More Confidence in Botha Than in his Cabinet. What Chances Are

Special to The Guardian.

CAPE TOWN, August 4—Preparations are being made for a fierce election campaign.

The impression so far is that the Government is holding its own.

This is due to the confidence in Botha, rather than to faith in the Cabinet as a whole.

Dr. Jameson, speaking at Johannesburg, emphasized his personal belief in Botha's good intentions, but his conviction of Botha's utter inability to carry them out as the head of a coalition Government.

A TRAVELLING WHISKY SHOP

Special to The Guardian.

TORONTO, August 4—A man was fined $100 today for keeping a travelling "blind pig" hid in the bushes during the day and selling liquor in the cemeteries at night.

DR. COOK IS HIDING SOMEWHERE IN BROOKLYN.

NEW YORK, Aug. 3—Dr Frederick A. Cook, the Arctic explorer who mysteriously disappeared from the Gramatan Inn, Bronxville, on November 24 last, was in Brooklyn on July 2, and it is believed by many of his close friends that he is still in seclusion at the home of his brother, W. L. Cook, No. 747 Bedford Avenue, Brooklyn.

The manager of the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel, where Dr Cook lived for six weeks after his return from his Arctic expedition, received a letter on the evening of July 2, which had been mailed in Brooklyn early the same afternoon. The letter read:

"Kindly send the receipt for the package of furs which you have placed in storage for me to W. L. Cook, 747 Bedford Avenue, Brooklyn, and oblige

"Yours truly,
(Signed) "F. A. COOK."

The letter was in Dr Cook's handwriting and when received at the Waldorf-Astoria the ink was fresh. Friends of the explorer insist that he still is in Brooklyn.

HOW CAMPBELLTON PRESENTED CLAIMS.

OTTAWA, Aug. 3—At a meeting of a sub-committee of the council, consisting of Hon Messrs. Pugsley, King, Brodeur and Murphy, the request of the deputation for federal assistance to the stricken town of Campbellton, (N. B.) was heard today on behalf of the town.

F. B. Carvell and James Reid, M. P's, Thos. Malcolm and Judge McLatchy asked for a federal grant of $8,000 for fifteen years. This with the proposed provincial grant of $5,000 per year for fifteen years will relieve the town of the task of meeting interest on present bonded debt.

The delegation pointed out that the whole of the town's property had been destroyed, and that the town was unable either to meet the interest of the existing debt or raise a further loan to re-establish civic works.

The ministers promised to recommend to their conferers at the next meeting of the cabinet council that the request of the delegation be granted.

Some of the facts presented for the government's consideration were as follows:

The population of Campbellton is 5,400, and the floating population is 2,700.

The customs receipts for 1909 were $30,000.

The tonnage at the port of Campbellton normally is 150,000 tons. This tonnage has increased 300 per cent. during the last seven years.

The cut of lumber on the Restigouche river for the year 1910 was about 110,000,000 superficial feet and of this quantity nearly 100,000,000 is manufactured in Campbellton or its immediate vicinity.

The total loss by the fire on July 11 last was $6,000,000 and the insurance only amounted to $1,500,000.

The revenue derived by the dominion from Campbellton annually is $41,956, whilst the intercolonial railway receipts amount to $165,080, or a total of $206,956.

The total present bonded debt is $300,000 and the interest thereon is $12,920.

The amount required at once to meet the urgent needs of civic government and public services is $126,000.

THIRTEEN MEN WERE ARRESTED

Were Entering Canada Under False Pretences to Help Grand Trunk

Special to The Guardian.

SARNIA, August 4—Immigration inspector Herbert has caused the arrest of thirteen Grand Trunk strike breakers on the charge of entering Canada under false pretences.

The men had about $20 each in cash, but after they had passed the immigration inspector this money was taken over by the Grand Trunk Railway agent at Sarnia.

QUEEN OF SPAIN'S LIFE ENDANGERED

MADRID, Aug. 3—Although the church leaders are co-operating with the government to prevent disorder, the suspension of the constitution and a declaration of martial law throughout Spain is imminent.

Though all demonstrations have been prohibited, popular leaders of the clerical forces threaten to parade on Sunday at many points.

