DOG VANDALISM—Complaints are heard from citizens that dogs are destroying lawns and tearing up newly planted shrubs and flowers. It would appear, some believe, that the efforts of the dog catcher have not extended to all parts of the city. Those who have been the victims, so to speak, are anxiously waiting to see the man with the net corral the dog vandals.

TO ATTEND ROTARY CONVENTION—Mr. Reuben Macdonald who attended Coronation ceremonies in London Wednesday will attend the international Rotary Convention at N. C. France, as representative of the Charlottetown Rotary Club, it was learned yesterday. The convention opens the first week of June. About 10,000 delegates will attend the meeting from 80 countries of the world. The meetings are held annually and every third year in some country other than the United States and Canada. The President of France was scheduled to open the proceedings.

TO PAVE VICTORIA PARK ROADWAY—A paving project estimated to cost approximately $40,000 will be undertaken at Victoria Park this summer it was learned yesterday. Premier Campbell announced that arrangements have been made for a project for improvement of Victoria Park and Approaches whereby the Dominion Government will contribute 25 per cent of the cost, the Provincial Government 25 per cent and the City 50 per cent. The project would involve the hard surfacing of the roadway around Victoria Park and the completion of the pavement on Brighton Road. It was learned.

SUDDEN DEATH—A telegram received by Mr. Joseph Robertson, Belfast, conveyed the sad news of the death of his brother George in Kingston, New York. Later word was that the death followed an operation for appendicitis. The late Mr. Robertson is survived by his wife and four sons. He was born in Scotland and came to Belfast with the rest of his family when very young. He visited his old home a few years ago, accompanied by his brother Gordon, also his son and daughter-in-law, after an absence of over 30 years and spent a very pleasant holiday noting the many changes in the place and people and he planned to make another such visit in June which makes his death a much greater shock to his family here. Mr. Robertson was a very successful dairy farmer and also did a large business in raising vegetables. A splendid conversationalist with the real Scotch accent he made friends readily and people here that met him on his last visit have a very warm recollection of him. Mrs. A. W. Docherty of Belfast and Mrs. Alfred Simpson of St. Peters are sisters of the deceased.

Ladies Night At Charlottetown Y's Men's Club

Last night was ladies' night at the Charlottetown Y's Men's Club when an interesting Coronation program was carried out. Mr. William Massey, chairman of the Club, and Mrs. Massey received the guests. The banquet hall at the Y was attractively decorated in Coronation colors.

The evening's program was opened by the singing of O Canada. The toast to Their Majesties was honored. Guests were welcomed in a short address by Mr. Edwin Johnstone. Mr. W. A. Currie, president of the Summerside Y's Men's Club spoke briefly. He told the meeting that his Club owed the Charlottetown Club a debt of gratitude for its assistance in organizing.

Mr. W. L. Brenton, vice-president of the Charlottetown Rotary Club, and Mr. Gordon McDonald, president of the Charlottetown Gyro Club, sent their regrets at not being able to attend. Both were to have spoken briefly. The banquet was followed by a sing song led by Mr. Neville E. Luck, general secretary of the local Y. M. C. A.

Vocal solos by Mr. Charles Earle and Mrs. Roy Cudmore were a most enjoyable part of the evening's program. Orchestral selections were played by Miss Lillian Earle, pianist and director, Miss Thelma Teed, violin, and Mr. Harry Roper, violin.

The banquet program closed with the National Anthem. Club members and guests enjoyed an hour's bowling with Mr. George Craig, master of ceremonies.

Lord Tweedsmuir Sends Message To King George

OTTAWA, May 13—(CP)—Hope for a long and peaceful reign was expressed in a message sent by Lord Tweedsmuir to King George VI on the occasion of the Coronation.

The message follows: "With humble respect I send to Your Majesty and to Her Majesty the Queen our warmest wishes on behalf of all the people of Canada. Our hearts and prayers are with Your Majesties on this joyous though somewhat sad occasion and we earnestly hope that Your Majesty's reign may extend far into the future and be crowned with happiness and peace." The Governor General also sent a message to Queen Mary as follows: "May I be permitted to assure Your Majesty how much our thoughts are with you on this day and how deeply all the people of this Dominion share Your Majesty's pride in the solemn dedication of Their Majesties the King and Queen to the welfare and peace of all their loyal and affectionate subjects."

MERRILL AND

Harry Richman, the Broadway crooner, from New York to Llewellyn, South Wales, last September in 17 hours, 53 minutes.

On the return trip they took off from Southport and made a forced landing on the Newfoundland coast 12 hours and four minutes later. It was many days before the plane was freed from a bog and the air-men went on to New York.

