Unexpected Death Of Leslie Morrison, Etherslie, Yesterday

Many friends throughout the Province learned with regret of the passing of Mr. Leslie Morrison, whose death occurred at his home at Etherslie on Monday morning, Mr. Morrison had been ill about a week and his death was quite unexpected. Mr. Morrison, who was about 55 years of age had been injured in a car accident last November when the car in which he was returning to his home from Summerside overturned. Mr. Morrison was a patient in the hospital for some time but never fully recovered.

He was a man of high standing in the district and took a great interest in the affairs of the community. He was a faithful member of the United Church at Etherslie. He leaves a wife and two daughters at home, also two sisters, Mrs. Frank Fraser, Alberton; Mrs. Major Taylor, Hamilton; and another, William, in the United States.

The funeral takes place on Wednesday at 2 p.m. from his late residence to the United Church. S

That Body of Hours

By James W. Barton, M.L.A.

A CALL TO ARMS
An army, poor in finances but rich in fighting spirit, has been organized in every State of the Union and the District of Columbia. Women are the warriors because they are fighting to protect other women, who, after going through the ordinary hardships of life together with the special hardships of motherhood, are then threatened by an enemy who fights in the dark and not in the open.

I refer to cancer. The Women's Field Army of the American Society for the Control of Cancer, finishing each year of its fight against the "killer" by a special drive to continue to increase its knowledge and to increase its membership.

"Women suffer more from cancer than do men; this disease killed more women in 1935 between the ages of forty and sixty-five than any other disease. Yet the types of cancer to which women are most prone—cancer of the uterus and of the breast—are, in seventy to eighty per cent of cases, curable, if taken in time. To-day throughout the world only twenty per cent of these cases are being cured."

contrast to the attitude taken last Friday by Justice Minister Lapointe, senior cabinet representative of that province. Mr. Lacombe (Lib. Quebec) and Mr. Raymond (Lib. Ontario) both took the stand and Canadians should not engage in or prepare for any war outside Canada. Mr. Lacombe urged that Canada should not be considered even a source of supply for Great Britain in time of war since that would bring reprisals and draw Canada into the conflict.

Mr. Raymond warned Canada's participation would disrupt national unity. Not a drop of Canadian blood should be shed on any foreign soil. Canada had no foreign commitments, no colonies or merchant marine to defend and had no cause to become embroiled in any foreign conflict.

Mr. Douglas (C.P. Weyburn) and Mr. Johnston (S.C. Bow River) urged an embargo against shipments of war materials abroad. "I agree a mad dog is loose in Europe," said Mr. Douglas, "but I submit we gave that mad dog teeth."

something more than a mere survey to ascertain conditions. "Many of us," he said, "know the conditions without a survey. It surrounds us on all hands. Much time can be wasted by preliminaries. I have some ideas on the subject but it would take too much time, and all the members of the Government might go to sleep, if I attempted to deal with them."

Hon. J. A. Campbell
Hon. John A. Campbell said he had not intended to speak on the resolution, but as he was the second under the impression might get around that he was "asleep" if he did not say something. "Perhaps on some occasions," he added, "it is better for a fellow to be asleep. If a man is asleep he is not doing any harm or laying himself open to criticism of any kind."

A certain impression, Mr. Campbell continued, will go out to the country as to the great advantage of this resolution. Some young men will be thinking that they will be given a farm for nothing and provided with machinery and stock. But that was not the idea. The main object was to help young men who are unemployed, of which we have a large number in this province for whom the outlook is not very bright.

"Lots of money," he said, "is being spent to encourage tourists to come to this Province, in order that they will spend large sums of money here, but there is a small amount to help our young people along."

"Sometimes there are remarks made here that do not altogether agree with the essence of this resolution," Mr. Campbell added. It was all right to discuss trade handicaps and to find out where farmers had made a failure of their business; but after all it was only a matter of making a living in any case, and he believed the young man who is anxious to earn a livelihood can do so by working a farm, equal to anything else.

