Cape Traverse Meeting Favours Tuber Bonus Plan

A special meeting was held in Cape Traverse Hall, May 20th, for the purpose of discussing the potato bonus. The following paper was read by the Chairman Mr. Ephraim Bell, and adopted unanimously.

In view of the fact that the farmers of many sections of the Island are holding meetings for the purpose of inducing the government to bonus the farmer to the extent of $10 an acre on a limitation of ten acres graduating down to 1-acre, so that the small grower will be on a level basis with the large, that is our motive of being here tonight.

As conditions are at present time, farmers of Canada and particularly of P. E. I. are getting a raw deal, while all the employees of the government have their salaries pegged whether the farmers are driven into bankruptcy or not. During this last four years, the common people and the farmers apart from the government employees have not been getting a living wage and the only solution of this vexed question is to bonus the farmer's products up to a certain production according to his holdings. There is nothing radical or farfetched in this proposition.

For instance, in England, wheat for the last three years has been pegged to $1.35 a bus. for all the farmers can grow. When this bonus was inaugurated they could land No. 1 Canadian hard wheat at Liverpool for 80c per bus.

Now the minister of Agriculture in England has in mind the bonus of No. 1 grade beef cattle to the extent of $5-100 lbs live weight, or equal to $3.25 on each animal on a 1000 lb. steer. Australia has the wheat pegged at 72c a bus for all the wheat that is exported, the farmer receiving the benefit of this bonus.

Last year it cost the Australian Government $16,000,000 to pay that bonus. Now the minister of Agriculture in Australia has in mind the bonus of wool and so on. The Western farmer has his wheat pegged at the present time 80c-a-bus, this is a matter of fact that everybody knows. The dairy farmer of New Zealand has a bonus of 4c lb. on all butter that is exported. Now we ask in all fairness, have farmers of Prince Edward Island no right to assert.

Whilst all employees of the government are getting a luxurious living wage, the farmer is, in most cases, driven into bankruptcy by the fact that on all his major products he has been forced through present day conditions to supply the consumer of the towns way below cost of production, with the $1.00 today at 60c of a purchasing power when he goes to the store to buy manufactured goods. He has had his being ground between the upper and the nether milestone. The farmers of P. E. I. represent 60 p. c. of the population are they not a body worthy of some consideration to save them from bankruptcy in the stress of times as we have today with the resultant effect that business is strangled while the rich are getting richer and the poor are getting poorer? The farmers position on Prince Edward Island is not rosy. He finds his buildings are running down, his machinery is being worn out, and in many instances his land tax is not paid. Five years of depression with low prices for farm products has left him pretty well stranded. As a means of recovery we feel that it is the duty of the government to bonus the farmer on the crop of 1934 to the extent of $10-acre on 10 acres, to place us on equality with the western wheat grower, with a view to enabling him to get some fertilizer and supplies for the coming year so that he will be able to carry on.

This meeting is of the opinion that our demands are not unreasonable and we suggest that a copy of this report be sent to our representatives.

Dairy Records

Among the 340 Holsteins whose semi-official records were reported in the April Bulletin of the Holstein-Friesian Association of Canada was Abegweit Quidi Vidi, owned by J. Walter Jones, Charlottetown, P. E. I. who led the four-year-olds in the yearly division with a production of 28,590 lbs. of milk and 824 lbs. of fat. Mr. Jones also led the two-year-olds with Abegweit Lady Frances, a daughter of Pietje Kerck Colanthis, who gave 18,531 lbs. of milk and 748 lbs. of fat in 365 days.

W. R. Bouvier, of Charlottetown, was well up among 27 four-year-olds on twice-a-day milking with Queen Abbecker Bustfeldt, who gave 15,372 lbs. of milk and 502 lbs. of fat in 365 days.

A feature of the Bulletin was the record of Jean Abbecker Pontiac, a fourteen year old cow owned by Mr. Bouvier, who produced 17,888 lbs. of milk and 676 lbs. of fat on twice-a-day milking. This brings her lifetime production up to 169,564 lbs. of milk and 6467 lbs. of fat, second only in Canada to the World's Champion, Springbank Snow Countess. All of her eight records, with the exception of the first, were made on twice-a-day milking and her production under these conditions stands unchallenged.

The SNAPSHOT GUILD

SPRINGTIME IN THE ZOO

Get enjoyment in your zoo pictures. It adds much to their interest.

"WHAT is it we always look forward to seeing in the spring?" a teacher asked her class of eight-year-olds. "The animals in the zoo," piped up Mickey.

Mickey might have added "and snapshots," for there are in this world a few people who park their cameras on the closet shelf at the first sign of winter and, like the bear in the zoo, it hibernates until the arrival of spring.

