ISLAND BOY DESCRIBES TRIP IN AEROPLANE

Signaller Harry C. Whitlock, one of the "Lucky Bunch" of six Charlottetown boys who have put in two years at the front without receiving anything worse among them than one D. C. M. and one little scratch, in a recent letter to his mother described a trip in an aeroplane which he had been lucky enough to be favoured with. The following extract will be of interest: "Most of the fellows had to go up when the clouds were at about 3,000 feet elevation. I was rather a bit more fortunate and got up between 4,000 and 5,000 feet. I wish you could have seen me in my flying outfit: head gear, goggles, etc. And oh, the speed! and didn't I enjoy the run along the ground gathering up speed for the ascent, travelling 75 to 85 miles an hour, somewhat faster than I had ever travelled in a car. Up she goes! I suppose you will wonder what it felt like, eh! The sensation? Peculiar, but there wasn't any. I could see the country very plainly. As we got higher of course it was more difficult to distinguish things, but buildings roads, railroads, villages, ponds etc., are things one cannot mistake. Things had the appearance of being seen through the small end of a field glass. I picked out a railway track and for a moment it puzzled me. I thought at first it was a trench railway but looking about I knew there wasn't such a track in the vicinity. At last I recognized the narrow grey streak as one of the railways. Another thing that puzzled me for a while was something that looked like torn scraps of paper and while wondering if the Kaiser had torn up another international treaty I discovered that it was a washing that some women had spread out on the grass to dry. There is absolute freedom of movement when up in the air. One may twist about and turn around in the seat as much as he wishes. I could turn around and speak to the pilot though there were phones there for the purpose. We passed through several clouds—not the least terrifying either We flew along the edge of a cloudfield when we could look over along the top and still be able to see some of the country. One does not feel the least afraid. An experienced pilot and one of the safest machines in the world, what more could one want? It was great fun. The flight lasted about three quarters of an hour. I saw one pilot loop the loop the other day for exercise. At least that was what he said when asked about it. As a rule looping the loop is forbidden, but when the cat's away," you know what the mice do.

I fell from a building and received what the doctor called a very bad sprained ankle, and told me I must not walk for three weeks. I got MINARD'S LINIMENT and in six days I was out to work again. I think it the best Liniment made.

HAVE YOU HEARD

that eczema cases, which have defied all other treatment, yield to Zam-Buk? An illustration of this is found in the case of Mr. J. L. Frenette, of Nigadoo, N.B. He writes:—

"My head was entirely covered with eczema, and although I tried numerous remedies and received medical treatment, I got no benefit. Then I heard of Zam-Buk and tried it. The first few applications stopped the burning. Gradually the inflammation was drawn out, and before long the sores began to heal. Perseverance with Zam-Buk resulted in a complete and permanent cure."

Zam-Buk is just as good for ulcers, ringworm, running sores, blood-poisoning, piles, cuts, burns and all skin injuries. All druggists 50c. box, 3 for $1.25, or from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto.

FAMOUS AMERICAN YACHTSMAN DEAD.

BOSTON, Aug. 16.—The death at Weston of Gen. Chas Paine, well-known as an officer of the civil war and later as owner of three successful defenders of the America's cup, was announced here Monday. He was 83 years old and a great grandson of Robert Treat Paine, a signer of the Declaration of Independence. In 1897 he was one of three special envoys accredited to the governments of France, Great Britain and Germany, in the interests of International bimetalism. He headed the syndicate which built the yachts Puritan, Mayflower and Volunteer, all of which successfully defended America's cup in the international yacht races.
