CRIPPLES.

On a street in the City of New York, day after day for weeks, an abject, pitiful cripple drew forth compassion and loose change from many passers by. His persistence, together with the fact that he was known to have received sufficient alms to place him beyond the necessity of begging, at last aroused the suspicion of the police. He was arrested and examined. It was discovered that he had voluntarily bound up an arm and a leg so as to produce a condition which passed as paralysis. He had suffered excruciatingly from his bondage but on his person and in the hovel that served as his home, cash and securities were found to the amount of many thousands of dollars. He was actually wealthy. He was imprisoned on the charge of obtaining money under false pretences. In the busy streets of the business world there are many men who have voluntarily bound themselves hand and foot, tied themselves down to the business of money-making, crippled themselves mentally and physically in their pursuit of the almighty dollar. Outside of this pursuit they have no life. Home is but a place to eat and sleep in. The wealth of the world's literature is closed to them. The big outside world holds nothing for them except men and women from whom the day's pittance of cash can be procured. In what particular do they differ from the voluntarily crippled and suffering New York beggar?

There are differences, it is true. The New York specimen wanted something for nothing; he was content to be a fraud and to convert suffering and pain into cash. The other specimen is willing to give something as little as possible, perhaps for the something he receives in return; he would scorn the idea of being a fraud but he is content to convert suffering and pain and ill health into cash. And there are excuses for the latter.

THE "TROUBLE IN MEXICO"

Already the United States is being urged, by certain jingo elements within itself and even by certain British journals, to settle the affair in Mexico by armed intervention. The saner press and the saner people of the United States are, however, opposed to any such action. While admitting the dastardliness of the murder of Madero, while even

Famous "Pint of Cough Syrup" Recipe

No Better Remedy at Any Price. Fully Guaranteed.

Make a plain syrup by mixing two cups of granulated sugar and one cup of warm water and stir for two minutes. Put 24 ounces of pure Pinex (fifty cents' worth) in a 16-ounce bottle, and fill it up with the Sugar Syrup. This gives you a family supply of the best cough syrup at a saving of 25. It never spoils. Take a teaspoonful every one, two or three hours.

The effectiveness of this simple remedy is surprising. It seems to take hold instantly, and will usually stop the most obstinate cough in 24 hours. It tones up the faded appetite and is just laxative enough to be helpful in a cough, and has a pleasing taste. Also excellent for bronchial trouble, throat tickle, sore lungs and asthma, and an unequalled remedy for whooping cough and croup.

This recipe for making cough remedy with Pinex and Sugar Syrup (or strained honey) is a prime favorite in thousands of homes in the United States and Canada. The plan has been imitated, though never successfully. If you try it, use only genuine Pinex, which is the most valuable concentrated compound of Norway white pine extract, and is rich in gualac and all the natural healing pine elements. Other preparations will not work in this recipe.

A guaranty of absolute satisfaction, or money promptly refunded, goes with this recipe. Your druggist has Pinex, or will get it for you. If not, send to The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.

ter. He begins a legitimate business which requires all the care and attention that can reasonably be given to it during ten or twelve hours of the twenty-four. By dint of hard work the business grows, gradually its demands eat their way beyond the ten or twelve hours until they occupy the greater part of the twenty-four, until they obtrude themselves into the sleeping hours, the hours of leisure, the hours of friendly companionship and of home life.

The business has become master. It owns its nominal owner, drives him to his daily grind as the driver whipped his unwilling slaves to their tasks. In the rush of present day business this is one of the penalties and it is perhaps, unavoidable. The pace has become so fast in practical every walk of life that one has either to keep up or fall out of the procession, or else be trampled under foot. It is one of the features of that system of evolution which has caught the modern business world in its grip.

Is there no remedy? Is there no way out but to accept the fate of the New York cripple? Is it worth while running the risk of imprisonment, not in a jail, but in the hospital, the lunatic asylum or the grave?

It has been said, perhaps by a theorist only, that the business which requires more attention than can be given to it in ten-hours of the twenty-four, is not properly managed. He may or may not have known the strenuousness of modern competition, but the value of human life, the elevating, man-making effect of leisure wisely utilized, the graves and the human wrecks which mark the way of the over-strenuous life teach us that he was right and that it does not pay to induce paralysis, mental or physical, by bandages which are done only for the purpose of amassing wealth.

hinting that the new President, Huerta, and his advisers are, perhaps, indirectly, responsible for this cold-blooded murder, the utility and the crime of adding more horror and more bloodshed is generally admitted and the conviction that there shall be no armed intervention is general.

There are always those, in every country, who are ready to counsel war on the slightest or any provocation and it is generally admitted now that the recent war with Spain was large, the result of hot-headed and sensational yellow journalism. The message sent to Congress by a class of young lady students "To H— with diplomacy, remember the Maine," was a fair sample.

It is gratifying to find that, in the present instance wiser counsels are likely to prevail and that there is a growing aversion to the jingoism which is ever ready to be loose the dogs of war.

