Prices $14.00 to $75.00

Many and varied are the styles and colours now being shown in our new dresses. Slim, straight lines are still in vogue, though they are softened by draperies, pleated tiers, full overbloused effects, flowing sleeves and youthful boleros. Concert At York

Once again our big hall was packed full to the door. From city and country they flocked by the score. The folks that came there, on enjoyment, were bent. And each one agreed that their times were well spent.

As you entered the door, Mr. Brown, you did spy, Who held out his hand, with a look Oh! so shy! I'll now take your money!"

SETTLE WORST SOUR STOMACH

Worst sour risings, belching, gas, bloat disappear, sunk without trace. You feel fine, rested. Nothing more miserable than the blues from acid dyspepsia. Nothing more bracing than the quick action of Pape's Diapepsin. Try it and prove it. Get a 60 cent package at any drug store.

Twenty five if you please.

It surely takes Le'th to collect all the fees! The concert all through was a booming success. And if you weren't there, then you missed it, I guess. Local talent was helped by St. Peter's and "town". All capably managed by Mr. Ham Brown.

Our friend, Mr. Brodie, made the opening speech. In that line there's many a one he could teach. Harry Versey then sang, "My Grey Home in the West". He often has sung but that night he was best.

Then came Mr. Boothroyd's esteemed "better half". Who in her bright reading, furnished many a laugh. Long came Mr. Burdette, the man from "down east". The hit of the evening to say quite the least.

With "Sue" at the organ they made quite a team. And in songs and reciting he proved a real scream. He sang "Harry Lauder" till we had laughing fits. There's no files on Auntie" was one of his hits.

Then came a quartette by four of our Yorkers. When it comes to real music they surely are corkers. There was Mr. Bert Brown and his penial wife. With Harry and Walter who sang for their life. Mr. Boothroyd did sing in a voice rich and true. His voice sounded well and I'm saying so too. The "Uke" was well played by Ed Garnham from town. Who in "Roll 'em girls, roll 'em" fairly brought the house down.

The basso was heard, by that Callaghan Boy. If you really like music then him you'd enjoy. Then the hall went in darkness—on the stage did appear Our friend Willie S. with his club swinging gear. His torch swinging act was the principal part.

Keeping time to the music slipped by our Art. At length came the closing, a chorus by the boys. Their voices are strong so they made a great noise.

The "man from down east" was the chief auctioneer. And was probably the best that was ever seen here. He sold all the boxes in jolly quick time.

When he passed over the money they all looked sublime. Ninety five solid dollars was the sum that was made. And each hall director was agreed that it paid. Then each one did eat, while the ladies served tea. And all got filled up to a wondrous degree.

The social being o'er to our homes we all went. And we were agreed 'twas an evening well spent. JIMMY, York.

TEN-MINUTE SERMONS DURING COAL SHORTAGE

CHRISTOPHER, Eng. Oct 20—Ten-minute sermons are promised by the Rev. W. H. Gay, vicar of the Priory Church, as long as there is a coal shortage. "Extra warm clothing will meet the difficulty," cautions the vicar, telling his flock to prepare for a cold winter. "But, if the congregation would sing more the cold would be defied. I promise myself, and I will ask my colleagues, to deliver ten-minute sermons during the coal shortage." The shortage of fuel, due to the miners' strike, involving nearly a million workers since last May, is causing worry among the townsfolk.

Death of Rev Jos. N. Howe Occurs In Toronto

Rev. H. D. Raymond, Rector of St. Paul's Church, Charlottetown received a telegram yesterday morning from Toronto announcing the lamentable death of Reverend Joseph N. Howe, Rector of Milton Parish.
On Tuesday morning last the late Mr. Howe, accompanied by Mr. Raymond, left for Toronto. At Montreal Rev. M. Pendergast of Toronto met them and he accompanied Mr. Howe to Toronto and Mr. Raymond returned home. Mrs. Howe and their daughter Marjorie also went from here to Toronto at the time.
Some four weeks before his leaving the island, Mr. Howe was, owing to failing health unable to carry on his clerical duties. After consideration they decided to go to Toronto and see their family doctor who had been in this capacity for some time. The telegram states that Mr. Howe's death was the result of inflammation of the brain.
The late Mr. Howe was born in England. He came to Canada about five years ago to train for the Christian ministry. He had previously been engaged in business pursuits for some time. During the time of his training Mr. Howe was employed in some capacity at Haverhill College, Toronto and Milton was his first regular church on completion of his training, where he had been since the first of June last. While taking his college course he was in charge of Christian work at Sunderland, Ontario. Besides Mrs. Howe there are a family of two girls and two boys.
His death will be felt as a distinct loss among the clerical body in this province. Although only a short time at Milton both Mr. Howe, his wife and family regarded themselves to the people of that circuit and the many kindnesses bestowed upon them evidenced how greatly his work and the social qualities of Mrs. Howe and family were appreciated.
The remaining members of the family leave today for Toronto, where it is likely the interment will take place.

EMMA GOLDMAN, ANARCHIST, LIKELY TO BE BARRED FROM STATES

WASHINGTON, Oct. 22.—If Emma Goldman, anarchist, once deported from the United States, desires to return as she has indicated to apply to some United States port of entry, immigration officials said yesterday.
In normal course her application would be denied at the opening convocation of the United Theological College which has been reorganized and will henceforth be known as the United Theological College of the Maritime Provinces. It was formerly conducted under the auspices of the Presbyterian church under the principalship of Rev. Dr. Clarence MacKinnon who retains that position.

And NOW a Casing with a double insulation

The ash pit, fire pot, dome and radiator of Fawcett Furnaces had been the recognized standard for many years. These parts could not be further improved so attention was turned to the casing.
The function of the case is to contain the heat and carry it to the home. The problem has been to do this without wasting heat in the cellar. Many methods have been suggested and after years of experimenting the Fawcett casing is now made with a double insulation. There is a heavy layer of asbestos inside the galvanized iron and inside the asbestos there is a heavy corrugated lining which makes a perfect air space. This combination casing keeps the outside of the casing perfectly cold, which means in a pipeless that circulation is not impeded in any way and all the heat goes to the house. In a pipe furnace it makes the circulation perfect.
For many years Fawcett Furnaces have had an accessory built into them which accomplishes the same result as carburetors.
Whether you want a wood or a coal furnace, we have them.
