Dwelling Fire Extinguished

Prompt action by City Firemen Monday saved the residence of L. W. Saunders, corner of Prince and Richmond Streets, from serious damage. The fire, which broke out on the third floor of the building, caused some damage to the kitchen and the apartment owner Clifford Sherren. Smoke and water caused most of the remaining damage. The action of the firemen in covering the furniture with tarpaulins. It was not definitely known how the fire was started but it was believed to have been caused by a flying spark which became lodged beneath the eaves.

Spring Activities At Experimental Station

With Spring just around the corner, the Experimental Farm must be one of the busiest places on Prince Edward Island. Not only is the farm machinery being overhauled and repaired, brooder houses being built for the new hundred and one chicks, and all the other things that must be done with one thing and bees and horses and horticulture in the spring, but there is a great deal of planning for the innumerable experiments that are scheduled for the summer.

Mr. R. C. Parent Superintendent, is not the least busy in this group of busy agriculturists, and the concern of the Science Service, confined to farming. A look at his daily mail shows the extent of a "farmer's" interests today.

First, he opens a letter from a school pupil who must find a number of seeds for grade 10 entrance. Mr. Parent says he gets quite a number of similar requests. He points out, however, that the idea of the Department of Education is that the pupils hunt up the various seeds for themselves, and he points out that a number of different seed may be found in any granary—and, indeed, in any pantry.

Next letter, a Dominion official at Ottawa hears there is grass silage at the Farm at Charlottetown and wants a sample for experiment at the Central Station.

The Nappan, Superintendent of the Nappan Station in Nova Scotia states that after Easter, he will send over an agricultural engineer to survey the new 200-acre Upton Farm and also the farm at Beach Grove Inn.

A great deal of help is required for a summer's experimental work. Mr. Parent gets word that Dominion Animal Husbandry is sending two students this summer—one for the Farm at Charlottetown and the other for the Farm Station at Summerside. Seven agricultural students from the Maritimes have been hired to work on the farm on the cereal, forage and horticultural, and livestock projects.

The next letter opened is from the manager of the Demonstration Farm in Newfoundland. A short time ago, Mr. Parent had sent him a 10-page letter giving him a complete picture of the set-up at Charlottetown. Apparently Mr. Parent covered everything but the length of the hours worked and the holidays given. Newfoundland would like to know what the Island does about these important items.

Not the least of the Superintendent's mail is composed of petitions from all phases of agriculture. These must be at least scanned, and directed to the various assistants who are interested in that particular subject. One issue of interest to the Island, is the special annual report of the Agricultural Institute of Canada which, this year, is concerned with weeds. Some 27,000 copies have been distributed and the cover picture was taken on the Upton Farm.

Spring Operations Winding up the winter wood-lot cutting, all the birch with dead tops are now being cut in the vicinity of the Farm buildings. Although not altogether dead, they are mature and become a source of infection to other younger trees.

Plans are being made to replant with an avenue of weeping birch which is harder than the present species. Much of the hardwood is being used for plank for whittle-trees and shares and axe-handles, etc. Some may be made into flooring and the remainder split up for firewood.

TAKE 2 SPRING ACTIVITIES The spring clean-up on the Farm means more than tidying up the grounds and buildings, and includes the cleaning of grains and seeds. Preparations are being made for fertilizer and supplies generally, which include stakes for plot work—a major item. Mr. Gordon Warren, assistant to the Superintendent, in charge of Horticulture, is early on his cold frames for his spring plants.

drum. The seismograph still was vibrating 20 minutes later.

University seismologists rated the quake as of No. 6 intensity. (No. 12 is the most possible intensity and would mean total destruction of an area). The worst previous quake here on February 14, 1946, was rated No. 7.

Keith Oles, geology department associate, estimated the centre at a short distance west or southwest of Seattle.

At Honolulu the Barbers Point seismograph located the quake's centre between Seattle and Tacoma, by checking intersecting reports.

In the Western Washington zone of heaviest damage water tanks split open, windows were shattered and bricks and concrete blocks rained into the streets.

Thousands of persons rushed from swaying buildings in Seattle, Tacoma, Olympia, Longview, Centralia and other Washington cities, and in Portland, Ore.

Many persons fainting, including several prisoners in the King County (Seattle) jail.

In Seattle two water tanks broke atop business buildings, cascading water down the sides into the streets. Throughout Western Washington scores of brick and concrete buildings were cracked and thousands of chimneys were damaged in homes.

Near Bonneville dam on the Columbia River earth slides caused alarm, but the big dam and power lines apparently were not damaged.
