PLEADS GUILTY TO BIGAMY - Willard Forrest MacDonald, Charlottetown, pleaded guilty to a charge of bigamy yesterday afternoon before Stipendiary-Magistrate Gilbert A. Gaudet. Sentence will be passed upon the accused on March 5 next. Evidence was heard at the trial but the Crown had witnesses in Court ready to testify before the hearing had been legally married in Charlottetown on May 30, 1942, by the Rev. G. Carlyle Webster and that 44 days later, on July 18, he had gone through a form of marriage with another woman at Hunter River. The Rev. L. M. Murray, G. R. Holmes, K.C., appeared for the Crown and Lester O'Donnell for the accused.

INTERESTING ADDRESS - The history of the Light Anti-Aircraft Regiment (R.C.A.), during the last year was given last Tuesday evening by Lieut.-Col. G. E. Peake, D.C.O., before the members of the Navy, Army, and Air Force Club. Major D. L. Matheson, president of the Club, presided. The speaker recalled the Regiment's feats, including the Canadian break through at Yveulites, the shooting down in 1944 of seven German ME 109's out of twelve in one day, of the big show known as "Pepperpot" when the Canadian attack on Odenburg. A vote of thanks to the speaker was moved by Major Matheson and seconded by Major Ivan Nicholson, M.C.

way tracks, firing as they went. Boys attempted to follow but fell fatally wounded after running only about 30 feet.

Police reinforcements joined the hunt and opened fire, their view and aim impeded constantly by boxes carried shunting locomotives, of which their quarry took advantage and finally threaded a way to the neighboring bush.

Wounded, Kept Firing

Reply to the handit shooting was continued by a group of officers led by Detective Hoare even after he was brought down by bullet wounds in the shoulder and hip. Hoare continued firing from the ground until the first of the handit trio pelted to the ground. "I got him," shouted the wounded detective, "I got him." Then they carried him off to hospital.

The other two fleeing men began discarding their outer clothing and edged their way through the bush in a nervous, uncoordinated fashion before they could reach there, a fusillade of police bullets felled the man identified as Johnson, who also was taken to hospital.

The lone hunted survivor managed to elude his pursuers for a time during which they were joined by further reinforcements. Finally they surrounded the house and found the man identified as William Henderson, hiding in the basement.

of every man and woman being their own doctor.

Dr. R.G. Ratz, chief of the division of National Health and Welfare said today, he is fully aware of the immense number of civil servants here absent from their offices.

"There is no epidemic of any kind in Ottawa now," he stated, "and the number of common colds and cases of flu are no greater than in an average year. This has been checked on when we became aware of the number of Government employees absent from duty and we find that general health conditions are pretty good."

Some of the bodies of Government employees absent from their offices really are sick. This has been established by visits to their homes. Others, however, are cleaning up their cellars or attic, perfecting their skiing or curling technique, catching up on their light reading and motion picture books or just having a good old-fashioned nap.

The practice of using up unexpired sick leave, which is a statutory right of Government employees, is one of the reasons so many questions placed on the House of Commons order paper have gone unanswered during the past two weeks.

Members from all parts of Canada have been complaining of the delay in getting answers to requests for information, and despite the short periods, two or three times a week, today showed 110 questions still to be dealt with. Until the absentees return to their desks after March 31, it is unlikely this situation will be corrected.

Cannery School In Progress

Missing Plane Safe; Landed In Rough Field

AMHERST, N.S., Feb. 26 - (CP) - Pilot Alex Bellantyne tonight told how he set his tiny Stinson four-seater aircraft down in a rough field at Cape Spear in the Tormentine area of eastern New Brunswick during a heavy snow storm after being forced to turn away from his home field at River Philip, N.S., on a flight from Charlottetown.

The plane, owned by Springhill Flying Services, was reported missing last night after it failed to report at the River Philip field and an intensive air search was started this morning and continued until the missing craft flew safely to the Amherst field.

Pilot Bellantyne, who was accompanied by his wife and a passenger, James Merry, said the heavy snow over the River Philip field had forced him to turn toward the Tormentine area.

With only two hours gas supply in his tanks when he left Charlottetown, he was forced to set down in near-zero visibility in a field at Cape Spear.

No telephones were available to notify the Springhill owners that the plane had landed safely and the plane's occupants were unaware that they were the object of a search.

He flew the plane to Amherst this morning after tearing down fences to facilitate a take-off from his forced landing strip.

None of the plane's occupants were injured in the landing.

MEETING RESPONDS TO APPEAL

Mr. Kent has a magnificent voice, ranging from high baritone to bass, which he uses with consummate skill in interpreting every shade of feeling and dramatic action. He sang in four languages in the course of his programme, and seemed equally at home in each. Naturally it was his English language songs which made the most appeal, and which his perfect diction and characterization were most noticeable.

