SATURDAY CLOSING

A circular has been issued by The Island Cold Storage Co., Ltd., Charlottetown, notifying their patrons and the public in general that commencing this week, and on each Saturday for the next twelve weeks, they will close their places of business at 12 o'clock noon. In order that goods may be properly handled for storage they should be delivered at the plant at least one hour before time of closing, and to that and the co-operation of their patrons is respectfully solicited.

CHEESE WEIGHING

An Ottawa dispatch to a Toronto newspaper recently represented Hon. Martin Burrell, the Minister of Agriculture, as working on a scheme for the appointment of a crop of special dairy inspectors for the province of Ontario, and on a plan that would protect the farmers and dairyman "from loss of any kind" through the failure of unreliable commission men operation without sufficient capital. "The Farmer's Advocate" is advised that there is no truth in the story, which is manufactured not of whole cloth. A proposal is under consideration, however, to investigate the question of the weighing of cheese, because of the reports that have at various times been in circulation, to the effect that the weighing system in vogue at Montreal has awakened suspicions that these producers have been unfairly dealt with.

I WILL

I will start anew this morning, with a higher, fairer creed; I will cease to stand complaining of my restless neighbor's creed; I will cease to sit repining while my duty's call is clear; I will waste no moment whining, and my heart shall know no fear. I will look sometimes about me for the things that merit praise; I will search for hidden beauties that elude the grumbler's gaze; I will try to find contentment in the paths that I must tread; I will cease to have resentment when another moves ahead.

A WOMAN'S WORK.

A year book published in Northfield, Vt., has the following rhyme on the cover: "Men work from morn till set of sun." They do. "But a woman's work is never done." Quite true. For when one task she's finished something's found. Awaiting a beginning all year round. To draw the tea, Or bake the bread, Or make the bed, Or ply the broom, Or bake the bread, Or floor to scrub, Or knives to rub, Or table to set, Or meals to get, Or shelves to scan, Or fruit to can.

A PHENOMENA.

CORDOVA, Alaska, June 12—Although six days have passed since the Katmaie volcano burst forth in eruption, there has been little relief here from the volcano smoke and ash, which hung low over the mountains. The first real danger here from the volcano action was made apparent, last night, when a heavy rain began to fall, the water mixing with the ash in the air, forming sulphuric acid which burned painfully wherever it came in contact with anyone's face or hands. Before the cause was realized, many persons received painful burns in the eyes, although none was severely injured. Analysis of the drinking water showed that it contained sulphuric acid and physicians directed householders to use lime water as a counter irritant.

ANOTHER RAILWAY CHANGE.

EDMONTON, June 12—A program of colossal proportions, involving the completion during 1912 of 500 miles of new tracks on the C. N. R. main line and branches in Alberta and the laying of 1300 miles on the Peace River branch, the completion of Goose Lake extension to Calgary by September or October, of the Brazeau line, of the Calgary, MacLeod line before the close of the year, and of a very considerable portion of the Oliver branch and the Calgary-Vegreville branch, was outlined by Sir William Mackenzie, president of the road, during his visit here today.

KETTLE DEVICE.

Take a pail copper or shallow tin of a suitable size to fit the kettle, and with a hammer and nail, punch it full of holes, with the roughness on the inside, so that the water may have free play through it. When about to boil a piece of meat, insert this false bottom first, and there will be no danger of the meat sticking to the bottom or being tainted if it should happen to boil dry. It is very simple to make.

CULTIVATE TRUE COURAGE

What a grand acquisition is moral courage, yet how rare! Are those of us who lack the courage to face a difficulty it will present itself in more formidable than before. Difficulties like thieves, often disappear if one looks at them. We should cultivate moral courage, and the young especially should do so.

Have the courage to leave a jovial party at the proper hour for doing so, however great the sacrifice, and to stay away from one to which you ought not to go, however great the temptation to join it.

Have the courage to speak your mind when it is desirable you should do so, and to hold your tongue when it is better you should be silent.

Have the moral courage to speak to a poor friend in needy clothing, when a rich one is near. The effort is not so great as many people take it to be, and the act is worthy of a king. Have the courage to admit that you have been wrong, and you will create a desirable impression, instead of an unfavorable one, in the minds of others.

PERPLEXED.

