HOME MEDICINE CHEST

Every home needs a medicine chest as there are likely to be many minor accidents and ailments in even a well conducted home. In the chest it is wise to keep only medicines that are needed in the common ill. If the medicine is not kept in a definite place it is often hard to locate in case of an emergency. Then, if there are children, the desire to know what is inside a bottle will somewhat cause illness or even death. A box measuring 10 1/2 x 4 1/2 inches will hold the necessary medicine and will keep the medicine away from childish hands. It is safe and wise to label every bottle.

The following medicines should be found in every home medicine chest: Alcohol, used externally for strains, sprains and bruises; aromatic spirits of ammonia, a stimulant used in fainting when added to water; castor oil, a mild purge; powdered mustard, one teaspoonful in a glass of lukewarm water to cause vomiting, and syrup of ginger, for cramps in the stomach; syrup of ipecac, used to cause vomiting and especially useful in cases of croup; carbolic vaseline; talcum powder; white castile soap; absorbent cotton (one-half pound); six gauze roller bandages; for slight injuries of the skin; pair of scissors, teaspoon; two bent glass drinking tubes; fountain syringe with glass points; cold cream or hand lotion for chapped hands; lip salve, equal parts of lanolin and vaseline.

WHAT HE IS FOR.

John D. Rockefeller congratulated on his recent $5,000,000 gift to the Red Cross, said in New York: "Thank you for your congratulations. So many people, you know, take my giving as a matter of course. It rather puts me in a position of the divine. He was very charitable, and a woman said one day to one of his aged pensioners: "Wasn't it kind of Dr. Fifthly, on hearing you were ill, to walk six miles to your cottage in all this heat with a big basket of fruit and port wine and chicken and coffee?" "The old woman frowned in puzzled surprise. "Kind?" she said. "Why, what's he for?"

Poor Dear.

Mr. Trotter (to himself) As I shall be at the office until 9 o'clock this evening, I think I'll send Alice a telegram explaining matters. As he enters the house at 10 o'clock his wife of a month throws herself into his arms. "Oh Tom," she weeps, holding out a brown envelope, "this horrid telegram came this morning, and I've been afraid to open it lest it should contain bad news. What in the world has delayed you so?"

Miscalled.

"Any complaints, corporal?" asked the colonel, making one morning personal inspection. "Yes, sir. Taste that, sir," said the corporal. "Why," said the colonel, "that's the best soup I ever tasted." "Yes, sir," said the corporal, "and the cook wants to call it coffee."

Successful Hair.

"Your hair is coming out on top, sir." "Then I envy it"

A NEGRO'S POEM.

G. D. Frazy, a private in one of the Negro regiments, and a contributor to the Dodger, has become famous at the cantonment for his verse, "Ise Gwine to Shave de Kishah By and By." The poem reads: As a sojor, I'm a dandy, Wid a razah, I am handy And de Kishah, he had bettah min, his eye. For Ise gwine to cross de ocean, When de ahmy gets in motion, And Ise gwine to shave de kishah, by and by.

Now yo bet he'll not be grinnin', When his face I gets to skinnin', And his har and whiskers da begins to fly, You can fet yo bottom dollah, Dat I'll make him whoop and hollah, Wid my trusty Wade and Butcher, by and by.

And while I am a-shavin', I will nebbber heed his tavin' Or his promise for his meanness to atone, I will send him into Hades, And den he can fight de debbil for his throne.

Dar I hope da'll fight each udder Till de rascals both will smudder, Wid de brimstone and de fish, down below.

And forever keep a rostin', And a sizzlin' and a bostin', Den a peaceful worl' some happiness will know.

Dat will end dis awful killin', And dis danky will be willin', To come back to Unce Sam across de foam.

Wid no kishah, and no debbil, We can lib upon de lebbil, And de po folks ober yander hab a home.

"ON THE FIELD OF BATTLE—DEAD!"

(Mrs. VanRenssaler in Atlantic Monthly.) The word has come—on the field of battle, DEAD. Sorrow is mine, but there is no more dread,

I am his mother. See, I do not say I was; he is, not was, my son. Today He rests, is safe, is well; he is at ease.

From pain, cold, thirst and fever of disease, And horror of red tasks undone or done, Now he has dropped the load he bore my son,

And now my heart is lighted of all fears, Sorrow is mine and streams of lonely tears; But not too heavy for the carrying is The burden that is only mine, not his.

MANANA

Columbia University Bulletin My friend, have you ever heard of the town of Y-w-n. On the banks of the river Slow, Where blooms the wreatheaway flower fair, Where the Sometimeprother scents the air And the soft Goeasys grow?

It lies in the valley of Whatstheuse, In the province of Lettherside; That tired feeling is native there, It's the home of the listless idler, Where the Puttofs abide.

The Puttofs never make up their mind Intending to do it tomorrow, And so they delay from day to day, Till energy dwindles and hopes decay, And their days are full of sorrow.

A HINDRANCE

An army officer who served in the Spanish war tells of a New York regiment, many of whose members were recruited on the East Side. They were sporting for a fight, and it became necessary to post guards to preserve order.

A big husky Bowery recruit, of pugilistic proportions, was put on the outside and given special orders to see that quiet reigned, and above all things, if trouble came his way, no to lose possession of his rifle.

Soon a general row began, growing in proportions as the minutes passed. The soldier walked his post nervously without interrupting, until the corporal of the guard appeared on the scene with reinforcements.