Both looked tired as they waved goodbye to the crowds lining the beach. The heavy-laden machine rose without difficulty after a half-mile run along the sands. They had fruit, chocolate, coffee and soup to sustain them.

Lacking a portside-baiting outfit when he needed one, Manager Charlie Grimm called upon Phil Cavaretta to play that role and the transplanted first baseman obliged by driving out a 12th inning double with the bases-loaded that clinched Chicago Cubs' 8-6 victory over Boston Bees in Boston.

Cavaretta, who replaced Joe Marty in centerfield in the 10th, when the veteran Guy Bush took over the Boston mound, came to bat in the 12th after George Stainback and Stanley Hack singled and "Gabby" Hartnett singled. He scored the first two runners with his two-bagger and Hartnett countered the final Chicago tally after Augie Galen fled out.

Zack Jackson—Donald Nicholson. Specialties included a vocal solo by Miss Vera Malcolm, a piano and an instrumental duet by Miss Audrey Gillis and Miss Sandy Brahat. The play will be repeated tonight.

GRADUATE

staff, classmates, ladies and gentlemen.—"Once again it is May,—the month of new life, hopes and graduation."

"Graduation—For many months we who are the class of '37 have looked eagerly forward to this day but its attainment is accompanied by such a tumult of excitement that we are at a loss to know what to say in bidding you farewell.

"As we look in retrospect, such a long and interesting procession of events parades before the eyes of our memory—gay days and grey days—comedy and tragedy—hope and fears—all had their turn, our though hidden in many guises, each was a step in the preparation for our chosen profession.

"It is true that we have reached the goal for which we have been laboring, but with that attainment also comes the realization that we are not at the end of our course, but that we are just entering upon a wider sphere of service.

And now we are ready, standing on the threshold of an unseen future, we have crossed it before us and many ways follow—all fighting units in vast array have enlisted and trained and now is mobilized to go forth to do battle with the arch-enemy of mankind—disease. Before we march out through the gates, we pause a moment to look back and say a word of sincere appreciation.

"We feel that we owe a great debt to those who have furnished such a modern and well-equipped institution in which we have had the privilege to train.

"To those who have made it possible we wish to express thanks for the Cundall Home for Nurses recently established. Here we have been able to enjoy many privileges that were not possible while residing in the institution itself.

"To the citizens of Charlottetown who have helped to make our stay so pleasant, we are indeed grateful.

"No matter how fine an institutional building, a nurse's residence, or how beautiful the surroundings in which they are placed, the under-graduate is not able to do her best unless the person in the state is free to stimulate her to greater effort.

"And so, as we say good-bye to those who have guided us in the last three years, we wish also to express our deep indebtedness to them.

"To you, members of the medical staff, we owe the sound basis of our training, and if oftentimes you seemed to demand much from us now as you did in the past, it was the wisdom of such thorough and careful teaching. Tracing your helpful hand from the classroom to the patients' bedside, we realize your worth is limitless and hope we may be worthy of your confidence and trust in us.

"To you, our beloved Superintendent and supervisor, we regretfully say farewell. By your wise and sympathetic counsel you have smoothed many a rough road for us. Our earnest prayer is that we shall be able to carry high the lamp of service that you have passed on to us.

"To the under-graduates, who are looking forward to this day, we bid adieu, reminding you that the three years of training will be blest with sunshine and sorrow; character developing years will test to the limit the strength and wisdom of your hearts. Life will be revealed to you as you had never known it before. Our message to you is: aim high; do your duty faithfully and well. The secret of happiness is not in doing what one likes, but in liking what one has to do. May you be worthy of your profession, diligent in appointed service and faithful in every trust.

"First of all, she must watch her health. The training and rules you have received in the hospital regarding the health of others should be your guide as to the care of your own. Your habits should be regular. A bright face is good to see, and one should cultivate the spirit that produces it. No nurse can do proper work without sufficient sleep. You must have your periods of recreation from duty, and do not carry the cares and worry of your work with you during your rest and recreation periods. The cheerful spirit and indomitable energy which compensates for many faults and almost compels success, are not usually found when the health is feeble and the body weak. The patient should not be attended by an indolent, sleepy, lethargic nurse.

"Secondly—scholarship and your professional equipment." Qualify yourself. You must do it to secure the preferred positions. Every young graduate should plan to take some post-graduate work free days. During this time a fine spirit of comradeship has been developed and we carry with us many happy memories. True, there were occasions when we chafed under discipline, when it would have been easier and pleasanter to exercise our own judgment than to submit to the wiser rulings of those in authority. From every such struggle we emerged stronger women each brought us a step nearer to our ideal.