As is customary at Community Concerts, the artist's opening numbers were selected from the older classics, in this case, arias from Handel's opera "Floridante" and Mozart's "Marriage of Figaro," also two grand old English songs, "When Shall I See You" by Leveridge, and "The Self-Banished" by Dr. John Blow to words by Edmund Waller, the latter being fittingly described in the programme notes as "one of the finest examples of 17th Century English song."

Of this group, each a little masterpiece, the Handel number was the most impressive, remaining on the concert platform.

The second group consisted of modern German classics, "Widening" by Schumann, "Am Sonntag Morgen" and "In Waldesamkeit" by Brahms, and "Gutnachtung" by Richard Strauss, followed by a resounding melodramatic aria from Umberto Giordano's first successful opera, "Andrea Chenier," produced in Milan in 1892.

French composers also had a place of prominence on the programme, this group consisting of "Mandoline" by Debussy, "Chanson triste" by Hector Duparc, and the aria "Valentin's Farewell" from Gounod's "Faust."

Mr. Kent's final selections were some of the most enthusiastically received. They comprised two poems of Tennyson, "Come Not When I Am Dead" and "The Man in the Moon," set to music by Joseph Holbrooke and Stuart Ross respectively; also one of Hall-Johnson's never-spoken-to songs, "I Cannot Stay Here by Myself," and "The Rain Road" by Dorothy Stewart, which Mr. Kent carried off with such ease that it had not yet been published.

In addition, he responded with several encores, including "Non, mais le bon Dieu est avec moi," a Russian composer Shostakovich. As encore numbers Mr. Black played two other encores, including a Spanish dance by George Copeland, his artistry in interpreting these modern pieces being warmly applauded.

Mr. Kent was but recently released from the U.S. Army where he served as a Major on General Somervell's staff at Washington. He was the baritone chosen as one member of the quartet who sang at the funeral services for the late President Roosevelt. Last fall he made an extensive concert tour as a member of the Columbia Grand Opera Quartet, which included engagements with the Worcester and New York Oratorio Societies and solo recitals in the United States and Canada.

cars for the movement of feed grains and export wheat from the Prairie Provinces.

This emergency project, effective for six weeks, gives these grains top priority over other freight movement. With the Canadian car situation so important of the Government, it remains to be seen whether or not the railroads can meet this priority rating for grain movement and still service the minimum transportation requirements of the other sectors of the national economy.

"Over-all supplies of Canadian oats and barley for the Dominion are relatively unchanged from those of the previous season. Lakehead stocks for shipment after the opening of navigation are accumulating very slowly. With the bulk of eastern requirements for barley and feed wheat coming from Western Canada, these supplies may, as in 1946-47, become increasingly difficult to procure and, for practical purposes almost nonexistent towards the end of the current season. Oats, as a year ago, are in fair supply and may become once more the mainstay of Canada's feeding program until the 1947 crops become available."

WOULD CONTROL

15,000-barrel apple crop were sold outside the Province and were therefore beyond the control of the Provincial Marketing Board.

L. M. McIntosh, Saskatchewan Minister of Co-operation, told the meeting a national marketing system would give stability to Canadian agriculture.

J. K. King, Deputy Minister of Agriculture for New Brunswick, said he believed the proposed legislation represented the desires of "the large majority" of farmers.

A closing resolution passed by the conference termed the act "essential to the economic welfare of agriculture, the basic industry of Canada."

Establishment of a Dominion Marketing Board would be a major factor in providing stability for agriculture through the medium of orderly marketing in domestic and export fields.

AWAIT TOURIST BOOM

LONDON - (C P) - This year marks resumption of Edward's tourist traffic and an advance estimate places the number of intending visitors at 250,000. Visitors from Canada and the U.S.A. will account for nearly half the estimated total of tourists and many Allied servicemen and women are anxious to renew friendships formed when stationed in Britain.

paid during recent years, Mr. Wells said the average price for unshelled berries per quart of 20 ounces was 16.87 cents in 1943; 18.7 cents in 1944; 21.06 cents in 1945; and 21.03 cents last year.

Mr. Wells also informed the berry growers of Mount Stewart, Mr. Wells said, had been willing to contract for the Company's total Island requirements in 1948 but that he had thought only fair to give the Charlottetown growers an opportunity of sharing in the business. Mount Stewart growers contracted last Tuesday night for about 25 acres, Mr. Wells said.

It was the opinion of the growers present that a good average yield of strawberries per acre was 5,000 quart boxes.
