Golden Miller Will Race At Cheltenham

CHELtenham, Eng., Jan. 23—(AP)—Golden Miller, Dorothy Paget's winner of the 1934 Grand National Steeplechase, will try for his sixth victory in the Cheltenham Gold Cup March 4.

The race will be a tune-up for the renewal of the Grand National at Aintree, March 19, as it will be run over 3 1/4 miles. There are 10 entries with each assigned 168 pounds.

In addition to Golden Miller the stake has attracted Reynoldsdown, winner of the last two Grand Nationals, and Mrs. F. Ambrose Clark's American-owned Kellsboro Jack, also a former winner of the Aintree classic. Neither has been entered for this year's running of the National, however.

Golden Miller has come back in favor of the British racing public by good performances since last season, when he failed to complete the Grand National course. Recently he ran a dead-heat with Paul Mellon's Drinmore Lad at Gatwick over three miles. Drinmore Lad is a Grand National eligible.

Pleads For Unity In Common Task Before Canadians

Rt. Hon. R. B. Bennett Makes Stirring Appeal In First Public Address Since Return.

OTTAWA, Jan. 24.—(CP)—A call for overriding of political partisanship with all its old enmities and vituperations, in the common task of maintaining democracy and freedom was sounded here last night by Rt. Hon. R. B. Bennett.

The problems confronting the people of Canada could not be overstated for their importance to the national life, the Conservative leader declared. They were not problems which could be disposed of merely by saying the country was prosperous or by expanding trade. These, he said, were problems which had to be met in the spirit of Hertzog and Smuts' (Premier J. B. M. Hertzog of South Africa and Vice Premier Christian Smuts), ignoring the divisions of the past.

"Government of, for and by the people" was to continue among men.

In his first public address since returning from a five-months trip around the Empire, Mr. Bennett stressed the conditions of the peoples he met and their relationship to Canada within the Empire.

Two basic ideas had resulted from his trip he said: First, how few people the Dominions had and how necessary it was they should have more if they were to retain their institutional life; secondly, how creditably they were grappling with the question of defence.

"If democracy cannot provide for the cultivation and inhabitation of vast areas which Providence has given to man in trust, then that democracy must give way to people who require those spaces for their own," he warned.

Defence measures were complementary to the idea of collective security, he said which accounted for the great support which South Africa and Australia had given to the League of Nations "because they believe democracy can only exist if the peace of the world is maintained."

"If the League of Nations fails, some other means must be found to maintain the integrity of these people, that their civilization may not die. Above all else has developed a realization of the value of that collective security which is called Commonwealth of Nations called the British Empire."

New Zealand, Mr. Bennett said, had developed above all else a social security that ranks it foremost among the peoples of the world with old-age pensions for all, the 40-hour week, state fire insurance, state life insurance (started when the Government thought private companies charged too much), good banking facilities, government-owned railways, dental and medical clinics. The husbandman insisted co-operation was the only method by which he could hope to succeed, with co-operative creameries, packing plants, fisheries. The country was suffering, however from a lack of population. Like New Zealand, Australia was vitally interested in defence, being in an exposed position, and was meeting the situation in a way which justified their pride in their naval efforts he said.

South Africa, he declared, was "the most interesting country one could well visit."

Highways, railways, were all under centralized control there being no provincial governments such as Canada had. "So they're able to keep the buses off the highways," he laughed.

"They consolidated the railways, 14,000 miles, which last year not only earned interest on every dollar in them but $25,000,000 surplus."

"It's a sample of what is possible under proper conditions. I made a very close study of the railways. The situation, though, is not directly parallel; labor is so cheap there we could not follow their example in that regard."

There were those who became extreme in their working for social security, in both South Africa and Australia. But nothing, he said, was more impressive than to see men and women forget the struggles of 36 years ago in the Boer War and work side by side in the common good.

Their cultural development was in line with their economic development, with magnificent libraries, schools. New Zealand, he said, had more daily papers in proportion to population than any other country in the world. The people were extremely well read.

All this he interpreted as a tribute to responsible government, representative institutions and democracy which these peoples were determined to retain. The compulsory vote in Australia had had a "very salutary effect" on democracy there.

