Under the Sea Fishing

(Canadian Press) PRINCE RUPERT, B. C., Jan. 10.—The only place in Canada where fishermen go under the sea in diving suits to make their catch is at Jedway, on the Queen Charlotte Islands.

At this point the only abalone fisheries in the Dominion are situated. Started in a small way a few years ago, this commercial fishery is gradually being extended until last year 578 barrels of the shellfish were gathered and canned at this spot.

The northern abalone, which is considerably smaller than the species found in California waters, is used exclusively for food. The shell, so important in the button industry, does not grow sufficient mother of pearl lining in the northern waters to be used for buttons.

The abalone is a shellfish having only one shell, and sometimes reaching a size of ten inches, and a weight of upwards of ten pounds. The edible part of the fish is to the foot or muscle with which it holds to the rocks with such tenacity. While the British Columbia catch is canned and sold in the Orient, the fish may also be fried or, if flaked, it may be used in a variety of dishes, popular in Canada and the United States.

Abalone fishing in British Columbia is usually done from small gasoline boats which carry crews of four or five men. Each boat is equipped with an air pump which supplies air to the diver as he gathers the abalone on the floor of the ocean and places them in buckets which are hauled to the surface by men in the boat.

CONFIDENCE KEYNOTE OF 1931 FORECAST

Improvement Anticipated By Bradstreet Co. With Opening of Spring Activities.

The business year is thus forecast by Bradstreet Company from information compiled from 200 offices throughout the Continent:

In view of the conspicuous lack of success that has attended predictors of improvement during the past year, this more particularly true as regards the thirty-sixty and ninety-day class of forecasters, and furthermore, because of the disposition after fifteen months to regard the current visitation as being in the class of major depressions, one might be well advised to avoid hard and fast prediction and view the affair as one of those things that will wear itself out when, if and as conditions permit, not forgetting that we have suffered these things before—and have survived them. Perhaps a few general conclusions might be permitted, however. One of these is, as already stated, that security markets appear to have been pretty well liquidated, so much so indeed, that stocks may be said to be already selling on a basis of reductions in dividends that have not yet occurred and may not take place. Some strongly buttressed concerns undoubtedly have witnessed reduction in prices of their securities to a point where book values of tangible assets may exceed the present values registered in the stock market. In raw materials and food crop products, also, prices are in a great many instances down to or below cost of replacement, this, by the way, being a world wide condition, and with cheap money there seem many reasons why this should induce some buying for the long pull.

The decline in commodities, it may be truly said, has not registered as severely in manufactured goods as in raw materials or foods, but the coming season's prices should show more evidences of readjustments based on lower present costs. As to real estate and land values, the number of bank suspensions this year, if no other index, seems to point to liquidation in those lines having made progress, which will need more time to make patent to all observers. As to labor costs, one important element remaining to be considered, it might be said that in some large construction lines these have been partially, if not entirely absorbed by improved methods and lower costs of foods, clothing and other essentials should help to complete this process. On the whole, it seems possible at this writing to take fully as cheerful a view of the future as over-sanguine observers did a year ago, always bearing in mind that our country is tied in with the rest of the world and must continue to be affected by world conditions. Certainly, with commodities so much lower than they were a year ago, the way seems clearer for a readjustment during the present year, always keeping in mind that business and speculation, pure and simple, are not necessarily and always twin brothers moving in close union. It seems entirely reasonable to expect that a certain amount of improvement should be shown with the opening of spring activities and that next fall should, in turn, see further advances in activity. It is hardly necessary to add that these will probably go forward carefully and with more than ordinary regard for the admonition to keep close to shore and venture out too far until readjustments still necessary have been made.

Same Origin for All Races Declared True by Hrdlicka

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12 Dr. Ales Hrdlicka, noted Smithsonian anthropologist, says there is no evidence showing different origins for racegroups of today. Under the skin, he explains, the physiological similarity of all the races is almost incredibly minute in detail. The fact that all have the same life cycle is proof for him that they did not have different original ancestors. He points out that the white race ranges, because of environmental differences, from the almost unpigmented blondes of northern Europe to Arabians as brown as Indians and Hindus quite black, yet are strictly "white" in racial derivation.

