Graphic Motion Picture View Of Red Cross Work

A graphic demonstration of the work which the Red Cross Society is doing on behalf of crippled children in the Province was given in the main dining room of the Canadian National Hotel last evening following a joint supper of the Rotary and Gyro Clubs. Club members, their wives and guests were present in large numbers, and the function was a most enjoyable one. The demonstration of crippled children's work took the form of a motion picture film, taken and exhibited by Mr. Cleveland Craswell. The picture was very interesting, and showed some of the remarkable results achieved by surgical skill and scientific treatment in cases of infantile paralysis, spastic paralysis, structural and spinal curvature, club foot, wry neck and other disabilities. Miss Wilson, Chief Red Cross nurse, gave an explanation of the cases as they were shown on the screen.

Hon. Dr. W. J. P. MacMillan, Premier and Minister of Health and Education, presided, and in introducing the pictures said that successful as this initial effort was in the way of motion picture publicity, it was hoped later to show still more encouraging pictures of many of the cases treated. It was, he said, a matter of great pride and satisfaction that crippled children's work was so well advanced in this Province.

In this connection he paid a warm tribute to the work of Dr. Thomas Acker, of Halifax, "the greatest friend Prince Edward Island has known, especially in regard to children." The clinic was started by Miss Wilson in this Province in June, 1926, and is held twice a year. In the eight years 826 children have been examined. The number of examinations has been 1,420, the number of operations, manipulations and other treatments given, 183, 155 children have been given muscle training and massage treatments by Miss MacDonnell, the total number of treatments given in these cases being 4,400. The amount of money spent for treatment of handicapped children by the Red Cross in this Province has been $9,640. $2,463.89 has been contributed by the Charlottetown Rotary Club, and $1,000 by the Gyro Club through T. B. Seal sales.

"That is the reason," said the speaker, "that the Rotary and Gyro Clubs are assembled here tonight, because they are the joint sponsors of this work. The Rotarians, being the older society, have been carrying on the work for a longer period, but there is the utmost co-operation and harmony upon this, the most worthy object in which any societies can be engaged." The speaker referred to the untiring efforts of Miss Wilson, and her assistant nurses and staff of the Red Cross Society, also to the co-operation that has been extended by the hospitals of the Province, the medical profession, and many others interested. The result is that so far as crippled and handicapped children are concerned, we stand better than any other Province in Canada.

"I say that," declared the Premier, "after examining the evidence from the other Provinces of Canada, that we are in touch with more of our crippled children per capita than any other Province; that we have made more progress. The work is still going on. It means money, of course, and the most important work in which any organization can be engaged." The function closed with the National Anthem.

Accumulation of the ice around the lock gates has rendered almost impossible operation of the gates and lower temperatures are expected with the easterly movement of a cold wave now sweeping Ontario. Some 40 steamers, the majority downbound with package freight, grain and coal are halted by heavy ice blocking the Soulages Canal. Two strong tugs, the John Pratt and Rival, are attempting to clear a channel for the lake freighters but continuing low temperatures render their tasks increasingly difficult.

Heavy ice floating in the St. Lawrence between Montreal and Quebec is threatening navigation in that section of the busy St. Lawrence. There are still 52 steamers and motor ships scheduled to sail from Montreal for overseas before the close of navigation and Government icebreakers are working frantically to keep the channel from sealing up before these vessels get away.

Held At Quebec

A number of ocean-going steamers have been forced to remain at Quebec by a severe snow storm which gripped that city, followed by howling winds and bitter cold. A convoy, including the Limer Duchesse of Bedford, was to have left today but conditions in the river between Quebec and Murray Bay, 80 miles below were such that departure was called off until tomorrow.

It is expected that at dawn the convoy will leave, in the wake of Government icebreakers.

Eight ocean-going steamers and three catalized craft, which left Montreal on Sunday, anchored between Three Rivers and Quebec tonight. The icebreakers Bellechasse and Sauri are at hand to help them down the river tomorrow.

Joe merchant, had been taken from San Francisco Bay, climaxed a spectacular battle between officers barricaded in the jail and the determined mob. The muttering throng began gathering about the jail about 9 p.m. The jail, an antiquated brick building to the rear of the court house, had been prepared against the possibility of a lynch movement but was unable to withstand the improvised battering rams of the attackers. Automobiles, parked across the alleys about the jail building, did little to impede the advances of the besiegers.