Provisions are made for other classes and occupations; the Government will advance money at reasonable rates in such cases, but there was no provision of this kind for the farmer. Mr. Campbell continued. Why should not the farmer be in a position to borrow money at a low rate? Why should not the Government come to the rescue and advance money?

The Provincial Department of Agriculture, he said, was spending a lot of money and not seeing very much return. He believed it would be a good thing if the Department undertook to place a number of idle young men on farms, and saw that they had the proper machinery and stock.

Mr. George E. Saville, Fifth Kings, agreed that it was not necessary to have any survey. The members could all give the Minister information with regard to their districts.

A great many farmers, he said, do not realize the advantage of a small garden, properly tilled, which should supply the needs of a large family. There were few farmers today who could go into a hardwood forest and cut down the trees and clear the land.

Perhaps we have set a higher standard of living today than it is possible for many farmers to achieve.

As an example of intensive cultivation Mr. Saville cited the Nile Valley which was only four times as large as Prince Edward Island, but which at one time supported 20,000,000 people and was also the granary of Rome. "And the people found time to build the pyramids."

He advocated co-operative effort in fruit growing, emphasizing the advantage of concentrating on a few standard varieties of apples. The Government was suggested might buy young fruit trees and distribute them. They might also bonus cheese production.

Just saw where dairy butter in Saint John is selling as low as fifteen cents a pound, Mr. Saville continued. "Everybody knows that there is no money in that." By diverting dairy production to cheese, the butter surplus problem would be remedied, he suggested.

Another means by which the Department of Agriculture could help the farmers was in the distribution of ammonia. Mr. Saville said the suggested distribution of about 10,000 bags. This would increase the production of hay by 8,000 or 10,000 tons.

In conclusion he said that sometimes people do not realize when they are well off, and that many farmers are getting along nicely who imagine they are still going through hard times.

Mr. Acorn
Mr. H. H. Acorn (First Kings) began his remarks with a humorous story which he hoped "might relieve the tedious and weary wake up some of our Government members who are accused of being asleep."

As an example of overcrowding he cited the teaching profession. He recalled that he had seen a plan two years ago that we have many vacant farms which could be purchased very cheaply, and that the Minister of Agriculture, during the time of the teaching profession, had submitted it to the Dominion Government for the purchase of these farms. He was glad that some action was at last being considered in this regard.

The resolution, however, did not go far enough. It only provided for a survey during the coming year, which means that another year will be wasted before anything concrete can be done in the field—and that is a pretty expensive article today. Some of our agricultural men, he thought, should go out and plead with the young people to practice more economy.

"Tell a young fellow to grease his boots today, and he doesn't know what you are talking about," Mr. McPhee said. "He would know if you told him to blacken them."

"The gait that we are going at has got to halt," he continued. Referring again to the younger generation, he said "like the cricket, they don't think of providing."

A lot of people got seed grain from the Government last year, he said, and quite a number of them cultivated their land. They didn't look after it in time. What was the good of that? (Applause.)

Where a farmer had two sons and was not able to buy extra land and if he was a good little man, the Government could advance the father some money, Mr. McPhee suggested. In other cases it might be a good plan to place a dozen young men on farms in one vicinity where they could use the same machinery. It should not be necessary to buy much machinery for a young man starting out.

Mr. H. H. Cox
It is estimated that we have 600 farms in the Province, said Mr. H. H. Cox, Second Kings. "I am sure with four sons can get along very well with one; the rest are really a care on the father." "There is thing to do, and was told the first thing would be to make a survey. The Dominion Government have been doing that in certain areas in Western Canada, and would willingly undertake a survey here when they could get around to it.

"I gave this information to the Minister of Agriculture here," Mr. LePage said, "and he has been working at it, but up to the present time he has not been able to get things to a stage where a survey could be started."

The departmental survey, he explained, would include analysis of the soil.

He agreed with the last speaker that we must have some action soon. A start might be made with say, fifty vacant farms, which could be purchased very cheaply. Fertilizer and lime would be required, also improved stock, machinery, etc. A man should be in a position to pay back that loan within forty or fifty years.