There is little biological objection to race mixtures, Dr. Hrdlicka says. In practice, however, certain race mixtures usually result unfavorably because the weight of social pressure against them such that parents are from the inferior stock of both races and children are born into such poor homes that their better qualities atrophy early.

He says no human race has as yet anywhere near reached its mental goal. Long avenues for wonderful intellectual development lie ahead of all who work their brains.

In Memoriam

ARTHUR PETER DWAN

"Suffer little children to come unto me;

For such is the kingdom of Heaven.

The many friends of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Dwan, St. Peters Bay, were shocked to learn of the death of their little son, Arthur Peter, aged three years, eleven months. The little chap, who was a lively and lovable child, enjoying the best of health, was stricken with appendicitis on Sunday, Dec. 21st, and was operated on at home the same day by Dr. McIntyre, of Montague, assisted by Dr. R. J. McDonald, St. Peters, and Miss V. McKenna, R.N., of Mt. Stewart, who nursed him during his illness. In spite of the very best medical aid and nursing, the Good Shepherd recalled him on Saturday, Dec. 27th. Although his parents miss his childish presence, they are comforted in knowing that he has gone straight to Heaven.

His funeral, which was held on Sunday, was largely attended showing the esteem and sympathy held for the sorrowing parents. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Fr. McAulay, pastor of St. Peters Roman Catholic Church. He leaves behind him two sisters, Mildred, age 7, Clotilda, aged 5, and one brother, Owen, aged 3.

His grandmother, Mrs. Mary E. Dwan and his aunt, Mrs. Peter Murphy both of Quincy were with him during his illness.

The pall bearers were Earl McKenna, Frederick Larkin, Eugene Larkin, Javier Flynn, Francis Larkin and Joseph Larkin. Mr. and Mrs. Dwan were the recipients of many letters of sympathy.

NEW DOMINION WOMEN'S INSTITUTE

On Tuesday evening Dec 9th nine members and four visitors met at the home of Mrs Hector MacLean for the regular monthly meeting of this Institute.

The meeting opened in the usual manner and roll call was answered by what I would like best for Christmas.

Minutes of previous meeting were read and adopted.

Several small bills were reported, paid and a larger one was ordered paid.

It was decided that the gentlemen help the members paint the school floor and desks at an early date. Plans for a programme at the school closing were discussed and it was also suggested that the members make candy to sell.

The business part over our Concert programme consisting of readings instrumental music dancing and speeches added much to the evening's entertainment. Team number one captained by Mrs A. R. MacPhee scoring eighty-five (85) points.

Team number two captained by Mrs Dan. Livingstone scoring 130 points—a majority of forty-five points. Refreshments were served by the hostess and a hearty song brought a very pleasant evening to a close.

The January meeting will be held at the home of Mrs Arthur MacDonald when roll call will be answered by "The first fellow that ever went home with me."

The regular monthly meeting of the New Dominion Women's Institute met at the home of Mrs Arthur MacDonald on Saturday evening Jan. 3rd and was attended by eleven members and five visitors.

The meeting opened by singing "Were a Poppy Bunch." and roll call was responded to with "The first fellow that went home with me." The minutes of last meeting were read and adopted.

One large bill was reported paid and several smaller ones asked for.

The business part of the meeting over our concert programme was carried out very successfully. Team No 1 having a majority over team No 2 of ten points.

Lunch was served by the hostess.

and the singing of "Old Favorites" brought a delightful evening to a close. Mrs Martin MacDonald kindly invited the members to her home for the next meeting when roll call will be answered by a "Valentine Verse."

GRAND SMASH UP OF 400 SLOT MACHINES PART OF CIVIC PROGRAM TODAY AT MONTREAL

MONTREAL, Jan. 12.—Four hundred slot machines seized by police in city wide raids are to be smashed to pieces tomorrow on the Champ de Mars behind the city hall, after the money in them estimated around $3,000 has been removed to be given to the poor of Montreal.

