The British and Foreign Bible Society

IN CANADA AND NEWFOUNDLAND

PRINCE EDWARD ISLAND AUXILIARY

BEQUESTS

During the past years the Society has received contributions under the wills of departed friends of the Society who, during their lifetime, had made provision for the furtherance of the work of the Bible Society, either in the Dominion of Canada and Newfoundland or the various Mission Fields. In many instances these friends were generous supporters of the Society during their life. "They now rest from their labors and their works do follow them."

Many who cannot give large sums to the world-wide work of the Bible Society during their lifetime, may, through a bequest, extend their influence many years. Be sure and mark your bequest for the P. E. I. Auxiliary or Branch. Auxiliary Office, 142 Prince Street, Charlottetown.

TRINITY CHURCH. — This Sunday morning Mr. McLennan will take for his subject the coming Church-loyalty visitation. The men of the visiting teams will attend in a body for this dedication service. The anthem by the choir will be "Open the Gates of the Temple" by Knapp-Dicks. Mr. Harvey MacPherson will be the tenor soloist. In the evening Mr. McLennan will speak on "Christian Love." The lesson will be read from the fourth chapter of first John. The choir will sing "I Will Lay Me Down in Peace" by Gadsby.

BIBLE STORY OBJECTIVE. — That men and women may learn to worship God "according to the Scriptures," they must be made available in every land, so that of them it can be said, "We do hear them speak in our tongue the wonderful works of God." This is the sole object of all Bible Society effort. The P. E. I. Auxiliary or Branch needs your helpful cooperation in promoting this great work.

HONOR SALESMAN ON RETIREMENT—Schofield Paper Co. Ltd., of Saint John, confrees of Mr. Charles W. Speirs paid tribute to him and bade him farewell Thursday evening on his retirement after 43 years with the company as salesman in New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island. At a staff dinner in the Royal Hotel, at which Mr. W. Maurice Lundy, general manager, presided, Mr Speirs was made recipient of a gold watch and a case of pipes as evidence of the good will of all towards him and of their good wishes for years of peace and contentment with the demands of a business life behind him. Mr. Speirs plans to make his home in Toronto.

THE KIRK OF ST. JAMES. —At the Morning Diet of Divine Worship in The Kirk tomorrow a Service of Ordination will be held when Mr. H. J. Gordon will be solemnly ordained and inducted into The Kirk Session of this Congregation. The Minister, the Reverend T. H. Bussell Somers, M.A., S. T. M., will conduct the Service and preach the Sermon both Morning and Evening. At Morning Worship the Sermon will be based on the text "Put on the whole armour of God" and at Evening Worship on the text "What do ye more than others?" The Music for both Services will be under the direction of the Church Organist, Miss E. Lillian McKenzie, Mus. Bac. The Church School will reopen next Sunday, September 29th, with a Rally Day Service at 2.30 o'clock.

FROM VANCOUVER — Mrs. Tilly J. Rolston, M.L.A., Vancouver, B.C., has arrived in the city and is staying at the Charlottetown Hotel. Mrs. Rolston, a Conservative member in the local British Columbia House was first elected to a seat in the Legislative Assembly on Oct. 1, 1940, and has been a continuous member since. Mrs. Rolston informed a Guardian representative that because she had been in every Province in Canada excepting Prince Edward Island, she recently decided she owed this Province a visit. She spoke in glowing terms of the rural scenery of the Province and said that, in her opinion, the Island well deserved to be called "The Garden of the Gulf." Mrs. Rolston leaves for her home in Vancouver next Monday.

are also exceedingly winsome; a spray of Golden Glow to brighten a dark corner and a late pink rose from our trellis-of-sorts, which is perhaps the very last of the season, is on my desk as I write. The trip to the mailbox also was unhurried and even as I held our papers and letters in my hand, there was the "chi-rr" of a familiar voice in the tree across the road, and I had to pause a moment to hear it. 'Isn't this one peach of a harvest day, Ellen?" my brown squirrel hailed me "I was almost certain from the look of last evening's sunset that it was going to rain today. But wasn't it the handsome sight? You'd fair think that the sky was on fire—so red it was, and odd looking. I wouldn't doubt but that it will rain tomorrow—though it doesn't look much like it now. Do you like rainy Sundays, Ellen? I declare I find them pretty tedious myself, but dear me, what's that? Oh" she giggled, teetering dangerously on the branch, "it's only that Pard of yours Between ourselves, Ellen" she confided "I haven't one bit of use for that dog. He has a way of racing around that corner from your bridge that fairly starts my heart out of its place. I get some awful frights, I can tell you! I had better be going before he gets back". I was alone. Pard who had followed me, was chasing a blue jay along the Alders up the stream.