It was essential also that there should be competent supervision. It should not be difficult to obtain a competent young college graduate for this purpose. If the scheme was operated properly, in the course of ten or fifteen years the greater part of our unproductive farms would be brought into production. A plan of this kind, Mr. LePage added, was about the only thing he knew that would "keep Prince Edward Island going."

Mr. Angus MacPhee
Mr. Angus MacPhee, Second Kings, thought the future was brighter than it was a few years ago due to the King Government's trade expansion policies. He did not think our farmers were suffering from want of markets. We had splendid prices for good many products. He cited potatoes, beef, eggs and fowl. There was great fear in some quarters that the dairy industry would be ruined, but Mr. MacPhee did not think so.

One of the reasons for the great increase in butter production last year was the very favorable grass season, which meant low production cost. He did not think we ever produced butter that paid better than last summer, due to the abundance of grass.

Mr. MacPhee expressed some doubt about the wisdom of "putting men on farms when you have to finance them." He had never yet seen a man make a profit if he was given money to carry on in any case. The problem resolved itself into getting the right men on the vacant farms. It was possible to see so many of them.

The young people today, Mr. MacPhee declared, are "terribly extravagant." Their forefathers took more care of a wheelbarrow than they do of a car. They are willing to see so many of them.

Such assistance can no doubt be obtained from the Trade and Commerce Department at Ottawa and from the many Canadian and British Commercial Agents stationed in every country into which we are likely to make shipments. Enquiries from distant parts, however, take time and still further time would be required to have the produce prepaid in a manner to suit the foreign buyer.

Space will not permit of going further into detail. The object of this letter will, however, have been satisfied if our Government, our business men in Charlottetown, Summerside and elsewhere and our local farmers will without loss of time give the matter practical consideration.

As the question is one that affects the whole Island the Government will naturally be expected to take the first step.

harbour, there will be ample time in the interim in which to make the necessary plans and preparations.

It is to be hoped that such a feeling will not become general and so many things will have to be done, some of them of a truly radical nature, that it is more than likely that the two years will be found to be all too short for the purpose.

In touristy simple ocean excursions from American cities such as New York and Boston could be arranged for, but they would be of little value to the general public standpoint. What we want is that ocean vessels will bring large numbers of tourists to the Island to stay with us for weeks and months, in which event our ability to provide adequate and satisfactory accommodation would become a moot serious consideration.

In the supplying of freight tonnage outward and the obtaining of orders for farm and fishery products abroad the undertaking is of a still more complex nature and is one that will call for close study and in most cases for practical advice from men of wide experience.

Such assistance can no doubt be obtained from the Trade and Commerce Department at Ottawa and from the many Canadian and British Commercial Agents stationed in every country into which we are likely to make shipments. Enquiries from distant parts, however, take time and still further time would be required to have the produce prepaid in a manner to suit the foreign buyer.

Withdraws Motion

Mr. Eden signified his renewed faith in the Government by withdrawing a motion he and 33 others gave notice of introducing, calling for an all-party government and conscription of the national manpower, industry and agriculture.

While Mr. Chamberlain was speaking in the House, Colonel Beck arrived for vital three-day conversations on the British-French pledge to help Poland defend her independence. The British Prime Minister announced the pledge to the Commons last Friday.

The efforts to erect a barrier of anti-aggression nations were reaching a delicate stage. The chief difficulty was to give Rumania a British military pledge without affronting Hungary—closely bound to Poland. Hungary stands between Germany and King Carol's country of rich wheat-fields and oil wells and a British promise to defend Rumania's frontiers might imply either that Hungary might attack Rumania or that Germany might march through Hungary.

Furthermore, neither Poland nor Rumania is eager to undertake too close association with Soviet Russia. Rumania holds a precarious position in the Balkans.

Diplomats said solution to this problem would be discussed with Colonel Beck and with Rumania through the British Legation in Bucharest. The only possibility, they said, might be to link Rumania to the "Halk Hitler" bloc by extending the Polish-Rumanian treaty against Russian aggression.