The bitter struggle now in progress has devided not only the nation, but the court itself, and one effect of this, according to authenticated reports, is that Queen Victoria finds herself in a disconcerning predicament.

The influence of the Battenburg family on Alfonso, and the friendliness that has existed between him and King Edward and King George of England, have caused dissatisfaction in high circles affiliated with the clericals, and the attitude of these towards the queen is scarcely cordial.

All the friction that was aroused during the first years of the queen's presence here, by her dislike of Spanish court conventions, has been brought out again.

Since the King married, 25 Anglican chapels and 18 Protestant schools have been permitted to open, to the indignation of the reactionary elements.

The queen is now at San Sebastien, which is a port on the Bay of Biscay. The Carlist agitation is at its height in that district, where the greatest danger is felt to exist to the ruling house.

In the event of trouble, the queen and her children, as well as her mother, Princess Henry of Battenburg, would probably be taken to sea on British warships.

AIR FLIGHTS OVER THE WATER.

TORONTO, August 3.—Glenn Curtis, the famous aviator of Hammondsport, N. Y., who made a successful flight from Albany to New York recently, in his biplane, is in the city to-day. Another well known birdman visiting in Toronto to-day is J. A. D. McCurdy. Both the aviators are here investigating the possibility of making flights over water at the Canadian National exhibition this fall. Owing to the lack of space and danger of accident with the grounds crowded with people, Dr Orr says there is no chance of any ascents being made over land, as at the Weston aviation meet. Consequently flights will be attempted over the lake if it is at all possible to do so. Air cylinders will be attached to the biplanes, which will enable them to float on the water on alighting.

SWITCH OF COWS TAIL MAY BLIND WESTMORLAND MAN.

SALISBURY, N. B., Aug. 3—Anson Miller, a farmer, or Cherryvale, near Salisbury, met with a painful accident a few days ago which it is feared may lead to the loss of one of his eyes and possibly the sight of both. While milking his cows one the animals in switching flies with her tail, struck Mr. Miller in the eye, inflicting serious injury. Mr. Miller was in the village last evening on his return from Moncton, where he is being treated, and feels his affliction keenly. To add to the serious nature of the case, his other eye has become greatly inflamed, and is causing him much discomfort.

WHEN IT RAINED ON THE WESTERN PRAIRIE

TORONTO, Aug. 3.—A staff correspondent of The Star writing from Saskatoon says:—It rained here on the prairie last night. And today the land that, before the rain, lay parched and gasping in the heat, lies stupid, saturated with water, asleep and resting, like a man recovering from a fever. The hot wind that fanned it before is gone. It was a wind that moved from rim to rim across the wheel of the earth, sometimes like a hideous frog, in leaps and bounds, leaving the marks of its splayed feet in the standing wheat; or, at other times, like a broad line of cavalry riding grimly under the incessant sunlight.

But yesterday it rained. The Drouth Wind happened for the time to have blown across to one edge of the earth, toward the West. The heat waves in the East that had been making the horizon a dancing line all day long intensified into a dull grey. The whole eastern sky became a shadowy blue. A new wind crawled up on his stomach over the eastern edge of the world to reconnoiter the plain. First a little cool puff of air it was, and then, as the sky behind turned to an inky pall, he gathered his forces, flung them wide across the horizon, and riding swiftly nearer and nearer, pursued the drouth wind into the furnace door of the sunset, till the sunset seemed to flare alittle brighter, then died out and left the western sky cold.

The weary prarie waited. A farmer looking out at his crops shook his head. "If it doesn't rain," he said, "the bank will have to wait for that money. So'll the implement agent."

A Hebrew peddler, driving out of the gate, settled down on his seat mournfully. "They are afraid to buy," he said." Business is bad unless it rains."

The soil was dry as gunpowder the grain stalks were brittle, and the young heads, too, dry. But the new wind smelled of water, and the prairie waited.

"Hush! Hush!" cried the barley heads, chafing together.

"Sh! Sh!" echoed the sage brush.

"Have you brought the water?" asked the weeds in a wayside ditch, choking with dust.

"Yes," replied the wind, "I'm bringing it around. I couldn't get here before."