This week, brought a measure of joy and anxiety to the folks at Alderlea. We enjoyed the delights and blessings of the harvest home, though so far only the seed grain in sheaf has been saved. It has been stored in a granary, filling it well up on the cobwebby rafters. One evening a last load for the day was stowed there by lantern light. And at dusk I found it a delightful shadowy place full of subtle tunes played by the wakeful crickets, their theme being, I fancy a sad one of a Summer time lately past. Day was dying then and an early diamond of a star was set exquisitely in the turquoise of the night sky. There were two sorrowful partings this week at Alderlea. Rob's went to the city one dark afternoon leaving Jamie in our care. Jamie's plaint was a tearful: "me wa-ant a go to town too!" However under his grand-father's ministrations a misty smile presently flickered across his features, which soon developed into a broad grin. Ewe were separated from their lambs, in this weaning season and many artful endearments were exchanged at night between the near paddock and the far stump-field. This week, now about gone, brought several anxious days and nights to us at Alderlea, when our babe in the house across the lane became miserable and then ill—so ill that her happy smile faded and only listlessly she noticed

Literature And Life

One's Self

By Bookman

Wordsworth's "Happy Warrior", it is said "made his moral being his prime care" That surely was right, because we must live with ourselves. The experiences of life are shaping us, and later on we have to be companions of that self so formed. The ancient Greeks had a slogan, "Know Thyself"—a sufficient task for anyone. Inasmuch as we are to be companions with ourselves the inner friendship of the soul is a matter of deep concern. In a sense there are two selves in every one. R L. Stevenson develops that idea in his "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde". Saint Paul declared that in his life there was a dualism— when "he would do good evil was present with him".

The problem of the self has been on the minds of men for long — indeed ever since man began to think about things at all. The great dramatist, Shakespeare could not overlook it. It is at the heart of many of his dramas. In fact, it is our greatest task "To thine own self be true and it must follow as the night the day, thou canst not then be false to any man". Matthew Arnold in his fine sonnet on, him says: 'Thou, Self-schooled, self-scanned, self-honoured, self-secure, didst tread on earth unguessed at." One of England's poets declares how determining the self is to my success— "self reverence self-knowledge, self control— these three lead men to sovereign power". And Emerson, in that essay, "Self Reliance" which has inspired several generations of young people, to try to do something says: "Trust thyself; every heart vibrates to that iron string".

In "Thyrsis" a threnody in memory of his friend, A H. Clough, Matthew Arnold, in comparing him to the Scholar Gypsy, who left Oxford to roam with the Gypsies and learn their lore, for they both felt alone, has this to say about Clough:

"Out of the herd of mortals he is gone".
He wends unfollowed, he must house alone;
Yet on he fares, by his own heart inspired."

The greatest Teacher of all Jesus, spoke often about the value of the self. He laid this down as a prefrequisite for success in life: "deny thyself and follow me". He laid the self on one side of the scales and on the other side he placed the world, and said that if a man gain the whole world and lost himself it would profit him nothing. It was He who discovered the inherent value of man. Man was the end, not the means Cardinal Wolsey in King Henry the Eighth bids Cromwell "fling away ambition, love thyself last". He knew the truth in theory but forgot it in practice.

Our human problem is really one of adjustment one of proportion. It is too bad if the higher self is ruled or rebuked by the lower. The task set us is to work out the beast in human nature— to be able to say at the end, if not before: "I hear no yelp of the beast the man is quiet at last, as he stands on the heights of his life with a glimpse of a height that is higher."

Paul was not overworried about the way the world thought of him —not that he ignored public opinion, for no one can afford to do that. But he retired into himself, and the fine thing for him was that he had such a citadel of retreat. He scrutinized himself and said "To his own master a man standeth or falleth". Milton's saying about the "great task-master's eye" would thus find a responsive chord in the great apostle, and should likewise in the minds of us all.

those about her. The Doctor visited her daily to prescribe treatment that has brought her now well on the way to regaining her wonted good health. Very precious, she has become to us in the recent months. So dear that we find ourselves "near Heaven" in her returned smile as we are near it in so many other lovelinesses that are to be found strewn lavishly along each daily path.