In the light of added years, mature judgment and experience, we lay aside the mantle of institutional learning. All we have been taught is but the foundation for the actual task before us. Our prayer is for courage, confidence, and an opportunity to render service to our fellow men.

"Father in Heaven, make me wise So that my gaze may never meet A question in my patient's eyes God keep me always kind and sweet And patient too, before their need.

Let each vexation know its place Let gentleness be all my creed Let kindness live upon my face. A nurse's day is very long. There are so many things to do. Before let me lose my song Before the hardest day is through."

ADDRESS TO NURSES

"Your Honour, Mr. Premier, Mr. Chairman, Nurses of the Graduating Class, Fellow Physicians, Ladies and Gentlemen:

"Another year has passed, and we have met again to congratulate another graduating class on having successfully completed their course of training, and to wish them every success in their chosen profession.

"You, our graduating nurses, will be leaving your training school and taking up work in various branches of your profession. And I trust that you will always look back on the Nursing School of the Prince Edward Island Hospital with satisfaction and pride. We all look with pride on our hospital, particularly the advances it has made in the last several years. Hospitals exist for the sick and needy—we have hospitals because there are sick people; we have doctors because there are sick people; so also we have nurses. Remove our hospitals and what would be the outcome? Increased mortality, no proper medical, professional, clinical activities or research, and a return to a poor type of nurse.

We all know the public is exacting and expects a good service from all professional bodies. To give a good nursing service—to supply public demands and needs, our hospitals must have the proper nursing body with which to work.

"To be a good nurse, one's foundation must be good; also, to be a good nurse, one must first be a good woman. With such material a nursing school can develop an inexperienced and impractical young woman into a high type of nurse, one who sympathizes and understands patients, and as individuals. She can place herself in the position of the patient through a deep understanding of human nature and can improve herself through understanding and contact with the patients. I feel that our school and hospital have drawn to it, not only by raising its requirements and standards, but by the nurses who are in charge and teachers in it, some of the finest young women of our community.

"I shall briefly refer to a few of the things which in my opinion should form part of the equipment of the young nurse who undertakes the responsibility of giving her time, energy, and the best part of her life to the welfare of her fellow citizens.

"First of all, she must watch her health. The training and rules you have received in the hospital regarding the health of others should be your guide as to the care of your own. Your habits should be regular. A bright face is good to see, and one should cultivate the spirit that produces it. No nurse can do proper work without sufficient sleep. You must have your periods of recreation from duty, and do not carry the cares and worry of your work with you during your rest and recreation periods. The cheerful spirit and indomitable energy which compensates for many faults and almost compels success, are not usually found when the health is feeble and the body weak. The patient should not be attended by an indolent, sleepy, lethargic nurse.

"Secondly—scholarship and your professional equipment." Qualify yourself. You must do it to secure the preferred positions. Every young graduate should plan to take some post-graduate work matter how unreasonable and irritable the patient may be. Firmness must be exercised without sacrificing kindness or consideration. The patient does not know what is best for him; the nurse is required to do that which is dictated by her mature, trained judgment. The friends of the patient are often a greater source of trouble to the nurse than the patient himself. The relatives are often in a frame of mind no nearer normal than that of the patient. In many cases an easy course is to exclude the visitor, but sometimes even though seriously ill, is benefited by the presence of a relative. Handle them with same judgment and firmness tempered with kindness and consideration; do not talk shop or show the patient, or his relatives, with the patient from annoyances. All the little attentions which you learn to give your patients, which are not absolutely necessary, but which make so much difference in their comfort, peace of mind, and happiness, are really worth while.

"In your contact with the people of your community—much is expected of you, not only by the public itself, but by the medical profession and health organizations. You can do much to teach not only proper health habits, but much in the way of prevention of many diseases, for now we look more to the prevention rather than to the cure. And as you go out into your chosen field or fields of public service, you will make many mistakes. Profit by them, use them as stepping stones to greater achievement; they will teach you more than success.

"In closing may I say that you will be spurred on to a greater endeavor, to a more complete living, to nobler service, as you go from sick room to sick room. If you constantly remember I shall not pass this way again."

OTTO, May 13—(CP)—Rev. C. H. Huestis, D. D., general secretary of the Lord's Day Alliance, leaves tonight for the Maritimes and New Brunswick and will attend the annual meeting of the Alliance at Truro. On Sunday he will preach at the United Church in Sackville in connection with the convocation of Mount Allison University.