The wind and the rain rode side by side over the plain. The barley danced for sheer joy. The wheat supped in silent gratitude, and the weeds in the wayside ditches drank greedily.

Long afterward, in the night, when the rain had finished, while the water from the eaves dripped with a silver voiced cry into the rain barrel, and a frog or two trilled, the wind patrolled the prairie and touched everything with the lightness of a girl's fingers.

He found the Jew sleeping in his covered waggon, but as he passed the Jew stirred and muttered, "Yes. That was a good rain. Trade will be better."

In another place it touched the farmer, who had gone to sleep, certain that he would have sufficient crop to meet his obligations to the Eastern banker and implement manufacturer.

Along the telegraph wires had already travelled the message that rain had passed over so much territory. As a result the wheat barometer had registered the fact. From that perhaps, the price of wheat might drop. From that the speculator might lose or gain, and the millers, the bakers and the bread eaters of the world, might feel the drop—because it rained on the prairie yesterday.

DR CRIPPEN HAS NOT MADE CONFESSION

The Dead Wife's Jewelry Found in His Possession Believed Miss Leneve will Tell What She Knows

Special to The Guardian.

MONTREAL, August 4—Dr. Crippen has not confessed.

Inspector Dew and the guards are the only persons who have seen him and these all say that he has said nothing which would incriminate him.

Practically the only remark about the charge that he has made is that he is not guilty.

Dew does not want a confession and will not press him.

QUEBEC, Aug. 3. — Ethel Clara Leneve was arraigned in private yesterday, as a matter of form she had to be held for extradition, but the proceeding was followed with leniency The junior magistrate of the provincial court of sessions, C. P. Angers, received Miss Leneve into his home and in his own parlor put the questions which constituted the formula of holding her for deportation.

In the magistrate's home she was waited on by Mrs Fred Ginnett of New York, president of the ladies' music hall guild of London, of which Belle Elmore was honary treasurer. Mrs Ginnett is an old acquaintance of both Dr Crippen and Miss Leneve and had visited the Crippen home in London.

Inspector Dew allowed Mrs Ginnett to see the young woman in order to make her feel that even her captors have a friendly interest in her.

Mrs Ginnett identified three solitairs diamond rings, a Chester diamond ring, a diamond brooch and three pairs of spectacles, which were found in a small bag sewed inside Dr Crippen's undershirt, as the property of Mrs Crippen, whom the doctor is accused of having slain.

In her conversation with Miss Leneve at the home of Magistrate Aggers, Mrs Ginnett was not permitted to ask any questions relating to the disappearance of Belle Elmore or what Dr Crippen had said to his stenographer about his wife.

Mrs Ginnett, however, did ask the young woman if she had received the cablegrams from her parents advising her to make full disclosures of all the information she had. Miss Leneve answered that she had read the message from her father and mother.

"Do you intend to take their advice and tell the authorities all?" Mrs Ginnett asked.

Miss Leneve dropped her head and wept, but did not answer.

Mrs Ginnett was forbidden by Inspector Dew to pursue the subject further, and the rest of the interview was a gossipy conversation about mutual acquaintances in London, which was calculated to raise the spirits of the distressed young woman.

After Mrs Ginnett left Miss Leneve was told that she was to stay at the home of the magistrate for a day or two until she felt stronger, as it was not Inspector Dew's disposition to enforce the hardship of confinement in jail.

The young woman has improved remarkable today in such charitable and encouraging surroundings and already seems ready for suggestions that she testify against Dr Crippen when he is tried in London for murder

Inspector Dew this afternoon admitted that he was trying to ingratiate himself with Miss Leneve because the prosecution needed her testimony to corroborate and strengthen the evidence of a servant girl who is now the only witness of any probative value that Scotland Yard has against Dr Crippen.

Quebec, Aug. 1—Before Aug. 18, the date set when Dr Crippen will be taken back to England charged with murder, the police confidently expect that Ethel Clare Leneve will have told the all she knows of those gruesome shreds of human flesh found in the cellar of the dentist's London home.

Urged on by cablegrams from her parents, it is believed that she will soon free her mind of the dreadful secret which is fast driving her insane.