Two shots, fired from the crowd as a signal, started the first attack. A barrage of rocks, gathered from across the alley, where a new post office is under construction, clattered against the jail walls. Officers within the jail let loose with three tear gas bombs. Blinded and weeping, the attackers fell back.

Smash in Jail Door

The blinding tear gas from the first three bombs was still hanging like a thin veil about the building when the second attack began. Several of the attackers took from the post office building a piece of steel pipe eight inches in diameter and about 20 feet long and used it as a battering ram, smashing in the jail door. Officers turned another barrage of tear gas, momentarily stopping the assault. After waiting for a few moments for the gas to lift, the mob stormed ahead once more, playing a fire hose on the building as it advanced. A second group seized another pipe and joined the attackers. The steel doors of the jail gave way and the mob poured in, encouraged by cheering thousands outside.

Sheriff William J. Emig, whose quick action had resulted in the arrest of Thurmond while the latter was making a ransom demand by telephone to the Hart home a week after the young victim had been put to death, was knocked senseless. Other officers were man-handled and brushed aside.

The deadly mob demanded Antonio Serpa, recently convicted of manslaughter in the slaying of Leonard Ramonda, a ranch foreman. Deputy sheriffs persuaded the group to let Serpa alone and the invaders pressed on.

Believes Son Innocent

In the tragedy-darkened home of John M. Holmes, lynched by a mob for the kidnap slaying of Brooke Hart, his father and mother clung to faith in his innocence here today.

SACRAMENTO, Nov 27 - Governor James Rolph Jr., said today the lynching in San Jose last night of Thomas Thurmond and John Holmes, confessed kidnapers and slayers of Brooke Hart, should result in fewer kidnappings throughout the country, and that he would pardon any one arrested for the lynchings.

"This is the best lesson that California has ever given the country. We showed the country that the State is not going to tolerate kidnapping," Rolph said.

First For 13 Years

The lynching was the first in California in 13 years. The last time a mob took the law into its own hands was December 10, 1920, when George Bald, Terance Pitts and Charles Valente, San Francisco gangsters accused of killing three police officers, were hanged from a tree after being dragged from the Sonoma County jail at Santa Rosa.

Hopes Is A Lesson

"If anyone is arrested for the good job, I'll pardon them all. I hope this lesson will serve in every state of the union." The Governor postponed his trip to Boise, Idaho, to attend a Governor's conference, not for the purpose of being on hand to call out troops but to prevent it. "If I had gone away someone would have called out the troops a discussion of these principles the Prime Minister whimsically recalled how last century the great Chinese statesman, Li-Hung-Chang, had travelled to Europe accompanied by a physician. This doctor had been implicated in some trouble in China but Li-Hung-Chang had pardoned him. People wondered why the great man should have included him in his entourage. Their enquiries were met with the reply that his duty was to keep Li-Hung-Chang in good health, for, if that statesman were to get ill and die, he had left instructions for the physician also to be deprived of his life.

"That," commented the Premier "is a strenuous illustration of preventive medicine. While I do not commend it, because it might deprive the community of the services of many of its most eminent citizens, it nevertheless embodies a great truth."

Great progress had been made in the curing of disease but science had not yet got beyond the fact that nature effected the cure and man only assisted. The functions of the heart and the brain, the discoverer of those functions, and the precision of diagnosis were matters upon which Mr. Bennett dealt. He illustrated the advance in medical knowledge of those things by recalling how in the present illness of one of the most distinguished men of this country, the physicians had been able to put their finger on the exact spot in the brain that was affected.

Turning to legislative activities, the Premier declared himself to be "worried" as to the prolongation of human life. "Not that I am worried with regard to my own," he added to the amusement of his hearers "for I have been held to be author of the grasshopper plague, the drought, the early winter and the putting of men on the dole. I have been blamed for impairing the fortunes of some and increasing the poverty of mankind."

However in the prolongation of life the doctors would find their true vocation. "Lynching is a sincere demand for law enforcement. I congratulate you on your attitude toward lynching and the people of California for their noble example in dealing with criminals," messaged Harry G. Kyle, Kansas City attorney and former judge.

