

Take no chances—Use Helmex Capsules!

The safest, most efficient and least expensive capsule for ROUND and HOOK worms in foxes on the market. Made in Canada

- 1. The Helmex Capsules eliminate all danger of aphyllaxia in case a capsule breaks in the mouth of the fox.
- 2. They may consequently be given in a small piece of meat, and need not be administered by hand, making the catching and handling of the fox unnecessary. (This, of course, does not apply to small pups.)
- 3. They are not absorbed by the system, and therefore do not injure the internal organs, as for instance liver and lungs.
- 4. They may safely be given to pregnant vixens, if necessary, without fear of abortion, provided they are given in a piece of meat.
- 5. They are guaranteed to remove ROUND and HOOK worms completely.
- 6. They require no laxative with after treatments.

small parcels of 15,000 to 40,000 acres. Various industrial undertakings were begun, including several sugar factories and dairies.

When the present Prince Paul (he is now 29) inherited, he began liquidating these separate enterprises and bringing the entire estate back under one administration. His hobby is rationalization of agriculture and applying industrial methods wherever possible. He sides it hard. He takes no active part in politics, or in society; lives quietly in his castle at Odenburg; plays the piano for amusement.

Prince Paul is connected with no other large industry or bank outside his directorship in the Hungarian National Bank. He carries social insurance for most of his employees, builds schools and gymnasiums for them. An exact estimate of his wealth in cold dollars and cents is difficult, due to the ramified nature of his holdings and the present fluctuations of market and land values.

Second Croesus. Second, but rather far down the list, comes 80-year-old Prince Tassilo Festetics, one of the most exclusive of Hungarian aristocrats, owner of some 140,000 acres. The elderly Prince devotes little energy to the administration of his estates, but he finds time for hunting on an active scale nearly every day, even in winter. He always travels in a special train, and when he arrives at his home in Keszthely where he lives like a sovereign, a red carpet must be unrolled for his entrance. Prince Tassilo takes no part in politics. When the land reform laws cut some 20,000 acres of his holdings from him, he did not contest it in court, nor protest. Only once in recent years has he been forced to emerge from his isolation. When the Hungarian Communists temporarily confiscated his entire holdings just after the war, he quit the country as a simple third-class passenger in the only ordinary train he had ridden in years. Today, he is once again installed in his isolation, which he has preferred for most of his life, a dying type of the old Hungarian aristocracy.

THE WORLD'S RICHEST MEN (By Georg Kaldor, United Press Staff Correspondent) BUDAPEST, Mar. 22.—Other countries may have a hard time putting their finger on their richest citizens, but in Hungary, it is easy; there is only one. He is a young Prince Paul Esterhazy, owner of a modest plot of some three hundred odd thousand acres, or about one-sixtieth of the total area of the country. Administration of this little parcel, together with a few factories, small railroads and other enterprises thrown in, takes quite a bit of Prince Paul's time, and outside of indulging his fondness for music, he devotes most of his energies to the land. The Esterhazy estate cannot be approached, for size, by any other holding in Hungary.

Pre-War Acreage. Before the war, and the land reform legislation which followed, it comprised some 600,000 acres. Back in 1860, during the ownership of an earlier Prince Paul, who was at one time Foreign Minister and later Minister of Russia, the land was placed under trusteeship, and divided into KENSINGTON. The property on Commercial St. owned by Mr. W. A. Pidgeon and used by him as a fish market for many years was sold by auction with all the equipment on Tuesday last. The buildings will be removed at once. Mr. Pidgeon is retiring from active business.

At a Town Council meeting held on Monday night, Mr. Gerald MacLean was selected from a large number of applications to fill the office of police man for the town of Kensington. Mr. MacLean succeeds Mr. Stewart Mathew who is retiring to Elmsdale.

Mrs. A.G. Henry of Kensington and Mrs. L.B. Champion of Alberton left here on Wednesday morning en route to England. They sail from St. John on Friday, April 17th on the C. P. R. liner Montrose for an extended visit to England, Scotland and Wales. They will be met at Liverpool by Rev. W. J. and Mrs. Phillips who will accompany them on their sight seeing tour. Their many friends wish them bon voyage.

Mr. Russell Champion who operates a lobster factory at French River is making preparation for the opening of the fishing season. Several of his helpers are already on the scene.

A pleasant social evening was spent recently at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Profit when the Kensington Granite Sisters were at home to their friends. There were about eighty people present. Games and music made the time pass quickly. At the close of the evening the hostess and her assistants served delicious refreshments.

Mr. A. W. MacFarlane, has purchased a home on Victoria Street, formerly the Caldwell property. Mr. and Mrs. MacFarlane expect to occupy it very soon. Some other property changes are pending.

PHILADELPHIA, April 16.—A fleet of nearly 300,000 locomotives, passenger, freight and work cars were required for the operation of the Pennsylvania railroad system in 1930, officials of the company declared.

COLONIAL MANSION SELLS FOR $8 DURING AUCTION. TOWNSEND, Mass., April 14—(U.P.)—Frank Bennett bought a 16-room Colonial mansion for $8, Martin Dudley bought a summer home for $3.50. John McLean purchased a large barn for $1. These bargain prices prevailed at an auction here. The land on which the buildings were located was wanted by the town as a school site. Rather than move the structures the town sold them for what they would bring with the stipulation that the purchasers must move them