The police see in the beautiful stenographer whose life has been ruined by Crippen, a girl, innocent at heart, but fascinated to the point of hypnotism by the dentist.

Separated from him a while they think she will become her normal self and give testimony which the police so much need to prove that Belle Elmore, the American actress, really was murdered, and that it was her remains found in the cellar.

Chief Inspector Dew does not believe that Miss Ethel Leneve was an accomplice with Dr Hawley H. Crippen in the slaying of Belle Elmore, the doctor's wife, but he thinks the typewriter may be of material assistance to him as a witness for the prosecution.

His treatment of Miss Leneve, today, which was sympathetic and considerate, in marked contrast to the severity he used with respect to Dr Crippen indicates that before he starts back to England with his prisoners he intends to have a complete statement from the young woman who loved her employer well enough to leave her home in London with him and humiliate herself by parading for eleven days in masculine raiment before a shipload of people.

It may be said positively that the Scotland yard detective is endeavoring to gain the confidence of Miss Leneve to the end that her services may be had in the prosecution of Dr Crippen for the murder of his wife.

In place of a subjection to the ordeal of an arraignment in court and its embarrassments, the young stenographer was practically a guest in the home of Chief McCarthy of the provincial police. Mrs McCarthy ministered to her and was careful not to give the young woman the impression that she was under arrest.

LONDON, Aug. 3—"I had seen or heard nothing until the cruel blow fell. Am returning home." This message from Ethel LeNeve was received by her sister in London it brought great relief to the relatives of the woman who is charged jointly with Crippen with the murder of Crippen's wife. The mother and sister sent numerous telegrams to ethel expressing confidence in her innocence and urging her to tell all to the police.

Search of the Registry offices failed to reveal any evidence that Ethel was married to Crippen.

Inspector Dew testified at the inquest that Ethel Leneve did not claim to be married but said that she was Crippen's housekeeper. She told her parents, however, that she was married, but made excuses when they asked her to show her marriage certificate.

The Scotland Yard officials reiterate their denial of the report that Inspector Dew has received from London a cablegram stating that the mutilated body found in the cellar of Crippen's house has been identified.

ROSELLE, N. J., Aug. 3—"The infatuation of Ethel Clara Le Neve for Dr. Crippen had nothing to do with the disappearance of his wife. I am sure of that and I was intimate in their home life.

"If he killed Belle Elmore it was in a fit of ungovernable temper over some petty quarrel. Bell was never jealous to my knowledge. Her husband admired her, took pains to serve her smallest wishes and was genuinely fond of her. I believe Ethel Le Neve came into the story later."

Such is the opinion of Mme. Fred Ginnett, a close friend of the Crippens, who has just returned to her home here after identifying both Crippen and his companion at Quebec. An associate with Belle Elmore in the London Theatrical Benefit Society, of which they were both officers, Mme. Ginnett was among the first to distrust the death notice of her friend appearing in the London papers. She suspected a hidden tragedy and, although in this country, her activity in forcing her suspicion on the London police was largely responsible for the investigation set on foot by Scotland Yard which first gave Dr Crippen alarm. Since coming to this country she has kept in continuous touch with the little circle of intimates who were welcome a the home in Hilldrop Crescent and she speaks from their knowledge as well as her own. Therefore her opinions command attention, though they differ from those hitherto advanced.

"I believe Ethel LeNeve is absolutely innocent of any criminal knowledge of how Belle Elmore came to her death," continued Mme. Ginnett. "I believe the doctor missed his wife after he killed her and that he rushed, as a lonely man will often do, to the woman who had been associated with him in business. Certainly she showed her willingness to make sacrifices for him. Few women would cut off their hair and go through the constant humiliation of daily masquerade in ill-fitting, unbecoming garments for any man."

LUMBER KING WAS GENEROUS

Employees of Booth Lumber Mills Were Paid For Idle Time.

Special to The Guardian.

OTTAWA, August 4—The 2,500 employees of the Booth Lumber Mills who were temporarily thrown out of employment for a week through the Grand Trunk strike have, through the generosity of Canada's millionaire Lumber King, been paid in full for the time they were idle.

This means a gift of $12,000 by Mr Booth to his employes.

When they met today they tendered him hearty thanks.

