to have been more industrious in the interest of Western farmers. Attacks, not by political opponents but in the House of his friends, have awakened an emotional resentment.

His present collapse is due to a combination of unceasing work and strain of a somewhat emotional character, accentuated by the withering heat of the past two days. Great regret is expressed over Mr. Dunning's indisposition, but the assurance is gratifying that he has no organic ailment or condition that a little rest will not quickly rectify. He will be 53 years old next month. He looks to be robust, but is not as strong as he appears.

The parade took more than 90 minutes to pass a given spot. Sidewalks were lined with spectators.

At the head of the parade marched the Zouaves, organized for defence of the Pope in the war of 1870. Their red-sashed uniforms of grey with the loose, knee-high trousers were among the most attractive in the immense parade.

During the day study sessions were held in city churches for married and single women, and tonight there was a general hour of adoration for the faithful in all churches of the city. A special hour of adoration for priests was held tonight in the chapel of St. Bridgid's Home, next to St. Patrick's Church on Grande Allee in uptown Quebec.

SHIRLEY TEMPLE CAPTIVATES CAPACITY HOUSE AT CAPITOL, S'SIDE

Shirley Temple, the screen's favorite, plays her greatest role in "Heidi" a never-to-be-forgotten picture, from the beloved story by Johanna Spyn, which opened at the Capitol Theatre last night with a crowded house.

Everywhere readers in all languages have been charged by the warmth, tenderness and beauty of the Swiss Alps and all the colorful folk dwelling up just under the stars, into whose lives "Heidi" brings tenderness and mirth and courage. An embittered mountain-top exile is reclaimed from his fierce hate of the world by the heroine, who brings him a new zest for life, and a young girl is given strength and the will to walk again in the story that has thrilled readers of every country.

"Heidi", one of the world's famous stories, had to wait for its star before it could be brought to the screen, declares Darryl F. Zanuck, and the reason is evident. Shirley was cast in the title role in response to the thousands of movie fans who besieged the studio with requests that she play the part.

The result is a picture for which she will be remembered always. Ideally cast and gloriously portrayed, the screen play by Walter Ferris and Julien Josephson is an achievement in transcribing a familiar and beloved story to the screen.

Heading the cast is Jean Hersholt, famous veteran actor who gives his greatest characterization as the grandfather of "Heidi". A taciturn recluse dwelling high in the Alps, the character is the most difficult he has ever had to portray, Hersholt says, because the burden of the delineation is placed on physical mannerisms and attention to detail's of action and dress.

Arthur Treacher, as the comic butler in a rich Frankfort home, is "Heidi's" sole defender in many dramatic scenes, and a sympathetic portrayal of "Blind Anna" is provided by Hellen Westley.

Other leading roles in the story are played by Pauline Moore, Thomas Beck, Mary Nash, Sidney Blackmer, Mady Christians and Sig Rumann.

On a novel set depicting the colorful Zuyder Zee, Shirley and a large chorus enact an elaborate dance sequence, with special routines arranged by Sammy Lee. Shirley also sings the grand new novelty tune, "In Our Little Wooden Shoes," written by Lew Pollack and Sidney D. Mitchell.

Allan Dwan directed "Heidi" with Raymond Griffith as associate producer.

Hydraulic Fish Draws Visitors

(C.P.))—For four years a "hydraulic fish" has been working outside the home of Arthur W. Attridge here and approaching something close to perpetual motion. Through tourists, attracted here by the invention, it has become known in many parts of the continent.

The hollow fish, built of wood and metal, is about four feet long and fastened to the ends of two poles. These drop to a stream every few seconds and then lift the water-filled fish 15 feet to a barrel, into which the water flows from the fish's mouth and thence down a pipe to the barn and farmhouse.

The poles are set on an axle. On the end opposite the fish is a tank filled by the spillway of a small dam. The weight of this tank, when filled, lifts and dumps the fish. Then the water in the tank is automatically released. Lightened of its load, the tank rises to the spillway again. This drops the fish into the pool to be refilled.

To work the fish, Attridge ingeniously devised a maze of machinery from junk articles including tin cans, a shoe heel, cart wheel, broken plow handle and parts of an old mowing machine, as well as the "counter-balance" or gasoline tank salvaged from a wrecked car.

Heavy Loss Sustained In Bedeque Fire

Messrs. W. T. Bowness and Sons of Bedeque suffered a heavy loss on Friday morning when their large departmental store, warehouse and garage was burned to the ground.