If you own one of these hibernating cameras you had better get it out, dust it off, carefully clean the lens, load it up with film and be on hand at your nearest zoo when the keeper lets his animal family out of the indoor winter quarters to the outdoor cages. There's a real chance for some great pictures and a great chance for some real pictures.

There's one great advantage in taking animal pictures at the zoo in early spring. The foliage on the trees is not as heavy as it becomes later in the summer so your light is much better.

Background and foreground should be given careful consideration in taking pictures of animals and fowl at a zoo. In other words, try to get environment in your pictures—natural settings. Don't just walk up to the cage or corral and shoot. If the lion's den, for instance, is at the back end of his cage, which it usually is, don't snap your picture from the side and have an adjoining pen of ostriches for your background for in natural surroundings the lion and ostrich do not mix socially. Get as close to the bars of his cage as you can and shoot.

"But," you may say, "if I snap him when he is right up against the bars I would get a larger image." That's true enough and at the same time you would be getting just another picture of a lion. Suppose the image of the lion is smaller at a greater distance from your camera. How about an enlargement of the lion and enough of the entrance to his den to add environment.

Many amateurs overlook the possibilities in trimming and enlargement and in doing so they pass up the opportunity to change what would be an ordinary snapshot into an outstanding photograph.

Keep these things in mind when taking all kinds of animal pictures—wild and domestic. Get environment in the picture and you will soon be convinced by results that it is well worth the little thought and effort it requires.

Famous in Night But Once Enough Dr. Dafeo Thinks

A. E. Fulford Canadian Press Staff Writer CALLENDER, Ont., May 24 — (CP)—Looking back on a year of caring for quintuplets as the only physician ever in a position for respect of just that sort, Dr. Allan Roy Dafeo, of Callander Ont., said he "wouldn't have missed it for the world." His little charges will celebrate their first five-in-one birthday May 28.

The gentle country doctor who was catapulted to fame with the birth of the Dionne babies hopes he will never experience another year like that just past but is happy that it happened. He hopes the worst is over.

There were drawbacks he admitted—plenty of them. Hourly anxiety for the lives of his tiny charges disruption of his private practice, intrusion into his private life and disputes that grew up around the babies—these were "on the debit side." They left him at times with the wish it all had never happened—that he could go back to his quiet life with his pipe, his books and his dogs.

But now that Yvonne, Annette, Cecile Emilie and Marie have excellent chances for life and most of the other difficulties have been swept away he is settling more comfortably into his new way of life and enjoying himself.

Problems that used to complicate his life he now takes in his stride. Besides the care of the quintuplets and a practice that extends over 400 square miles, he meets newspaper promoters and government officials every day. In the last few months he has become a business man as well as a physician and as a guardian protects the babies' financial interests as well as their health. Seeing him as a doctor, father and a shrewd executive Callender residents call him the "ideal guardian." Dr. Dafeo said he prized medical fame most highly of all the things the year has brought. He treasures it as the representative of country practitioners who toil through the years with little recognition. He values also the new friends he has made in contacts outside the little world he moved in before and the genuine new interest he has found in life through the quints.

Through his last thought is of money, Dr. Dafeo admitted it is comfortable to think he is better provided now with the world's goods. He sees in the money that has come to him mostly through newspaper articles he has written only a means to educate his motherless 16-year-old son and to insure him against need in later years.

He might have made much more in capitalizing his fame but he refused to do anything that would take him away from the Dionne babies or that might be considered anything but highly ethical by his fellow medical men. He considers himself fortunate in having prominent medical men, including his brother, Dr. William Dafeo of Toronto as advisers in this phase of his changed life.

A suggestion if other quintuplets were born he might be called on to attend them brought a hearty laugh from the doctor. "Not very likely," he chuckled. "As I said I wouldn't have missed it for the world but I never want to go through it again. It isn't the first 100 years that are the hardest, in this case. It's the first year—at least, I hope so."

DENTISTRY NOT A GOOD CAREER FOR WOMEN TO ADOPT

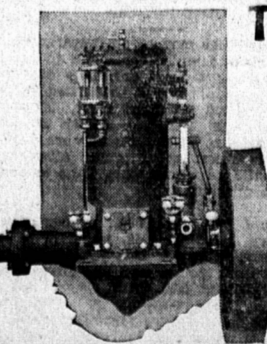

TORONTO, May 22—Ontario has about 15 women dentists and even among the 15 the opinion is general that the profession is for men. A half-dozen women attended the Ontario Dental Association convention here yesterday.

One woman delegate explained the lack of her sex's interest in dentistry as being mainly because of the great amount of mechanical work involved. Women, she said, don't make good mechanics. "It's a long and difficult course—long hours and lots of studying, and it's not a career upon which to embark if one's ambition is to marry and have a home," said another.