MAN HUNT KEEPS 600 AT WORK.

QUINCY, Mass., Aug. 3 Although the Quincy police and citizens generally put in a busy day running down what for a time looked like a good clue, Luigi Resteli, the much sought double murderer is still at large tonight. Six hundred persons joined the police in the man hunt today, threshing a swamp off Pearl street, near South Braintree, following the statement of John Beardon, a Braintree boy, who told of having been accosted by a man answering the description of Resteli. Three men fell into the hands of the police during the search, but in each instance it was soon proved that they were not the much sought man. Two of the men proved to be simply knights of the road, while the third one the one the Beardon boy first saw, claimed that he was on the way to Plymouth in search of employment.

The first two were quickly released but the latter was held at the Quincy police station for further questioning. He gave his name as John McGilvary, of Roxbury. He admitted that he had asked the Beardon boy for food and water, altho the lad does not think he is the same man. After questioning for some time, McGilvary was allowed to go late in the afternoon, and immediately headed for Roxbury. The residents of Quincy are still as determined as ever that Resteli shall be captured dead or alive, and tonight continued plans for his taking.

A petition is now being circulated by prominent citizens asking that a reward be offered for his capture. Money is also being subscribed for the purpose of dynamiting the quarry holes in the north common section. Many persons still believe that the man has drowned himself in one of these quarry holes and that the use of dynamite will bring his body to the surface and thus relieve the feeling of suspense which hangs over the city.

WINNIPEG HAS THE BLACK HAND

Members of The Society May Be Ordered to Kill Or Steal.

Special to The Guardian.

WINNIPEG, August 4—A Black Hand case in which six Italians were arrested last week is dragging along slowly in the police court.

The most sensational evidence so far is that of Pasquale Devonna who had been invited to join the society and was told he might be called on to kill or steal or anything else that was ordered.

The initiation fee was $10 and Devonna was threatened with death if he did not join.

Devonna paid the $10, but balked when asked for more.

He had attended a meeting of the society in Winnipeg.

THREE WORKING ELECTROCUTED

Special to The Guardian.

ST. JOHN BOARD NOT TO TAKE PART IN MARITIME MEETING

ST JOHN, Aug. 3—When the Maritime Board of Trade meets in Chatham this month, there will be no representative of the St John board present.

At the last meeting of the maritime organization, as will be remembered, St John withdrew, and they have not since, so it is stated, been found reasons for reaffiliating.

At all events, it was stated definitely yesterday that the local board of trade would send no delegates to the Chatham meeting.

SHAREHOLDERS GLOOMY OVER INCREASE OF WAGES FOR MEN

LONDON, Aug. 3—The Financier says the G. T. R. shareholders cannot conceal from themselves that the concessions made the men will impose a comparatively heavy burden on the company. However, they have no option out to approve, the only alternative being a paralyzation of business.

St. Albans, Vt., Aug 3—Misunderstandings which developed during the day in connection with the settlement of the Central Vermont strike announced last night, were cleared away by tonight. Officials of the road and representative organizations of conductors, trainmen and yardmen tonight expressed themselves as prepared to abide by the terms of the agreement.

The men who have been on strike will be given their old positions as fast as possible, but men hired during the strike with the understandings that their positions were to be permanent, will not be discharged. It is understood that the first of the strikers will return to work tomorrow. W. A. Shannon, secretary of the general committee of the order of railway conductors, who has had charge of the local situation for the strikers, and who during the day said that the strike was not actually settled, tonight stated that the agreement was complete. It was a misinterpretation of the arrangements for taking the strikers back which led to today's differences.

UP HILL

By Christina Georgina Rossetti, (1830—1894.)

Does the road wind up hill all the way?
Yes, to the very end.
Will the day's journey take the whole long day?
From morn to night, my friend.

But is there for the night a resting place?
A roof for when the slow, dark hours begin.
May not the darkness hide it from my face?
You cannot miss that inn.

Shall I meet other wayfarers at night?
Those who have gone before.
Then must I knock, or call when just in sight?
They will not keep you waiting at that door.

Shall I find comfort, travel-sore and weak?
Of labor you shall find the sum.
Will there be beds for me and all who seek?
Yea, beds for all who come.
