A Sinister Record

A clipping preserved by a subscriber, dated April, 1919, throws a revealing light on German war mentality. It is a quotation from an editorial appearing at that time in the New York Tribune, and it reads as follows:

One hundred years before Christ 300,000 Germans invaded France murdering, burning, pillaging as they went. At Aix-en-Provence they were stopped and defeated. They sued for peace and swore they would never do it again. Sixty years after that 240,000 Germans invaded the Jura districts of France. Six years later 400,000 Germans invaded the territory between the Meuse and the Oise. They were beaten. They swore they would never do it again.

Sixty years after Christ the Germans invaded the left bank of the Rhine. Two hundred and thirty years after Christ the Germans invaded France. They were beaten. They swore they never would do it again; twenty years later, another invasion, another defeat, another solemn pledge "never again." In 274 A. D. the Rhone basin was invaded by the Germans; in 275 northeastern France; in 301 Langres was pillaged. The invaders were beaten and they swore "never again." In 351 they reconquered the left bank of the Rhine; in 354 they devastated Lyons; in 360 Besancon; in 364 they invaded and plundered Belgium.

Here is the chronology of the subsequent invasions: 372, 382, 400, 410, 413, 800, 858, 978, 1124, 1214, 1513, 1521, 1523, 1536, 1674, 1675, 1707, 1708, 1744, 1792, 1793, 1814, 1815, 1870, 1914. Thirty-three invasions in a little over fifteen hundred years, an average of one invasion every fifty years.

Whenever they were successful the Germans celebrated with unspeakable atrocities. Whenever they were beaten they swore they would never do it again.

This has been their history, which the events of the past two years bring out in sinister relief. Hitler's vindication of Germany's right to invade peaceful neighbors, to plunge the world into bloodshed, is based on the centuries-old misconception of the Germans as a superior race. It is the foundation of the Nazi creed, which must be eradicated before any lasting peace can be made conceivable.

Spitzbergen

The despatches reporting the greatest operation of Canadian forces in the war—the seizing of the Norwegian islands of Spitzbergen—are indefinite as to whether a Canadian garrison has been left there. What is clear is that with the support of British and Norwegian detachments, Canadian troops made a sudden descent on these remote Arctic islands in a dawn attack, the landing parties being warmly greeted by the populace which included many Russian miners. The coal mines were seized and the civilian population evacuated. The Germans, apparently, were taken by surprise, and had no forces in the vicinity.

Nothing is said as to the strategic importance of the Spitzbergen archipelago in view of the Russian-German conflict, but this factor may have been the determining one in the landing effected by Canadians. The islands lie midway between Greenland and Franz Josef Land, 500 miles off the Norwegian mainland and only 750 miles from the North Pole. They comprise West Spitzbergen, North-East Land, Edge Island, Parents Island, Prince Charles Foreland, the Wiehe Islands, Hope Island and many smaller islands, with a total area of some 25,000 square miles.

The sharp peaks which gave Spitzbergen its name rise to over three and four thousand feet. The climate is moderated by a warm North Atlantic drift, leaving an open passage to the western coast during most months.

"Even in the coldest months of the winter," say the Encyclopaedia Britannica, "a thaw may set in for a few days; but on the other hand, snow sometimes falls in July and August. Spring comes in June; the snow becomes saturated with water and disappears in places, and scurvy grass and the polar willow open their buds. By the end of June, the thermometer has ceased to sink below the freezing point at night; July, August and September are the best months. In September, however, autumn sets in on shore, and by the end of the month pack-ice rapidly freezes into one solid mass."

Discovered in 1596, Spitzbergen was for a long time regarded as part of Greenland. That indefatigable traveller, Henry Hudson, visited it in 1607. Many expeditions have since made the islands their base for polar exploration. Nordenskiold in 1872 set out to winter in Spitzbergen with the intention of attempting in the spring to advance towards the Pole on sledges drawn by reindeer. His party encountered a series of misfortunes; their ships were beset in the ice very early in Mussel Bay, provisions ran low, the reindeer all made their escape during a snow-storm, and the idea of going north had to be abandoned in favor of exploring the ice-sheet covering North-East Land. The Britannica records other misadventures, one in 1807 by Herr Andre who made a fatal balloon ascent from Danes Island with the intention of floating over the Pole.

Speaking yesterday in the British House of Commons, Prime Minister Churchill referred to the Allied front as running now "in an immense crescent from Spitzbergen in the Arctic Ocean to Tobruk in the western desert." He made no further reference to the Canadians' achievement, but indicated that it was the intention to "hold this front" and secure the sea routes against attack.

EDITORIAL NOTES

"Facilis descensus Averno est," we are told, when once you begin to go down hill. The City Council is a case in point; it is so concerned with petty trifling little things that it allows great events, its reputation, and its leadership to irretrievably suffer. On Monday night, for instance, instead of asserting its leadership at the memorable first meeting of Provincial Mayors, it stayed at home bickering, and allowed Summerside to assume the leadership.