The "Nation" of New York takes a studied and calm view of the situation. After admitting that the official explanations of the murder of Madero are "muddled and self-inculpatory," and that they serve only to "heighten the barbarity while intensifying the shock," The Nation proceeds:

"It is a wholesome sign that the American press is so largely sober and restrained on the subject of intervention. The run of newspaper comment is that no specifically new duty is laid upon our government by the brutal killing of Madero. It is true that our Ambassador had been instructed to urge that Madero's life be spared; but this was only a suggestion in the interests of humanity, and of the standing of the new Mexican regime in the eyes of the world; TO CURE A COLD IN ONE DAY.

WAS A CONFIRMED DYSPPEPTIC

Now Finds It a Pleasure to Enjoy Meals

Here is a case which seemed as bad and as hopeless as yours can possibly be. This is the experience of Mr. H. J. Brown, 384 Bathurst St., Toronto, in his own words:

"Gentlemen—I have much pleasure in mentioning to you the benefits received from your Na-Dru-Co Dyspepsia Tablets and can cheerfully recommend them. I simply had confirmed dyspepsia with all its wretched symptoms, and tried about all the advertised cures with no success. You have in Na-Dru-Co Dyspepsia Tablets the best curative agent I could find. It is now such a pleasure to enjoy meals with their consequent nourishment that I want to mention this for the benefit of others."

The fact that a lot of prescriptions or so-called "cures" have failed to help you is no sign that you have got to go on suffering. Try Na-Dru-Co Dyspepsia Tablets and see how quickly this sterling remedy will give you relief and start your stomach working properly. If it doesn't help you, you get your money back. 50c a box at your druggist's. Compounded by the National Drug and Chemical Co. of Canada, Limited, Montreal. 141 and if Huerta and the others made up their minds to disregard this, that is their own affair. The penalty they are already incurring in the alarm and disgust of their own countrymen and in the reprobation of all civilized people."

The Nation hints quite plainly at the responsibility for the murder. "There may have been no direct order," it says, "to kill Madero. It may be impossible to show that there was a tangible plot to take him out at night where he would be shot. But all the surroundings of the affair are suspicious and bloody. In the savage frenzy prevailing, a hint would have been equivalent to a command. From the moment that it was known that the deposed president was not to be allowed to leave the country, the worst was to be feared for him. He was felt to be a doomed man."

As to the course to pursue, the Nation says: "If the Mexicans can, even along bloody paths, proceed to set up a reasonably stable government of their own, we must aid them in every way open to us to do it—aid them by forbearance, but also by friendly counsels. Our government and our Ambassador in Mexico City can, as it were, make themselves the mouthpiece of civilization. They can apply a quiet moral pressure to the rulers of Mexico. Those men must be given to understand that there is such a thing as the public opinion of the world and that they are answerable to it."

It would be well in our preparation for war and our war-talk generally to pay more attention to "the public opinion of the world," for advancing civilization has created a public conscience which year by year speaks more loudly against wars and so-called interventions. The public opinion of the world to-day is for peace.

NOTES.

We gladly publish in this issue the letter of Rev. R. Osgood Morse, relative to the lamented death of Andrew McKinnon at Summerside. The Guardian's remarks, based on the evidence adduced before the Coroner, may, unwittingly, have conveyed the impression that the deceased had been drinking. It is pleasing to learn from Mr. Morse that this was not so and, in justice to the memory of the deceased, we cheerfully give space to the vindication. That death from natural causes should overtake a respectable and reputable citizen amid such surroundings, is, however, sufficiently deplorable to arouse the citizens to the seriousness of conditions which, as in many other places, have too long been permitted to exist and it is sincerely hoped that they will not wait for a tragedy to convince them that the time for determined action has arrived.

CORRECTION AND ACQUIESCENCE.

Sir—Your editorial entitled, "A Tragedy" which appears in this morning's Guardian, having reference to the death of the late Andrew McKinnon, and the verdict of the Coroner's jury thereupon, does an injustice to the man who was so suddenly called into the presence of his Maker. I was present at the later part of the inquest and took most of the notes of the evidence which my daughter forwarded to the Guardian concerning this event. There was not an iota of evidence given which, in any way, connected Mr. McKinnon with the proceedings within the house that night. There was no evidence that he had been drinking at all that day or evening. Justice to the memory of the man so suddenly called into the presence of his Maker calls for this statement.

On the other hand, I am in most hearty sympathy with all you say in regard to the enforcement or the lack of enforcement of the law concerning the sale and use of intoxicating, bleeding and protruding piles.

cants in Summerside. Much more might well be said than has been said along these lines. The evidence given before the coroner's court supplies the strongest ground for drastic action on the part of the authorities. Proper action on their part would rid the community of a place where such actions as were sworn to could be carried on.

Good News From the Lumber Camp

Men in the lumber camps have free medical attendance, and while many suffer from piles on account of exposure to cold and dampness, the doctors do not seem to have any cure for piles.

Many letters come from lumber camps in praise of Dr. Chase's Ointment, and here is a sample of how they read. Mr. William Jones, cook in lumber camp at Prairie River, Sask., writes: "For a long time I suffered from itching, bleeding piles, and could not sleep nights, because of the intense itching. Two doctors treated me, but the relief was only temporary. I saw Dr. Chase's Ointment advertised in a newspaper, and it cured me completely over four months ago. Two besides me had the piles here at the camp, and were cured by ointment I gave them. After all the treatments I tried I never expected to be cured, and am grateful for it." Dr. Chase's Ointment is a positive cure for itching, bleeding and protruding piles.