The fire was first noticed by Miss Lowther in a nearby house, who happened to awaken and saw the interior of the building afire. She roused the neighbors, but the fire had gained such headway that it was impossible to save anything. The fire apparently started in the rear of the building on an upstair storeroom.

Bowness store was an old landmark and had been there for nearly fifty years. It was first started by Mr. W. T. Bowness and a Mr. Newsom and later Mr. Bowness' sons Walter and Hammond came into the firm. It was a large departmental store and catered to the residents of the surrounding districts.

Mr. W. T. Bowness had been ill for some time and in fact had not fully recovered and the fire was a great shock. The buildings were valued at about $20,000, partly covered by insurance.

The house next door was blackened by the flames, but willing hands kept the fire in check. It was about noon on Friday before the flames died down.—S.

Vision Changed Lakes And Bogs Into Marshland

SACKVILLE N.B., June 24—(C.P.)—Rolling fields of the Tantramar marshes district stand as a monument to Tolar Thompson, whose vision changed Westmorland County lakes and bogs into fertile haylands.

Contemporaries derided Thompson early in the last century when he talked of changing Long Lake to meadowland by cutting a canal from the lake to permit outflow of fresh water at low tide and inflow of Bay of Fundy water at high tide.

So unaided he dug a small canal and then invited others to see how incoming tidal water deposited a residue and built new land day after day. Soon neighbors were asking Thompson to turn their worthless bog into fertile land.

The first large canal he planned was named in his honor. Started in 1815 it ran two miles from Tantramar River to Rush Lake and converted 900 acres of lake and bog into marsh.

He then undertook the Goose Lake caanl, which reclaimed 1,000 acres and improved adjoining land. His next work, Floating Canal, was four miles long and drained 4,000 acres. He went on from success to success, reclaiming many thousand of acres. Long Lake, once a large body of water, is a meadow now and scores of former small lakes are hayfields.

These hayfields are worth $100 an acre. The land has been administered on democratic principles since Thompson's time, owners having one vote for each acre. The votes may be exercised every four years, when the marsh commissioners are elected, and special occasions when problems arise.

Cost of repairs and development work is assessed similarly. An owner of 1,000 acres pays ten times as much as another owning 100 acres.

Two tons of hay per acre is considered a good cut. The crop flourishes in rich, red mud left by the tidal water. Barns dot the world's greatest marsh land as far as the eye can reach. Every year the hay is shipped to near and distant markets. The marshes comprise about 50,000 acres, yielding up to 100,000 tons of hay annually

House Approves Tax Changes In The Budget

OTTAWA, June 24—(C.P.)—The House of Commons today approved the last of the tax changes contained in the budget submitted last week. Amendments to the Income War Tax Act were approved this afternoon and last night changes in the sales tax, exempting building materials and certain other commodities were approved.

Conservative Leader Bennett thought a provision aimed at the evasion of income tax through transactions outside Canada did not go far enough. It deals with transactions carried on by a person or corporation ordinarily resident in Canada. He thought persons who had formerly resided in Canada and had left for the purpose of avoiding taxation should also be dealt with.

Revenue Minister Ilsley said the Government wished to avoid retaliation by other countries against persons resident in Canada and deriving income from abroad. He did not see how it would be possible to discriminate in order to reach certain persons who had left Canada without imposing a tax on all income derived from Canada by non-residents.

The amendment provides that where a person or corporation resident in Canada effects a transaction through a person or corporation resident abroad which has the effect of reducing liability to taxation the person or corporation resident in Canada will be liable to taxation as if the transaction had not taken place.

"If the money is made in Canada the arm of Canada is long enough and strong enough to take it," said Mr. Bennett.

Changes in the gift tax were approved with little discussion. They raise the rate of the tax from two to five per cent on gifts up to $25,000 and correspondingly on larger gifts.

At the same time gifts up to a certain amount depending on the income tax payments of the donor are exempted from the gift tax. The exemption applies if the gifts in any year do not except one half the difference between the total income and the federal income tax payment of the donor.

Thus if a man has an income of $250,000 and pays an income tax of $100,000 he may give away $75,000 without paying any gift tax.

Kensington Scores Initial Win Defeating Vitamannas

Kensington batted hard last evening and this combined with effective battery duty earned them their first victory of the year, a 15-11 decision over the Vitamannas.