The City Council, by their decision in the police dismissal case, have rendered of non-effect that part of their charter constituting a Police Commission. From henceforth any or all of the decisions of the Commission with regard to dismissal may be subject to review by the Council as a whole. In other words, the responsibility of both "hiring and firing" rests with the Council. The effect of this on police discipline remains to be demonstrated.

Stocks of raw cattle hides held by tanners, packers and dealers in Canada amounted 387,455 at the end of July compared with 591,911 on the corresponding date last year. Calf and kip skins on hand totalled 586,875 compared with 644,661, goat and kid skins 106,588 compared with 4,190 and horse hides 14,122 compared with 15,842. There were also 54,124 dozen sheep and lamb skins in store compared with 45,170 dozen a year ago.

British farms are maintaining the production of milk to within 10 per cent of the record production of the two years preceding the war. The consumption of liquid milk has been largely increased by deliberate government action. There was an increase of 20 million gallons in the first year of the war, and if the present rate of increase continues the increase in the second year will be more than another 100 million gallons. It is anticipated that it will be possible to maintain this largely expanded wartime production.

Harvard College, now University, founded this date 1639. It is the oldest, wealthiest and most important of American institutions of learning, situated three miles west of Boston. Named after the Rev. John Harvard, a Cambridge graduate, who died in 1638, leaving books and money for its establishment (at a place called Cambridge in honour of his old English University) for the training of young men for the Puritan Ministry. The constitution was gradually changed in a liberal direction, and in 1866 it was freed from all sectarian tests, and even the compulsory attendance of students at prayers was abolished.

Although shipments of cheese from New Zealand to the United Kingdom set a record during the 1940-41 season, when they were 20 per cent above the previous season, the United Kingdom Government has contracted to purchase a greatly increased quantity in the current (1941-42) season and for the remaining years of the war, and one year thereafter. Under an agreement reached in late June with the New Zealand Government, Britain will purchase up to 160,000 tons of cheese, which is about 50,000 tons more than shipped by New Zealand last season. The cheese will be paid for whether shipped or not for the coming season; in subsequent years payment will be made on the basis of the quantity shipped.

Under amendments to the gasoline rationing regulations, effective July first last, private car owners in Australia will be allowed only sufficient gasoline to drive a thousand miles a year, and no gas will be allowed for drive-yourself cars nor for private pleasure boats. Licences for commercial vehicles and industrial and farm machinery at the same time were made subject to a reduction of 10 per cent. Still further restrictions, effective on August 1, reduce licences for farm vehicles by half and for commercial vehicles by two-fifths, set the gasoline ration for taxis and private-hire vehicles at 40 per cent and for tourist vehicles at 25 per cent of their original ration, and allow omnibuses and service cars to receive 85 per cent and farm and industrial machinery 50 per cent of their previous allowances of gasoline.

The 1941 hog production for Canada as a whole is being maintained at approximately the same record level as was achieved in 1940. The 1941 spring pig crop is estimated at 99.5 p. c. of last year's crop, and the total number of hogs on farms at June 1 this year is estimated at 101.9 p. c. of the 1940 total. In actual numbers there were 5,994,000 hogs on farms at June 1 as compared with 5,882,000 a year earlier, and the record number of 6,117,000 at December 1, 1940. The 1941 spring pig crop totalled 5,047,900 as compared with 5,073,200 last year. The number on farms at June 1 this year was as follows by provinces, with figures for 1940 in brackets: Prince Edward Island, 54,400 (43,200); Nova Scotia, 46,500 (52,800); New Brunswick, 77,500 (97,100); Quebec, 707,800 (936,900); Ontario, 1,936,300 (1,997,900); Manitoba, 502,700 (408,700); Saskatchewan, 836,900 (791,000); Alberta, 1,652,300 (1,371,100); British Columbia, 88,800 (83,100),

It isn't a real boom yet. You don't hear the customer saying: "Is this the most expensive you have?"—Detroit Free Press.

A Conservative Party report from Victoria complains there is little interest in the coming Provincial election. The reason, of course, chiefly lies in the fact that nobody can get excited because there is no real battle. About the result there is no question. The best the Conservatives can do is concentrate on the proposition of electing an effective Opposition. That is something that has not existed in British Columbia for some years. Its absence surely is no fault of the Government.—Vancouver Sun.

It is in the rural districts that one appreciates the value of good neighbors. They are not far away, but the rural dweller knows that they stand ready to lend a helping hand in any emergency. They will be there to comfort and cheer, to help and to lend a willing hand at the sawing bee or the harvest. One may not have many friends or neighbors in the country, but the ones that are true. The happiest moments of farm life are those spent in the company of the folks from the next farm or the next concession. A farmer once said: "I know my neighbors, and have always lived in the country. I hope to die in the country. I have a good farm, a contented family and good neighbors. My neighbors are my best friends. I know them when I am in need they will help me. They have stood by me in the past, and I have stood by them. I still have neighbors; will still have plenty."—Stirling News-Argus.

