Church, convined at "Where is your brother?" is the challenge, Dr. Rogers said. "You can't have enduring peace or abounding joy until you have a social order based on righteousness," he continued. Every day was giving absolute proof of the truth of that. "Christianity has not been tried and found wanting" as was sometimes said but "has been found difficult and not been tried."

Speaking of religion and its relation to the social order, Dr. Rogers said it was his belief that the Church should not champion any one kind of social system. The world was full of 'isms but he was fully persuaded that no economic theory would ever save society. "Our problem today is not social or economic but moral," the speaker said. "We have to have a lot more changed hearts before we will have a changed world."

All too long had society been content to tone down Christ's teachings to fit the social order, Dr. Rogers believed. "Now we are coming to say, 'tone the order to fit the picture of Christ's teaching.' A transformed society through transformed men and women is our final hope, our glorious task," he concluded.

TO WAGE WAR ON NEW PEST
NELSON, B. C., Oct. 26—British Columbia forest branch officials today awaited the report of Vernon, B. C., entomologists before planning their attack on a new forest pest, destroying standing timber in the West Kootenay district.

Preliminary reports said the hemlock looper—elopha fuscicollis Guen.—had appeared suddenly in the area, killing trees and causing serious fire hazard in the area.

Officials said calcium arsenate would probably be dusted over the district by airplane early next year.

$4,000 Grant To Be Applied To Street Work

Paving Of Water Street West To Be Continued With Provincial Government Assistance.

Mayor Robinson has received word from the Provincial Government that a grant of $4,000 will be given to Summerside for unemployment relief. In view of this grant the Town Council can now carry out the resolution passed at a recent meeting for the paving of Water Street west from the filling station just east of Councilor Grady's store to Northumberland Street. This will link up with the Provincial Government's paving plan (should it go through) to connect up the main highway from the east through to the west. In other years the Government has assisted to the extent of 40 or 50 per cent in the paving of Water Street on account of it linking up with the highway. Other paving will go forward linking up some of the main streets of the town if the weather continues.

tempted to cross the creek to the safety of the International Settlement.

Attempting to block Japanese forces moving southward to close the bottle-neck, Chinese blew up the Chungshan road bridge and sent out snipers to attempt delaying tactics.

Japan's capture of Tazang, key defence point five miles north of Shanghai yesterday after almost a week's heavy pounding, paved the way for the general Japanese advance.

Italian Killed
An Italian grenadier, Antonio Padula, was added to the foreign casualty list when he was fatally injured by an anti-aircraft shell. It was believed he shell had been fired at a Chinese plane that raided Japanese positions across from the Italian-guarded sector.

The Italian died soon afterward in the American marine hospital. General Chiang Kai-Shek, head of the Chinese Government, moved today close to the Shanghai war zone, arriving at Soochow, between Shanghai and Nanking, presumably to bolster Chinese operations personally.

Chinese asserted that Japanese occupation of Tazang, a key to the defence line, cost 12,000 Japanese troops killed in the past three days.

Reports from Tsinanfu, in Shantung Province, said Chinese forces were resisting successfully on that comparatively quiet North China front.

At Peiping, a Japanese communique said Japanese troops launched a general attack near Niangtzekwan, in eastern Shanai Province, through a thick fog blanketing the battlefield. A spokesman expressed optimism that the offensive finally would pierce Chinese defence of Taiyuanfu, the provincial capital.

Chinese air squadrons renewed raids on Japanese concentrations down the Whangpoo River, causing numerous fires. Japanese war craft answered with a bombardment of Chapel that started a blaze in the midst of the Chinese defence positions.

the House of Commons and foreign diplomats.

Their daughters, Princess Elizabeth, heir-presumptive to the Throne, and Princess Margaret sat in the Lord Great Chamberlain's box where they were the first to make obeisance to the King as he entered.

"Growing Concern"
The King delivered the speech slowly, with long pauses. He expressed his ministers' "growing concern" over continuance of the Spanish civil war and declared: "It is their aim to do everything which lies in their power to assist towards restoration of peace among the Spanish people. They believe that strict application of the international policy of non-intervention in Spain will materially contribute to this end."

An expression of hope that nations now members of the League of Nations would work closely with Great Britain in the Brussels Conference opening Nov. 3 to deal with the Chinese-Japanese conflict was seen in his reference to policy in the Far East.

"My position in the Far East will continue to engage the earnest attention of my government who will persist in their policy of attempting, in cooperation with other governments, whether members of the League of Nations or not, to mitigate the suffering caused by the conflict and to bring it to a conclusion."

Royal Visits
He announced he had invited two kings to visit him, Leopold of Belgium next month and Carol of Rumania next spring, and said he himself would leave with "interest and pleasure" to the time when he could visit "my Indian Empire."

Reviewing domestic measures to be laid before parliament, the speech made note that the policy of improving housing conditions would be pushed energetically.

Dense throngs witnessed the state procession of the King and Queen in their gold and glass coach from Buckingham Palace to the Houses of Parliament and back.