Canada, as the old self-governing Dominion, had been a beacon light to these newer countries which had profited by Canada's mistakes.

"They have been able to escape the pitfalls the sharp conflicts between provinces and Dominion. By co-operation and co-ordination of activities, they are trying to overcome many of the evils of the capitalist system as we know them. Whether with populations so small they will ultimately succeed I am not in a position to say."

The lesson for Canada was the uniting of now divided groups in an effort to cope with basic national problems which threatened democracy itself.

Gruesome Finds By Digby Scallop Fleet

DIGBY, N. S., Jan. 24.—(CP)—Gruesome stories were told today by members of the Digby scallop fleet after their return from the Bay of Fundy dragging grounds.

Captain John Tibbets of the Drager Winnie Flo reported sighting the body of a man Friday night as it drifted with the tide past the little vessel. His crew was unable to recover the body because the drags were down. It was thought to be that of Louis Leblanc, engineer on the Nina L' who fell overboard and drowned Jan. 13.

Another scalloper, the Ronald Eugene raked up a human jaw Friday near the spot where three men were lost last winter when the Fry Me overturned with a strong current. The jaw was identified by Dentists were attempting to identify the jaw by the teeth that remained.

The trial is being held in the elaborate ballroom of Christy days. Amazing was the story of the vast conspiracy ascribed by the prosecution to have been directed by Trotsky.

Scores of persons were killed, the prosecution charged, and much damage caused by sabotage directed by the defendants, the wrecking of trains and mines, explosions in a chemical plant.

"Mr. X" and "Mr. K" of the Japanese and German Intelligence Service were linked with the defendants by allegations they passed on to these Governments valuable military mobilization and industrial secrets. The indictment charged the defendants plotted to spread disease germs throughout Russia in the event of war by Germany and Japan to assist in the overthrow of the Soviet Government.

HALIFAX, Jan. 24.—(CP)—Two-year-old Gordon Barrett died in hospital today from terrible burns on the head, face and body, suffered when he overturned a kettle of boiling water in the kitchen of his home last Wednesday. Standing on a rocking chair near the stove, he had grasped the kettle when the chair began to rock back and he lost his balance.

TERRORIST

Radek was called to the stand to confirm Roman's testimony, and did so with one minor exception. Allegations of intrigue to spread disease germs in war, to overthrow Russia and divide riches of the nation between Japan and Germany were unfolded Saturday as the dramatic trial opened with pleas of guilty from all 17 defendants.

Referring to policies pursued in crises that have arisen since the Japanese invasion of China, he said he feared "we have reached the point where the League cannot be restored to efficiency until recent failures in policy have been liquidated by another war."

The desire of several elements in Canada for a foreign policy of neutrality and isolation was condemned by Professor Corbett as not being consistent with the British nationality of the Dominion or with its place in world commerce.

"To cry peace is no foreign policy," he declared and added he considered isolation or neutrality "an impossible and untenable status."

War Danger Intensified, Professor Says

(C.P. By Guardian's Special Wire) HALIFAX, Jan. 23.—Failure of members of the League of Nations to back the system of collective security had intensified the imminent danger of war, Professor P. E. Corbett, former dean of the McGill University Law School, said here tonight in a public address delivered under the auspices of the Dalhousie University Institute of Public Affairs.

Under existing international relations Mr. Woodsworth's resolution says, Canada should remain strictly neutral regardless of who the belligerents may be and that at no time should Canadian citizens be permitted to make profits out of supplying war munitions or materials.

Furthermore, the Government should try to discover and remove the causes of international friction and social injustice. Questions of war and peace are also the subject of the next resolution. A. A. Heaps (Labor, Winnipeg North), will move that the Government suggest to President Roosevelt of the United States, the desirability of convening a world peace conference.

In the preamble to his resolution Mr. Heaps states there is an alarming international situation that may result in a disastrous war and that the League of Nations has not succeeded in establishing the foundations of permanent peace. He also notes Canada is both an integral part of the British Empire and a neighbor of the United States.

Relief Agencies

Complicating Cincinnati's problem was a cave-in which threatened one of the city's principal thoroughfares just at the time when every available man was desperately trying to lessen the fire-men's work.

