things that are really important, are socks and boots, and hot coffee and sleep, and bread—— and then socks and boots again.' It is very true. These stories are about men standing knee-deep for hours in a porridge of mud and water, are not fairy tales. You can't imagine how happy a man feels if, at the end of a cold, wet day, after he is thoroughly soaked, he can return to, at least, a pair of dry socks.

"Now I must call a halt, for fear of exasperating the censor."

Sincerely yours,
GEO. E. WEBSTER.

France's Bloodless Victory

By Hector Charlesworth.

French soldiers have won victories in this and many other wars; but one of the greatest victories in history was won by the French people without shedding a drop of blood. It was a democratic triumph which nonplussed Bismarck and absolutist Germany. It was the people's answer to the crushing disasters of the Franco-German war of 1870.

Though the military power of France had been destroyed, and Paris had fallen, Bismarck was not satisfied. To reduce France to the position of an inferior power was his aim. He exacted indemnities which he thought would permanently cripple her. But the French people fooled the man of blood and iron. They defeated his purposes with silver bullets. Even the humblest peasants came forward with their savings and loaned them to the Government. They believed in their country's destiny and every dollar was repaid to them.

Their patriotic prudence meant speedy recovery for France; and the baffled Bismarck was so furious that in 1875 he wanted to make war on her again. Germany never forgave France for not staying crushed.

France would have stayed crushed if her people had hesitated to loan money to the Government.

Canadians face no such terrible alternative as did the French in 1871; but the possibility is not yet averted. It is to destroy that possibility that Canada's "Victory Loan" is being floated. very investor will become a factor in the final victory and stockholders in the nation's resources. Canadians will show that foresighted patriotism lives in them as it did in the French forty-six years ago.

GERMAN ATTACKS REPULSED.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

PARIS, Nov. 7.— The Germans made an attack last night on the Verdun front at Chaume Wood. The War Office announces that the enemy was repulsed. German attacks near St. Quentin and northwest of Rheims also failed.

Could Have Laid Trieste in Ruins

ITALIAN HEADQUARTERS IN NORTHERN ITALY, Nov. 6.—One of the last visits to the front permitted the correspondent by the army authorities before the retirement of the third army began gave opportunity for an inspection of Monfalcone, on the edge of the Adriatic, where, from a naval observatory, the city of Trieste was seen at sunset lying only a few miles down the coast of the gulf.

The sight was a notable one at any time, but was doubly so at that eventful moment, just on the eve of the issuance of an order forbidding any further visits by civilians, owing to the terrific shellfire from the Austro-German guns, which had already begun. The naval observatory in itself was one of the strangest in the world, as it was set on the upper deck of an 18,000-ton transatlantic liner still unlaunched and left to rust on the stocks by the Austrians when they were driven from Monfalcone by the Italians.

In the yards there stood three monster ships on the stocks, covered with yellow rust. The largest of the three was the liner through the interior of which one climbed from the cavernous stokehole to the hurricane deck. Here in a cabin far aft an observation post had been cunningly constructed, and here a view was afforded of the promised land of Trieste, lying in the blaze of the descending sun.

The buildings of the city were distinctly visible, its steeples, towers and monuments and the long lines of wharves along the water front. To the left stood out promintly Duino, with its tall towers and massive gothic walls. Back of Trieste ranged the mountains of the Carso, which afford the reasons why General Cadorna had not taken the city long ago, as holding the town was a military impossibility with the Austrians commanding it from the heights of the Carso range.

All this sweep of the city, its buildings and monuments, was easily with in the range of the Italians guns, and yet the city had been spared.

As the correspondent stood in the observatory the bombardment from the heights of the Carso increased in intensity, and within twenty-four hours the fateful offensive was in full operation.