Pat. Rooney, having been to the fair, was driving home when a great drowsiness overcame him and he lay down in the cart and went to sleep. The horse finding himself free to do as he wanted, promptly kicked through the traces and ran away. When Pat. awoke he found no horse. While he was pondering over the situation a stranger came up. "Are you Pat. Rooney or am I not?" asked Pat. "O'm shure I dunno," answered the stranger. "Well," said Pat, "if O'm Pat. Rooney O've lost a horse, an' if O'm not O've found a cart."

LEARN TO FORGET.

Make a study of it. Practice it. Become expert at forgetting. Then this faculty of the mind until it is strong. Then the memory will have fewer things to remember and it will become quick and alert in remembering things that are worth remembering. It will not be cumbered with the disagreeable things, and all its attention will be given to the beautiful things, to the worth-while things. To forget is simply to fill our minds with other happier things. In the disagreeable things will come up, however, pick up a book and read, or go somewhere. Get out into God's beautiful sunshine, and dark, gloomy thoughts will soon fade away. Learn to forget all but the bright, cheerful and happy things of life. Above all, love and help your fellow men—that will help you to forget your own troubles. Banish all unkind thoughts and remember and cherish only that which is good.

MARCONI PROFITS DOUBLED.

HOW PERFUME IS WEIGHED

alvioni, the Italian physician, devised a microbalance of such extreme delicacy that it clearly demonstrated the loss of weight of musk by volatilization. Thus the invisible perfume floating off into the air is indirectly weighed. The essential part of the apparatus is a very thin thread of glass, fixed at one end and extending horizontally. The microbalance objects to be weighed are placed upon the glass thread near its free end and the amount of flexure produced is observed with a microscope magnifying one hundred diameters. The note weighing one-thousandth of a milligram.

FASHIONS AND FADS.

The smartest low shoes of black patent leather have tops and heels of white. With light evening gowns of satin or lace, the elaborately carved ivory fans harmonize beautifully. Veils of plain biscuit-colored tulle or fine net are lightly embroidered in fine gold and silver threads.

Fans of gauze decorated with water-colors and sequins look well with gowns of chiffon and net. White is still the proper shade in gloves, but tans are also good form, and the various shades of taupe are growing in popularity.

So much in vogue is the craze for black and white that one sees jackets of white satin worn with skirts of black satin, or even serge. The parols made with graduated ruffles, finished on edge with narrow silk fringe, are reminiscent of the days of our grandmothers.

Shirtings of taffeta, lace and chiffon and ruchings of ribbon both silk and velvet, are much used for the decoration of the new parasols. Shadow laces and allovers are both popular as trimming. Batiste embroidery in allovers, flounces and bandings are equisitely dainty.

STARS THAT FADE AWAY.

(Le Temps.) Commenting upon the gradual fading away of the new star which was discovered near the Gemini constellation by a Norwegian astronomer on March 12, and was christened "Nova, 1912," a correspondent observes that the light will not go out altogether. It will go on getting feebler and feebler, its light changing from white to yellow and red, until it surrounds itself with a nebulous cocoon.

There was a similar case of a sudden birth of a star in February, 1901, when, for some days, the new creature shone in the heavens with a brilliance only inferior to that of Sirius. Now it has diminished to a star of the twelfth order of magnitude.

The most celebrated of all these startling appearances, probably caused by the collision of two dark stars, which, like the earth, conceal beneath a cold exterior a raging furnace, was that of the wonderful "Pilgrim," noticed in October, 1872, by Tycho Brahe. He was on his way from Germany to Denmark, and was stopping at the old monastery on the Heritzwaldt, belonging to his uncle.

Here he would stay in his chemical laboratory till nightfall, and one evening when he was studying the heavens he noticed, near the zenith, in the constellation of Cassiopea, a glorious star of extraordinary splendor. To satisfy himself that he was not the subject of an optical delusion he made the men working under him look in the same direction, and they confirmed him.

He heard later that carters and other folk had seen the apparition before the astronomers, and much chaffered at the expense of the men of science.

The new star surpassed ever Sirius in brilliance. Lyra and Jupiter tried to hide their diminished heads. In fact, it could only be compared for magnificence to Venus when she is nearest the earth. Persons possessed of good sight could distinguish it in the daytime, even at midday, when ter itself, would be invisible, because they only shine with borrowed light.

The universe is probably full of these dark stars. We know something of some of them as, for instance, of Procyon's invisible companion, by the perturbation caused in the orbits of their glittering neighbors. Others we only become aware of when, with a speed ten thousand times greater than that of the Titanic, they clash together, and the debris of the catastrophe goes to form a new world.