In the whole stricken area the Red Cross alone had hundreds of expert relief and rescue workers; volunteers among the citizenry went into uncounted numbers. Red Cross workers concentrated in Ohio, Indiana and Kentucky.

Everywhere in the area rain and snow continued Sunday and some flood experts refused to predict how high the swollen streams might go.

Louisville relief workers fought through rain and slush to rescue marooned families. The water supply was running low and supplies were rationed. Only one power plant remained in operation. The number of homeless was estimated by relief agencies at 30,000. Police were under orders to shoot any looters.

Thousands Marooned
At Frankfort, Ky., the Kentucky River, which was falling yesterday, began to rise again today. Thousands were marooned at Paducah in southwestern Kentucky.

Mayfield was without communication. Many Greenup residents were sent to Ashland when the city's water supply was cut off. Carrolton, flood-bound for more than four days, appealed for food, medical supplies and clothing.

Across the broad expanse of the Ohio, Jeffersonville and New Albany, Indiana, opposite Louisville,

ANCIENT RITES

um during the election, and drawing of lots for cells in the conclava are some of the traditional functions.

One curious task of the cardinals is the breaking of the fisherman's ring taken from the late pope's finger. It is a gold band with an engraving of St. Peter fishing from a boat and records show it was used as a seal as far back as the 13th century. When a new pope is chosen it is restored for him in token of the end of the "widowhood" of the church.

Voting begins after the youngest cardinal deacon drops a double handful of wooden balls into a violet silken bag to select the scrutinizing committee. Only two ballots are taken a day, and they continue until someone receives a two-thirds majority.

After each inconclusive vote the ballots are burned with damp straw, the black smoke from a Vatican chimney indicating the absence of a two-thirds majority. After the successful vote, the ballots are burned without straw—the white smoke announcing the election.

Concluding the long succession of traditional events is the coronation of the new pope. Many attendants dress him for the occasion, placing the papal miter upon him and setting the tall, tri-crowned mitre of cloth of gold on his head. Before the general public sees the pope, he receives the homage of his cardinal in a dramatic session in which each kneels to kiss his slipper. After that certain bishops are allowed to kiss his foot and knee.

Finally comes the coronation itself, a wildly-shouting, milling crowd in St. Peter's square, a glimpse of the new Holy Father and the gleaming, jewel-studded golden tiara carried in on a cushion for him.

The sound of silver trumpets announcing his entrance into the basilica proper and a choir chanting the papal hymn, "Te igitur" ("Thou art Peter") are drowned then in a roar of "Vivati" for "Papa! Papa!"

Don Labbe Seen As Warrington's Next Opponent

BOSTON, Jan. 23.—(CP)—Don Labbe, 158-pound Lewiston, Me., fighter, will be the next opponent of Terrence "Tiger" Warrington, the lapping Liverpool, N.S., light-heavyweight who is casting for a title fight next fall.

Warrington knocked out Ralph Chong, New Orleans Chinese slugger, in the third round of a feature 10-round bout here last night. Chong was unable to answer the bell for the third round after being knocked out seven seconds before the close of the second.

Labbe, a speedy and clever boxer, won by decision on Eddie Carroll, 158, Lowell, Mass., in the eight-round semi-final to the Warrington-Chong scrap.

GOLD PRODUCTION

(By The Canadian Press)
HALIFAX—Gold mines of Nova Scotia produced 11,000 ounces of the precious metal in 1936, according to an official who predicted almost double this amount for 1937. In 1935, a total of 9,000 ounces was mined.

LEADERS DEFEATED

LONDON, Jan. 21.—Wembley Lions, recent leaders of National League hockey, were defeated 3-1 tonight by Brighton Tigers at Brighton. The loss robbed Lions of a chance to the Harringway Rangers for leadership. Wembley Monarchs and Harringway Greyhounds tied 1-1 in another National League game.

They were almost completely under water. Fires were reported to have broken out in Jeffersonville and Lawrenceburg, Ind.

Twenty-five thousand persons were homeless at Portsmouth, O., and officials worked to prevent a possible outbreak of the influenza. The water pumping system was disrupted by high waters at Marietta, Ohio.