The Queen wore a gold lame gown with the blue ribbon of the Order of the Garter; the King wore the scarlet and gold uniform of a Field Marshal. The dark green ribbon of the Order of the Thistle was across the tunic. He was bare-headed during the drive.

The Queen's hour in the afternoon for Sandringham, their country home in Norfolk, as Parliament launched into debate on the King's speech.

Chamberlain Indisposed
Sir John Simon, Chancellor of the Exchequer, led in the House of Commons for Prime Minister Chamberlain, who suffered a gout attack.

Clement Attlee, leader of the (Labor) Opposition proposed a motion for formal debate next Friday. It said: "The House regrets that Your Majesty's advisers, by their weak and vacillating policy in foreign affairs—which has gravely imperilled the prospects of lasting peace and national security—have betrayed the principles of the League of Nations which have seriously diminished British influence; and by their lack of any constructive and fundamental proposals for raising the standard of life of the people or for establishing economic prosperity up to a just and enduring basis, have forfeited the confidence of this House."

Sir John Simon replying to Mr. Attlee's remarks, said opposition criticism of the government's foreign policy had already been voiced at the last foreign policy debate in the House. "It appears to me our difficulties are very largely arising from hard and concrete facts and relations, which are not to be disposed of by general phrases."

He stressed the progress which the government was making in the realm of rearmament, pointing particularly to anti-aircraft defence. The government "were sacrificing nothing" of the program of social improvements, he said.

Urges Lower Trade Barriers
Sir Archibald Sinclair, Liberal leader, urged lowering of international trade barriers.

"Always we have been told that we would lower tariffs if only the wicked foreigners would do so," declared Sir Archibald. He said the

Find Death Due To Alcoholic Poisoning

Stanley C. Wedge, 37, found dead in a room of a residence at Summerside October 10, came to his death by "alcoholic poisoning brought about by over indulgence in said beverage," a coroner's jury decided last night.

A report submitted by Dr. R. A. H. MacKeen, Saint John, N. B., provincial pathologist, and read by Dr. B. C. Simpson, revealed the deceased had consumed two and one half times a fatal dose of alcohol. The report also showed that there was 1.23 per cent ethyl alcohol in the blood.

As a result of examination Dr. MacKeen said in his opinion death was due to alcoholic poisoning to the ingestion of a large amount of strong rum in such a short period of time. It was generally considered that 7 to 1 per cent alcohol in the blood was invariably fatal.

According to evidence submitted previously at the inquiry the deceased drank a "teddy"—12 ounces of rum within 10 minutes. Dr. Simpson, reporting on an autopsy, said he found no marks of violence on the body and no fracture of the skull. Corporal Lines and Corporal Trenuth of the R.C.M.P., Acting Police Chief White and Dr. McPhee also gave evidence tonight.

Chief White stated that he was directed to a pile of lumber at the back of premises in the west end, when he asked John LeBlanc if there was any of the rum left in the same receptacle as that which was given to Wedge. LeBlanc pointed out a can and afterwards at the R.C.M.P. headquarters he made a statement which was taken in writing that it was the can from which the rum given to Wedge was taken. It was from that can the sample sent to Saint John was taken.

Dr. MacPhee in his evidence said that he was called at 12.25 Sunday morning, Oct. 11, to premises on the corner of St. Stephen and First Street, Summerside, and found one, Stanley C. Wedge, dead. He would say he had only been dead a few hours, explaining that rigor mortis, which usually takes 5 or 6 hours, had not set in. He also stated that he helped Dr. Simpson with the post-mortem examination. S

156,157. The Government's balance sheet showed an increase in the gross debt of the province of $5,020,700. Assets increased by $13,230,180 and liabilities by $11,644,197.

In a new statement put into the public accounts Mr. Hart said the aggregate revenue surpluses over ordinary expenditures for the three years ending March 31 were $6,472,373. Out of this a debt maturity of $3,500,000 was paid May 15, 1936, leaving $2,972,373 to be applied to relief costs.

The Throne speech, which stressed general improvement in business conditions during the past year, said a new department of trade and industry would be established to coordinate activities now carried on by various departments. It would concentrate upon development of the tourist industry and assist industry generally in "expanding business and expanding trade."

Amendments would be made to various mining acts, the speech said, to meet changing conditions and the acts would be consolidated and simplified. Administration of the Securities Act would be improved.

Before the House adjourned until Thursday a motion of tribute to the late Hon. Simon Fraser Tolmie, former premier of British Columbia and one-time Federal Agriculture Minister, was passed by a silent, standing vote of the 48 members.

The long adjournment was made to permit Premier Pattullo to go to Vancouver to receive an honorary LL.D. degree from the University of British Columbia in Vancouver tomorrow.

United States had declared its willingness to do so, and that France, Italy and many other countries "have abolished or enlarged quotas and lowered tariffs as a result of the current agreement last year. This country has done nothing in that direction."

"It is time the government moved and gave to the country, the United States and the world, assurance of their sincerity in wishing to abolish quotas, lower tariffs and revive international trade," he said.