"For Heaven lies about us everywhere,
And God is close, for every blade of grass
Sings on the wind like ancient lines of prayer,
And all the world is hushed to watch Him pass."

Until Monday . . . Diary . . . Good-night. . .

STEEVES-COSTAIN WEDDING

At the home of the groom's mother, Mrs. Julia Steeves Killam, Cap de Moiselle, on Saturday evening, September 14, Rev. E. E. Fytch of Hillsboro United Church united in marriage Edna Eileen Costain, of Summerside, P. E. I., to Lewis Titus Steeves, son of Mrs. Julia Steeves Killam, Cap de Moiselle. Under a beautiful arch of flowers and greenery, the ceremony was performed in the presence of 125 invited guests who were received by Mrs. John Wilson and Mrs. Ralph Steeves.

Given in marriage by her brother, Fred Costain, the bride was beautifully attired in a white bridal gown with sweetheart neck line and balloon sleeves. She wore a headdress with shoulder veil and her bouquet was of American beauty roses and Baby's Breath.

The bridesmaid, Miss Eva Cochrane, wore a floor length gown of Queen's blue crepe, hat and shoulder veil. Her bouquet was of carnations and sweetpeas.

Kenneth Steeves supported the groom.

Wedding music was played by Mrs. Gordon Wilson.

Mrs. Costain, mother of the bride, wore a black gown with sequin trim and corsage of red roses. The groom's mother wore a blue velvet gown and Ophelia roses for her corsage.

The livingroom was beautifully decorated with gladioli and in the diningroom beautiful decorations were done in silver and white, with the bride's table especially attractive in white and silver bells, and on the bride's table was a three-tier bride's cake and also the groom's cake. There were flowers and candles. Pouring at the prettily appointed table were Mrs. Winford Steeves and Miss Marion Wilson, while the bride's table was served by Mrs. Philip Burgoyne, of Saint John, and Mrs. John Hunter of Moncton. Others serving and assisting in the dining room were Mrs. Lloyd Perry, Mrs. Bertram Hawkes, Mrs. Jordan Hawkes, Mrs. Russell Fenton and the Misses Mildred and Lena Hawkes.

A brief honeymoon will be spent in Nova Scotia when for travelling the bride wore a mauve wool suit with black accessories.

Upon their return they will reside in Moncton where the groom is manager of Super Service Station and the bride is employed in the offices of T. Eaton Co., Maritimes, Limited.

In Memoriam

In loving memory of my dear brother, Pte. Eugene A. Clow, who was killed in Action in France, September 21, 1944.
You were too good, dear brother.
Through this old world to roam
So God has called you with him
To his bright heavenly home.

It won't be long dear brother
Until we'll meet again
To clasp your hand in that better land
Never to part again.

Always Remembered by His Sister and Brother-in-Law Lucy, Howard and Family.

In Memoriam

In loving memory of Lowell MacKenzie, who passed away Sept. 22, 1944.

To part with him, we loved so dear
The blow was hard, the shock severe,
So quick, so quiet was the call,
His sudden death surprised us all.
Two years has passed, our hearts are sore,
As time goes on we love him more.
Ever Remembered by Mother, Daddy and Sister Alice.

In Memoriam

In fond and loving memory of our dear son and brother, Pte. Eugene Clow, Kingston, who was Killed in Action in France, Sept. 21, 1944.
Deep in our hearts there's a picture
More precious than silver and gold
A picture of our dear son and brother
Whose memory shall never grow old.

Though the tears in our eyes do not glisten
And our faces do not always look sad,
There is never a night or a morning
But we think of our dear son and brother.

Lovingly Remembered by His Mother, Father, Sisters and Brothers.

In Memoriam

In loving memory of our dear mother, Mrs. Rae MacLeod, New Perth, who departed this life September 21, 1939.

Dear in our hearts you are fondly remembered,
Sweet happy memories cling 'round your name.
True hearts that loved you with deepest affection,
Always will love you in death just the same.

Inserted by Her Family.