So many people are going "on mums" that these days it is surprising that there should have been many radical changes in employment. One of the most striking to come to my notice (writes a correspondent) is that of a man who for nearly 30 years has presided in a "key" position at the counter of a well-known Liverpool snack bar. He joined the firm as a clerk 10 years ago and has since spent his entire life ministering to the midday hunger of commercial Liverpool. But the hands which all this time have caressed and polished the counter, the bottles and poured out glasses of bitter with a beautiful "head" are now helping to turn out munitions of war.—Liverpool Post.

The post office is getting returned hundreds of stamps made unfit by incendiary bombs or burned under wreckage. Many safes have been recovered from the wreckage, and in nearly all of them were sheets of stamps. Heat had melted the gum and joined sheets in compact blocks, but experts at headquarters could not separate the stamps and assess the value. A commission of 5 per cent is charged on the face value of the stamps; repurchased. Inland revenue, insurance, and entertainment stamps, medicine stamps and playing cards wrappers have also been found. All have a value.—London Sunday Dispatch.

No one lately has blamed King Leopold of Belgium for surrendering. His army had nearly spent its munitions; it was cut off from its allies; the alternative was to surrender. The reproach has been that he did not give notice to the French and British Commands. The facts as now established show that in a sense this is true, but it was not the King's fault. Twice on May 27—in the morning and at 5 p.m.—he gave notice of his intentions. But his messages, through they reached the French and British Governments, failed to reach the French and British Commands. The only medium available was wireless, and the repeated messages sent were not received. In short, both sides are acquitted—the King of any dereliction, and the French and British Commands of any mis-statement.—London Spectator.

We have never found any reason for regarding Charles Lindbergh as a politician or other kind of philosopher. He knows enough to fly an airplane, and a recent writer has shown that he has always been highly competent in the art of feathering his own nest. He was also smart enough to marry a rich wife. But there is no reason for thinking that the ability to fly in the air, or to look out for number one, or the cleverness to marry a girl who is not likely to land one in the poorhouse, is tantamount to being a great statesman.—San Francisco Argonaut.

Italian troops are now doing police chores for Hitler in Poland, relieving Germans from front-line duty. Apparently Mussolini's legions are not trusted to stand up against the hard-hitting Russians.—(Ottawa Journal).

Nearly 23,000 hundred-weights of swordfish, these fine big food fish which carry their own weapon with them, were landed last year by Canadian fishermen from Nova Scotia waters, but where they came from is something else again. Where these swordfish are spawned is one of the questions which puzzled scientists. The swordfish is a big, swift, powerful creature, sometimes running several hundred pounds in weight. It is distinguished by a short, high dorsal fin and the flat sword which it thrusts out before it. Actually, the sword is a prolongation of the jaw and the fish can use it with great power, even driving it through the bottom of a fishing boat.—Fisheries News Bulletin.

A correspondent writes of an unusual incident experienced this summer when on holiday in North Wales. A crowd which had gathered around a small boy was buying eggs from him one penny each. The eggs, which had been washed up by the sea, were, according to local fishermen, part of the cargo of eggs of a steamer bombed at two weeks' interval by enemy aircraft at least 100 miles away. As people were not too sure of their quality the eggs were being bought only one or two at a time, and it was not until later in the day that the correspondent discovered, to his surprise, that after their long drift and buffeting, few were discovered broken.—Liverpool Post.

A FISHING TRIP

Sir:—Here is a description of a fishing trip I had a few years ago on the Miramichi River, between Half Moon on the N.T.R. and Boiestown, N.B., a distance of 65 miles or more.

Hazen Carter, a retired C.N.R. employee, and I found an old boat and when we bailed the water out, I pulled it up on the bank and when I dried we patched it up, caulked it with oakum and tarred the seams, making it watertight. We then nailed three boards, two feet apart, across on both sides and covered the top with boards and drove a nail in each end to keep them from sliding and we also put a railing all around, to keep anything from falling off. We had several large tin boxes with covers, into which we put our perishable stuff such as tea, sugar, bread, cakes, etc.—We had a side of smoked mutton, a few potatoes, butter, 10 pounds flour, 10 pounds buckwheat meal, to make pancakes in case our bread went stale.—We had a small tent, a gallon of kerosene, a farm lamp, a hatchet and a chopping axe to make tent pegs.

Next day we sailed down the river but did not do any fishing and in the evening we noticed a camp near the shore, so we tied up our boat and entered. There was a notice tacked up, telling us to help ourselves to anything we wanted but we did not touch any of their supplies as we had plenty of our own. We turned on the radio, which we took with us and heard noises outside the camp, but did not investigate. In the morning we found our boat and entered.