James Maxton, independent Labor, expressed surprise that Palestine had not been mentioned in the Throne Speech, declaring "the most important part of the government's general responsibility—yet unmentioned every day—are the acts of violence in the Holy Land, and the steps taken to preserve order, going far beyond the decent necessities of the case."

The Throne Speech said legislation would be introduced during the new session to provide for unification of the coal royalties under national control and to further the reorganization of the coal industry. It added a measure for improving distribution of electricity would be submitted to Parliament.

PLANES NEEDED FOR GOLD MINING

VANCOUVER, Oct. 26—(CP)—W. H. Lawson, manager of the Salamaua, New Guinea, branch of the Bank of New South Wales, said during a recent visit here that airplanes were largely responsible for development of the Morobe gold mining area in the mandated territory.

Lawson said overland transportation was impossible in the wild country. "Without the airplane it is doubtful if there would be any gold mining," he said. "For some time there has been talk of running a road through to the coast from Morobe, but our rainfall is so heavy I think the upkeep would be almost prohibitive."

3 DODGE MODELS FOR 1938 SEEN AS NEW ACHIEVEMENTS IN MOTOR CAR VALUE

Announcement description of the three 1938 Dodge passenger cars models will make interesting reading to the many followers of this popular make, especially in view of the fact that these three new lines offering twenty body selections in all, is said to incorporate some forty-seven progressive improvements affecting appearance, comfort and performance. Probably the outstanding improvement is the greater ease of control. Steering is easier, clutch pedal pressure is still further reduced and the starter pedal operation is much easier. Changes in the transmissions make gear shifting easier. Altogether they make driving a relaxation.

The improvements, designed for further increased safety, comfort

Bodies Made Sound-Proof
An important detail in the silencing of Dodge cars is the unique method by which the bodies are mounted on the chassis. The system involves the use of chassis outriggers equipped with rubber spools by which chassis and body are kept from making actual metal-to-metal contact. This method is said to be signally successful in preventing road noises and operating sounds from reaching the body and occupants of the car.

Further contributing to riding comfort are a highly developed weight distribution and the successful synchronized action of specially long, semi-elastic springs fashioned of thinned-down specially arranged leaves of Amola steel and economy, involve a formidable list of subassemblies and parts ranging all the way from a new floating-power engine mounting to a fifty per cent reduction in the pressure now necessary to operate the self starter.

In the body interiors one notices an especially fine method of upholstery and trim and the use of new fabrics. Unusually luxurious seat cushions are complemented by body-contoured back cushions. The mechanism by which the front seats may be adjusted for different drivers now has its operating lever on one side, in convenient reach of

The engine is placed well forward. Front and rear seats are also advanced. Rear seat passengers ride ahead of the rear axle and the weight carried on the springs is evenly shared by front and rear. This even division of the load makes it possible to give front and rear springs the same resiliency; this means that the springs deflect and recover at the same rate, without subjecting the car body and the occupants to "pitching" when going over rough roads. The cushioning effect of the springs is further supplemented by four telescoping hydraulic shock absorbers of the driver's left hand. As the front seat moves forward it also rises, bringing shorter drivers closer to the control pedals and elevating them to a higher position in which they retain full vision of surroundings.

The employment of the hypoid rear axle drive not only eliminates the propeller shaft tunnel, but produces a level floor in rear compartments; mechanically, the hypoid rear axle combines the strength of the bevel-gear drive with the quietness of the worm drive.

Safety and Convenience Lead

Tilting foot rests in the rear compartment, high-power dome lights in the rear body panels, defrosting outlets in the instrument panels, deep floor carpets, smoothly trimmed side walls and "roofs" evidently justify the term "luster lounge," by which the manufacturer describes the latest Dodge interiors.

Safety and convenience seem to have been guiding motives in the design of the instrument panels of the new Dodge models. The heat indicator, ammeter dial, fuel and oil gauges, are grouped in a circular layout and placed beside the speedometer so that the driver, in reading the instruments, does not have to turn his eyes out of the direction in which the car travels. switches, control knobs, glove compartment and ash tray handles, even the ignition lock, are sunk into the instrument panel so that none of them can act as obstructions.

Engine is 67 H. P.

The engine in the Custom Model develops a maximum of 87 horsepower. Piston Displacement 211 cu. in. Dodge DeLuxe and Dodge Six models develop 82 horsepower. Piston displacement 201.3 cu. in. Engine features like the full-length water jackets, steel valve inserts, pressure lubrication, aluminum pistons, automatic choke and spark advance are continued even in modified forms, in the 1938 Dodge series. The modifications include such details as a new spool-shaped floating-power engine mounting, a rubber-cushioned impulse neutralizer, an exhaust silencer of new construction, and a new-type compression ring in the pistons, and others.

Increased Braking Power
While leaving engine power and car speed practically unchanged Dodge engineers have boosted stopping power by increasing the diameter of the air-cooled brake drums on the Custom Models from 10 inches to 11 inches. The ribbed drums are of special cast iron having a high friction coefficient and a rapid cooling rate. Closer spacing of the front brake drums further contributes to smoothness of operation.