The acquisition of Reg Phillips, local veteran behind the bat added great strength to the out of town entry. Phillips in his first appearance for Kensington turned in a fine performance. The game was late in getting away and but five innings were completed and then produced nothing of note except some heavy batting. Willett, young Vitamannas right hander was knocked from the mound in the fourth and replaced by Lyle. Kensington were not to be deterred, however, and went to work on the new hurler for five runs, making a total of nine for the inning.

Ben Richards produced the highlight of the game, a beautiful home run to left with one on in the fifth.

The next game will be Monday between the bitter rivals Pioneers and Vitamannas. Every effort will be made to get the game away on time.

Ship Takes Silk Stockings North

BOSTON, June 25—(C.P.)—Hundreds of pairs of silk stockings were loaded aboard the Grenfell Mission schooner George B. Cluett to be taken to the Labrador, but the women of that land will never wear them. They will be made into hooked rugs.

The stockings, discarded by New England women, will be exchanged for food and clothing at the various Grenfell posts on the Labrador. The Labrador women have not much use for silk stockings but they have many uses for the rugs.

About 100 cases of other articles of clothing, mostly donated, were also loaded aboard the Cluett which was tied up at the Army Base. Kenneth Iversen of Lunenburg, N.S., is captain of the schooner.

Urges Encouragement To Credit Unions

(C.P. By Guardian's Special Wire)

OTTAWA, June 24—Direct encouragement of cooperative credit unions by the Federal government was urged in the House of Commons tonight by W. A. Tucker (Lib. Rosthern) as a means of eliminating the loan shark.

He spoke on a bill to revise the charter of the industrial loan and finance corporation and opposed it. No progress was made with the bill in committee of the whole House during private members hours.

SOLDIER'S LIFE SAVED BY BIBLE

VANCOUVER, June 14—(C.P.)—John Fowler, formerly of the 102nd battalion, showed a little torn bible today and told how it saved his life in the war 20 years ago.

"I had it in my tunic and it stopped this" he said, showing a piece of shrapnel in a little tin box. Then he exhibited the small testament, torn inward from the cover to the book of psalms where the shrapnel stopped at the 33rd.

Congratulations are extended to Jean Clark, Velda Hardy and Bruce Currie who were successful in passing the Grade VIII examinations given last week.

A very successful bingo and dance was held at the home of Mr. Leo McInnis of Brocton on Wednesday. A number of people enjoyed the evening. A neat sum of money was realized.

Messrs. Leigh O'Brien and Claude MacNeill recently attended the dance held in St. Lawrence Hall on Thursday. F.

S.P.C.A. NOTES

Inspector McLean reports this week:

19 cats (sick and public nuisance) destroyed.

8 bags of young kittens destroyed.

One blind dog destroyed.

One sick and mangy dog destroyed.

14 dogs treated for different ailments.

Between 35 and 40 calls responded to.

Inspector McLean would like to remind the public—and especially children—that dogs are more or less dangerous during the very hot weather and should not ever be teased. In almost every case of children being bitten by dogs, there has been evidence on investigation, of the dogs being teased in the first place. Dogs suffer excessively from heat, and they get out of sorts, just as we do ourselves when we are hot and uncomfortable. If you are frightened of a dog, never let him know it—by crying out—or running from him You attract his attention, and he may chase you. In nine cases out of ten he thinks its a game.

Animals are very quick to detect fear, and as fear is a sign of weakness, they are likely to take advantage of it; so whether you feel brave or not, pretend you do, if you meet a dog on the street you think looks cross. In most cases he'll pay no attention to you. A dog will seldom attack a cat that faces him; but let that cat turn and run, and see what happens!

Children are prone to tease dogs and cats, but it should be explained to them that it is a dangerous practice—especially in hot weather.

As a precaution against distemper and other ailments dogs and cats are likely to suffer from during the summer months, leave a good supply of fresh water with a little rock sulphur in it where the animals can drink all they need. Citizens who have the welfare of animals at heart, are asked to leave a pan of water outside their homes for both birds and animals.

Will Follow-up Annexation Plan

(C. P. by Guardian's Special Wire)

OTTAWA, June 24—J. F. Pouliot (Lib. Temiscouata) said today he will confer with the Canadian Government during the parliamentary recess on his plans of annexing five square miles of northern Maine. He presented a petition to the House of Commons three weeks ago on the subject but it was ruled out of order.

The object is to place the small population of the area in Canadian territory. They trade in Canada now because of the inaccessibility of American towns but are charged customs and excise duties.