This was the announcement tonight by Ald. J. Allan Bray, chairman of the executive committee, who said that the administration is determined to rid the city of slot machines which have been beguiling children and adults in stores in various spots.

"We have judgments on some; but not on others. We will not await the judgment of the court, but smash the machines in kindling, and then if the owners are not satisfied, then they can sue the city" was the Bray defy. The chairman meant that in some instances machines seized have been confiscated by order of the court after judgment has upheld charges of having gambling apparatus. But other cases are pending. The city will not await for the outcome of those suits, but wreck all the machines anyway and risk damage suits in civil courts in the event of some cases being dismissed in the criminal courts."

Fishing for smelt in Northumberland County waters in the latter part of November, New Brunswick fishermen found "a great many very small bass" in their nets, according to a report made to the Dominion Department of Fisheries by the local inspector.

The Merry Maid

On I am grown so free from care Since my heart broke. I set my throat against the air And laugh at simple folk.

There's little kind and little fair Is worth its weight in smoke; To me that's grown so free from care, Since my heart broke.

Only those who have suffered to the last limit of their individual endurance then feebly but triumphantly build a new alliance with life, can understand the real meaning of which I speak. When fate has done its worst to you when sickness, death, deceit and injustice have eaten through to the sinews of your spirit, you no longer cry out or talk about it. You are still.

Then if you see the seeds of courage in you, you learn to live again. But life no longer hurts. You are free. You no longer measure all experience by its reaction on you or all people by their service to you. And so you escape both fear, and disappointment. When you come to that point, pain no longer hurts you, you learn to laugh. People do not hurt you for you no longer lean on them or make impossible demands of them. Sickness does not frighten you for even death can bring you nothing worse than sleep.

Love does not fall you for you have learned at last that it is what you give not what you get in love that counts. And so you learn to laugh.

Age of Man in North America 20,000 Years

CLEVELAND, O., Jan. 12.—Discovery in Arizona of a "butcher shop" more than 20,000 years old was reported at the recent meeting of the American Association for the Advancement of Science by Dr. Harold J. Cook, of the Cook museum of Natural History, Agate, Nebraska. Bones of the huge elephant-like mammoth that had been hacked with flint knives by the ancient butchers, and some of the knives themselves, have been found in Yuma County, Arizona, by Perry and Harold, Anderson, Dr. Cook said. The knives buried with the bones show men must have lived there at the same time as the mammoths, Dr. Cook believes. Some of the mammoth bones showed evidence of having been hacked while still fresh, or tough and "green." A bison bone evidently used in flaking off particles of flint in making the stone knives also was discovered. "Some of the bison and mammoth bones found here also appear to have been gnawed," Dr. Cook said. He did not say whether he thought they had been gnawed by men or animals. The dry Arizona plateau where the bones and knives were discovered was a well-watered flood plain when the ancient butcher shop was in operation, Dr. Cook explained. Streams were flowing across it from the mountains toward the east. All evidence indicates the flood plain existed in the pleistocene age, which extended from about 1,000,000 years ago to within 20,000 years of the present. There is no probability that the flood basin is more recent than that, he declared.

The flint knives were similar to those found at Colorado, Texas and Torrington, Wyoming. They are well made, indicating their makers were comparatively far advanced toward civilization. "The constantly increasing evidence of this character makes it appear that early man not only existed at a much earlier date in America than has been, until recently, commonly believed, but that he had reached a relatively high state of advancement, at least in certain directions, in pleistocene times in this country," Dr. Cook said.

Dole Halted Revolt Says Lloyd George

12.—Right Hon. David Lloyd George, 19.—Right Hon. David Lloyd George, former Liberal Premier, expressed the opinion here today that there would have been a revolution long ago had it not been for the British dote.

He said, however that in retrospect he believed it would have been better to spend the money in providing work rather than maintaining unemployed in idleness. Speaking at the laying of the foundation stone for sea defense works which will cost approximately $650,000, the former Premier declared that unemployment seemed to be creeping over the world because there was too much wealth, too much corn, iron, coal, steel and other products. He said he believed that there was no justice in allowing one man to starve, through no fault of his own,
