Serious Situation for Grain Farmers

OTTAWA, Nov. 23.—Farmers of Canada who rely mainly upon grain crops for their livelihood are faced with a situation more serious than any which has confronted them for a generation. In fact few of these now farming can look back and recall so difficult a period. Not since the orderly marketing of grain commenced 27 years ago have prices been so low and when they were nearly as low the purchasing power of a dollar was relatively much higher than today.

It is true that prices of many things the farmer must buy have dropped from the peak of 1929 but proportionately they have not dropped as has the price of wheat. The farmer is hit both ways until one may as well frankly admit that his position is decidedly bad.

It is so bad that it presents the major economic problem of the day, greater even than that of stimulating manufacturing. The latter if accomplished, would in time provide a partial solution of the farmers dilemma by creating a larger home market, but manufacturing cannot expand greatly while the main arm of our purchasing power—farm production—is paralyzed.

There will be widespread satisfaction in the news that Premier Bennett has cancelled many engagements as well as a well-earned holiday overseas to hasten home to deal with the crisis. It is one that will tax the ingenuity of the best minds but it is nationally essential that it be met and mastered. Mr. Bennett brings one of the best minds to the task and with it an abundance of energy. Canadians have confidence in his leadership and with good reason. They are indeed fortunate to have his leadership in times like these.