"Here said he, why didn't you put a stop to this fighting?" The sentry, balancing his rifle on his shoulder, raised his arms to the correct boxing position and replied: "Shure, phwat could I do wid dis gun in me hands?"—Harper's

ALL TRADES OPENED TO RETURNED MEN M. H. C. Perfects Plans Which will Make Factories Training Centres

There are now 39 different vocations being taught in the vocational training centres of the Military Hospitals Commission linked across Canada.

This number will be increased indefinitely to embrace the whole category of industries in Canada if necessary when the present plans of the Commission to place men needing to learn new trades by reason of their injuries, in the factories have been put into operation.

The co-operation of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association has made it possible for the Commission to offer the men this inestimable advantage of working under actual industrial conditions in learning their new trades.

MATTER OF IDENTITY

There is a song in the alley just out of sight of my window. I do not know if it is an awful noise or sweet music. I cannot tell until I find whether it is my neighbor's child or my own. Their voices are so much alike.

Irishman who had only been here a few days was invited to take an automobile ride with a friend. They were going through a country road at a high speed when a tariff policeman, on the lookout for speeders, gave chase on his motorcycle. He caught up with them and announced: "You're pinched for speeding." "Pinched for speeding?" repeated the Irishman. "Begorra, wasn't yez goin' as fast as us yourself?"

PROVINCIAL SUPPORT ASSURED "K" UNION. Premier Foster Promises M. H. C. Every Assistance in Work Of Training Disabled Men.

The province of New Brunswick is ready to lend every possible assistance to the Military Hospitals Commission in the work of re-training the returned soldiers for civil life and profitable occupation.

This fact was assured when Premier Foster received Mr. T. B. Kidner, the vocational secretary of the M. H. C. Prof Sexton the principal vocational officer for eastern Canada, Major W. J. Osborne, O.C. of K. Unit, and Lieut. Boyd, the vocational officer for New Brunswick, in conference upon the plans. Premier Foster expressed himself as greatly pleased with the work of the Commission, and promised every assistance in his power as soon as the old Government House at Fredericton, which is being renovated for a hospital and training school, has been completed. Work is proceeding night and day, and the building will soon be ready for occupation. Provision for the training of tubercular patients will be made in the sanatoria at River Glade and East St. John, which are now being enlarged by the Military Hospitals Commission for that purpose.

Trades in Factories.

Trades which cannot be taught of readily in the school classes will be taught in factories through the arrangement of Mr. W. E. Segsworth, vocational administrator of the Commission with manufacturers.

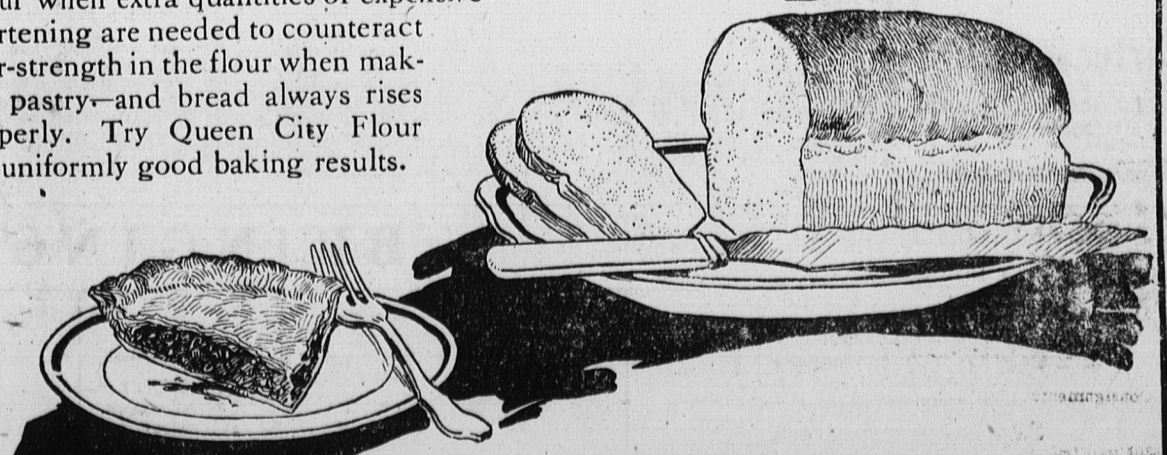

Lieut. Boyd, who has been placed in charge of the work in New Brunswick, is a returned soldier particularly fit to take hold of this work. His appointment is in accordance with the policy of the Commission to appoint returned men to such positions in each case in which their qualifications are such as to fit them for the work.

Don't Use Haphazard Blends

HOW can anyone depend upon getting, always, good bread or pastry if one's flour varies from time to time in strength and composition? The composition of wheat changes from time to time. A blended flour may be all right one time and all wrong next time, due to the changes in the wheat. Most millers have no means of correcting these changes. The result is a haphazard blend. Our completely equipped testing laboratory finds out first what is IN the wheat. Then it is easy to maintain the absolute uniformity of our famous

QUEEN CITY FLOUR

Use our flour. Then you can always be sure of happy results. It always contains just the correct amount of Ontario winter wheat for flavor, flaky texture and whiteness in your pastry—always exactly the right proportion of Manitoba spring wheat for fine big loaves of nourishing, delicious, flaky bread. No occasions occur when extra quantities of expensive shortening are needed to counteract over-strength in the flour when making pastry—and bread always rises properly. Try Queen City Flour for uniformly good baking results.
