Unhealthy Women Lose Color, Constantly Weary, Look Wrinkled, Hollow.

They all get health—Vitality—Vim strength from Ferrozene.

Once you use the celebrated nerve vitalizer and tonic, Ferrozene—once you feel its magic powers, working through your weakened system—then you'll know for sure that health at last awaits you.

So much quicker and surer is Ferrozene to rebuild and restore that thousands use no other medicine.

"Because I am now well," writes Miss I. P. Sinclair, from Sault Ste. Marie, "I feel it my duty to tell every young woman what a benefit it is to me. I was twenty-five years old, my face was hollow and wrinkled—my color was bad and I looked ten years beyond my age. I was nervous and hysterical, couldn't sleep, had no appetite, burst into tears at the least provocation. Then I worried, feared I would go into decline, and was so depressed every morning that life was no longer happy.

"I was astonished at the quick and thorough action of Ferrozene. It gave me permanent strength and vitality, nervous fears disappeared, indigestion and stomach weakness were cured. My sleep returned. I looked better and younger, had clear color. I gained in weight, felt happy, vigorous, strong. It is a year since I first took Ferrozene. It has restored me to health I never knew before and I will continue to recommend it as the grandest tonic and strengthener on earth."

Very few girls and women are so abundant in health as to not require medicine. Nothing excels Ferrozene in supplying strength, blood and nerve power. Not a stimulant, but a nourishing tonic is Ferrozene. 50c. per box or six boxes for $2.50, at all dealers. Try Ferrozene. Do it today.

REDAV DUNNISON GILL
Some Reasons Why it Makes the Best Advertising Medium.

A woman's curiosity to know about society, marriages, births, deaths, forces her to read it.

The Morning Paper is before her all day long, and it is when she is doing her household duties, arranging and improving the appearance of her home, that the missing and necessary articles of furniture, rugs, carpets, curtains or other necessities show up the plainest, and there could be no more opportune time for a dealer to tell about the new designs, the new styles and the bargains offered for the day or week.

In a majority of homes the newspaper is practically the bulk of the reading matter, and the long, all-day life from 6 a. m. to 10 p. m. of The Morning Paper gives not only the housewife but every member of the family an opportunity to read it.

The Morning Paper is read at the breakfast table, again at home at noon, on the trains, in the restaurants. It is read in doctor's offices, professional offices, clubs, hotels, cafes, barber shops. It is read by daylight everywhere you go by both employer and employee.

It is a known fact that throughout the world, possibly with a half-dozen exceptions, the papers with editorial influence and national reputation are Morning Papers.

With these facts in mind, the business man who is looking after the real money-worshipers of the family to interest in his goods will consult his best interests by placing his announcements where the women will read them.

VALEDICTORY DELIVERED AN ENJOYABLE WEEK AT KEITH'S

AT ST. DUNSTAN'S

But we hold that this defect is amply compensated for in other ways. For example, she inculcates the necessity of being guided through life by principles which, to say the least, are in conformity with the Ten Commandments; and this same is more than can be claimed for many of the important universities of North America. A writer in the "Cosmopolitan" Magazine for last month makes the statement in connection with the teaching in the American universities, that in hundreds of class-rooms it is being taught daily that the Decalogue is no more sacred than a syllabus; that immorality is simply an act in contravention of Society's accepted standards; and that conceptions of right and wrong are as unstable as styles of dress. And this statement he fully proves from the written and spoken words of the leading professors in these schools of learning. To cite a few of these at random—Professor Sumner of Yale says "Religion and Philosophy are created by custom and usage and are not, as is popularly believed, the sources and regulators of conduct." Professor Charles Zuehlke of the University of Chicago is authority for the statement that "there can be, and are, holier alliances without the marriage bond than within it," while Professor Edwin Earp of Syracuse University caps the climax by stating that "the ancients and the moderns are alike in their tendency to imagine that God ever turned stone-mason and chiselled commandments on rock." It is quite possible that we, keeping the even tenor of our way in this quiet corner of the world, may be looked upon as slow, or even completely out of date; but even this imputation is preferable to the unenviable distinction we might derive from the discovery that the Ten Commandments had outlived their usefulness.

Another point we claim for our Alma Mater is that she makes us acquire habits of correct thought. All through our course, particularly during our study of philosophy, the immense value of this asset has been impressively impressed upon us. We leave college, it must be admitted, ignorant of many things that we might profitably know; but this defect will be more than offset if we possess the habit of correct thought, which, like charity, "covereth a multitude of sins." Cardinal Newman tells us that his greatest friend was Dr. Whately who first taught him how to think. One of the most requisite qualities in a soldier, in view of the conditions encountered in modern warfare, is the ability to "shoot straight." In view of the present tendencies in modern literature and philosophy, no quality is so important for us as the ability to think straight. There is a certain class of literature at the present time, a lamentable tendency towards superficiality, as well as a tendency on the part of persons very indifferently educated, to set themselves up as authorities on questions that have puzzled the brightest minds ever known. Having plucked some flowers in the garden of literature they proceed to discourse with freedom on the whole anthology of science, having bathed in some of the shallow streams of knowledge they proceed like Canute to command the waters of the "Waste Deep." They usually adopt the novel as a medium through which to disseminate their views, and some of these popular novels contain sound thought that has often been expressed by Martial in a single epigram.

Some people like to see their names in print. A book's a book, although there's nothing in it. The key to correct writing is correct knowledge of the subject treated. "Scientific" recti sapere est principium et finis." This canon of literature is sadly neglected by the easy writers of the present day who so frequently recall to our minds that couplet of Rogers:—

"You write with ease to show you're reading;
Your easy writing is hard reading."

Nor is the cause far to seek. Ever since the day that Dr. Johnson dealt the death-blow to patronage by his crushing letter to Chesterfield, the tendency has been to write what would please, rather than what would instruct, that non-descript patron, the Public. So long as writers could depend for support on the generosity of the friends of real literature they wrote to enlighten rather than to please; but when that support was withdrawn, writers, in order to live by their pens, turned to writing not what they considered proper.

SEVEREST INDIGESTION CURED BY "No. 11,"

Father Morrissey's Stomach Remedy

So many people with Stomach Trouble came or wrote to Father Morrissey that he gave the matter special attention, and devised his "No. 11" Tablets. Each of these tablets will digest 100 pounds of food—a good meal—so that even if the stomach can scarcely act at all, the meal will be digested.

Read how the treatment cured Mr. Gosline:—

Salmon Lake, Nov. 30, 1908.

"I was troubled with indigestion, so severe that I really thought I had cancer of the stomach. I took much doctor's remedies till I was forced to seek another resource, and this was the Rev. Father Morrissey. His treatments worked miracles, until I have been entirely cured, so that now I do not look to the quality of the diet but to the quantity."

J. T. GOSLINE.

No matter what form of Indigestion or Dyspepsia you may have, "No. 11" Tablets will help, if not cure you. See at your dealer's, or from Father Morrissey Medicine Co., Ltd., Chatham, N. B.