"We protest your failure to provide adequate protection," wired William L. Patterson, National Secretary of the International Labor Defence, New York. "We demand immediate removal and arrest and prosecution with application of death penalty to all officials and private persons responsible."

Sheriff William J. Emig, knocked unconscious while trying to protect his prisoners, was in a serious condition at San Jose Hospital. He was suffering from a slight brain concussion which might prove to be a fracture, and also from complete nervous exhaustion and shock. Newspapers led in the rioting, among those injured in the rioting, but none of their injuries was serious. Finding about noon Sunday of the body of Hart in mud flats of San Francisco Bay by Leonard L. Dalve and Harold E. Stevens of Redwood City while duck hunting was the spark that touched off the indignation that had been smoldering since Holmes and Thurmond were captured Nov. 16. Word spread through the country like a western brush fire and a crowd soon gathered at the courthouse and jail.

Mules Will Be Shipped Through Saint John

(Canadian Press) SAINT JOHN, N. B., Nov. 27.—There will be a lot of kicking about some of the shipments through the port of Saint John this winter. Mules, Harbor Commissioner Thomas Nagle said today, will pass through here for the first time since 1920 when 50 head went to South Africa.

Mr. Nagle disclosed that about 1,000 born and raised in the vicinity of Kansas, Missouri, and destined for Naples and Genoa, Italy, will be loaded here during the winter months. The first consignment, 200 head will go aboard the Yalifornia on December 23.

While economists warned again that inflation threatened if the budget were not balanced, farmers demanded better prices, and 30,000 miners in northern France urged official action to improve employment conditions, the cabinet began drafting an economy and tax programme under which a saving of about $400,000,000 was hoped for.

The cabinet planned also, it was learned, to demand a decree of power to cut functionaries' wages. M. Chastemps' cabinet, which was sworn in early today to support M. Sarraut's ministry, was said to reveal the influence of former Premier Edouard Herriot so much that many believed it was designed chiefly to prepare for M. Herriot's return as head of the government.

SOON TO REVERT

As today's brief sitting opened, crowds thronged the spectators' galleries in both Chambers. Ecclesiastical dignitaries, representatives of the Bench and Bar, and scores of private citizens listened with expectant interest as Governor Sir David Murray Anderson read the Speech from the Throne.

Opening with a declaration the legislators had been summoned to give "immediate attention" to the Commission's report, the speech went on to outline correspondence between the Newfoundland and British governments in connection with the recommendations.

"With the report," the speech said, "was published an exchange of telegrams with the Secretary of State for the Dominion Affairs wherein it was intimated by the Secretary of State that if the main recommendations of the Commission should be accepted by the Government and Legislature of Newfoundland, His Majesty's Government in the United Kingdom would be prepared for their part to accept them and invite the United Kingdom Parliament to pass the necessary legislation giving them effect."

To Avert Default

Action assuring reduction of Newfoundland's debt burden would be taken by the Imperial Government, the speech continued, and it reviewed briefly the financial plight of the country which led to appointment of the Royal Commission last spring.

"During the last two years, it has become increasingly apparent that the Dominion is unable from its own resources to meet the interest on its public debt. Urgent action is therefore required if the island is to be saved from default—a fate averted in December, 1932, and in June, 1933, by generous assistance from the United Kingdom and Canada."

The Royal Commission had found the needs of the Dominion too folk-financial and political. In these circumstances they had recommended "immediate appeal be

The third alternative, he declared, must never be allowed to become effective. He emphasized it was not the opinion of the British Government that any country should be kept in a permanent position of armament inferiority. He said it must be hoped that Germany would change and become pacific when she resumes her place as a partner in arms deliberations. Britain, France and Italy, he continued, should get in touch with Germany and discover what could be done and the lines on which progress might be expected.

Whatever might be accomplished, he asserted, he saw no reason why it should not be brought ultimately before final agreement, within the scope of the British Draft Convention and the League of Nations. If this were accomplished, he held, and all nations were loyal to the agreement for a few years there might be every hope of securing further arms reductions within the framework of the League.

He concluded by expressing the hope France would work side-by-side with the United Kingdom in the struggle to seek peace.
