PARIS SILVER PARLEY LIKELY TO BE DELAYED

PARIS, Sept. 12.—Postponement of the proposed world silver conference, to consider means for alleviation of the critical condition of that metal, was considered likely yesterday as a result of conditions in India.

The League of Nations was reported to believe the time inopportune for study of the question, although the International Chamber of Commerce, supported by its congress at Washington, had made preparatory plans for the conference.

It was learned that the Chamber's council had designated a group of experts to meet in London soon to report to the council on the advisability of an early conference. The general belief here was that postponement would be recommended unless there is a change in the attitude of Indian leaders.

It was pointed out that, in addition to other causes, the Indian political leaders, whose country is over-burdened with silver, were devoting more time to politics than to the silver crisis. Thus it was not expected that Mahatma Gandhi, Nationalist Leader, would devote much time to the question on his present European visit. However, it was believed that, if Gandhi and British Treasury experts would consent to attend, the conference could be held at Geneva late in October, permitting experts from Mexico and other interested countries to attend.

"He Was Left An Income Of $100 A Month For Life"

A man said, "If only somebody didn't know would die and leave a million dollars!" And his wife replied, "Yes, or even somebody we did know, and only half a million!"

It is a favorite day dream to "wish" that some remote relative we never heard of would remember us in his will, and that the good news would be announced by the postman on his very next visit.

Yes, it would be nice to have the postman call every month at the same time, and leave a cheque for $100. Very welcome now, of course, but how much more so later on, when our energies begin to flag; say, when we reach age 50, 55, or 60. Just when we begin to feel like easing up and letting the younger people have their way, and the job, of course, if a man or woman has invested, an income of One Hundred Dollars a month can be secured right away.

The great majority of people, however, cannot command any such capital sum, nor is it necessary if one wishes to plan now for the income to be delivered some time in the future.

If you want to pass the last third of your life in comfort and independence, or should you wish to guard against being totally disabled and unable to earn money, look into this suggestion now.

The coupon below is for your convenience. Fill it in and send it today. Do not let delay rob you of the opportunity of finding out just how you can secure the income you know you will need later on in life.

costly foods.
Thirty years ago, before the salt-an system was abolished, the low class actors needed to bring nothing for their luncheon but rice. In their room they had a large pan put over a heater, or hibachi. In it vegetables were boiled with soy and the actors could eat them with the rice they brought from home. This custom they now want revived. But the management has hesitated to accept the request.

"The actors are living in luxury, even if it is false," say the managers. "They even eat pork cutlets and we doubt whether they would be content to go back to saiban."

But the poorly paid actors insist that something must be done to reduce the cost of living.

There are about 750 actors in Tokyo whose names never appear in print in the casts. They are paid from $10 to $25 a month, with occasional tips from higher actors as their additional incomes. To make matters worse, they are occasionally given no job for a month or so, and then reduction of wages is forced upon them.

Those minor actors are classified into four different statuses. The lowest group are those who often portray maids in a play and speak in choruses. Most of these actors are young, but among them are some aged men. They cannot buy luncheon and they bring their food from home.

In most cases they take only one part and after working but 10 to 15 minutes they walk home. They are so poor that they are not even able to ride on street cars. Actors are very strict in observing traditions and conventions. Should an actor of the lowest class happen to be found sitting on a chair belonging to another of a class just above his, then he would be severely reprimanded for the discourtesy.

MEAT SELLS AT LESS THAN COST

MELBOURNE, Australia, Sept. 11. (By the Canadian Press)—Meat is now being sold in the British Isles by Australian exporters at less than cost, according to the testimony heard recently by a labor arbitration board. The Australian meat packing industry is asking authority to reduce wages ten per cent so as to reduce the cost of production.

Shipping agreements elapse shortly and rates will go up 25 to 30 per cent, thus making it even costlier to maintain the export connection with the British Isles.

Competition in the meat trade is intense, according to shippers who appeared before the board. Australia receives no benefit from the exchange, for the producers were being paid the prices realized in London in the equivalent Australian currency.

Australian meat trade has been suffering as a result of the stiff

SOCIAL GATHERING—A very enjoyable time was spent at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Chester Woolner, North Rustico, on Monday evening, when the neighbors of that and adjoining districts met together to shower good wishes and gifts upon Miss Ida MacKenzie, on the eve of her approaching marriage. To the strains of the wedding March, played by Mrs. Walter Blandin, the bride-to-be was placed in the "bridal chair" in the spacious parlour, which was prettily decorated in pink and white. A lovely bouquet of sweet peas was presented by little Miss Irma Toombs. The many and beautiful gifts were opened by Mrs. Frank Townsend and Miss Mabel Woolner and the accompanying humorous verses were read by Miss Lucy Woolner. The bride-to-be, though taken completely by surprise, in a few well chosen words thanked her friends for their generous gifts and invited them all to visit her in her new home in Carleton. This was responded to by all singing very heartily "For She's a Jolly Good Fellow." After a jellied luncheon was served all left for their homes at a late hour, wishing Miss MacKenzie much joy in her new home.—(Patriot please copy).

SIGNED IN 1822, CONTRACT FOR COTTAGES OF BRITISH DOCKYARD SECURED BY CAPTAIN MACKAY

(By The Canadian Press)

KINGSTON, Ont., Sept. 10 — Among the papers of the late Captain Robert H. MacKay of Kings-ton, who lived to the age of 92, was the original contract for the erection of some buildings at the British Dockyard on Point Frederick, now the site of the Royal Military College of Canada. Captain MacKay was born at the dockyard where his father was engaged and when a little boy he sat on the bank of the river opposite Kingston and watched the building of the first wooden bridge across the stream to the city shore side. The Captain also witnessed most of the events at Kingston during the Upper Canada Rebellion.

The contract written in ink, on foolscap, is dated April 4, 1822 and was made out between John Corry of the Town of Kingston, Province of Upper Canada, and Matthew Mends, His Majesty's Naval store-keeper, in behalf of the King, and Corry agreed to perform carpenter and joiner work in the erection of a certain range of cottages, 16 in number, only five of which were to be taken in hand at a time, so that the whole range would be finished on or before the second of October, 1822. The contract price was 1,650 pounds Halifax currency, ($28,250) and a further consideration of one shilling eight pence per yard for lathing and plastering of good two coat work. At the expiration of every month from the commencement of work, John Corry was to receive two thirds of the sum at the rate aforesaid that might be due thereon upon inspection and approval of the military engineers, and the remainder of the money on the completion of the cottages.

Reference is made in the contract to an Act passed in the reign of George III entitled "An act for restraining any person concerned in any contract, commission or agreement made for the public service from being elected or sitting and voting as a member of the House of Commons" and "It was expressly declared and the presents are upon the express conditions that no member of the House of Commons be admitted to any share or part of this contract or agreement or to any party or share of the agreement whatever."

The naval dockyard at Point Frederick was established in the year 1788, four years before Kingston was made capital of Upper Canada. A wooden fort was then erected close to the site of the present Fort Henry and replaced with the present fortification in 1832.

There were 1200 men employed at the British dockyard at its busiest time, and more accommodation being required for the large number, a stone "frigate" was also erected and completed with quarter deck and hammocks slung for sleeping. It was called "H. M. S. Stone Frigate" and now forms part of the dormitories of the Royal Military College of Canada, which has just re-opened for its autumn term. The R. M. C. was founded in the year 1876 and the site was chosen by Premier Alexander MacKenzie, who had, as a young stone mason, worked on the martello tower fortifications which still surround Kingston harbor.
