CAPITOL SUMMERSIDE

Bette Davis Stars In "The Letter" at Capitol Today

W. Somerset Maugham wrote the play, Bette Davis is the star and William Wyler the director. The film is "The Letter" long awaited by movie audiences throughout the country which promises to offer magnetic entertainment when it opens at the Capitol Theatre today.

Gripping in the best Maugham style the play made record runs on Broadway and on the legitimate stage throughout the world. Its powerful drama smoothly drawn by its writer and scenarists makes a perfect vehicle for the rare talents of Miss Bette Davis.

Bette Davis—a name now full of magic to those who appreciate the art of acting—plays Leslie, wife of a Singapore plantation owner. Suave, British Herbert Marshall is her husband.

Native music tempers a balmy night, moonlight throws shadows of palms and rubber plants against the huts of the plantation. Coolies are asleep in hammocks. A shot rings out from the quiet house, followed by another and another. A man staggers from the Crosbie home, slumps on the porch. Leslie stands over him at the door, smoking pistol in her hand.

Don't miss seeing this picture of the Orient.

Pretty Wedding At Summerside

pilots were saved.

The latest sweep tonight netted the R.A.F. nine German fighters while losing two, the Air Ministry reported. An objective in this attack was the power station at Comines, near Lille, France.

The news service said one of the reasons for the success is that the new Spitfires and Hurricanes hold the same superiority in performance and armament over the new Messerschmitt fighters that the Spitfires and Hurricanes used in the battle of Britain last autumn had over the Nazi fighters of that year.

As there was no large-scale offensive on one day, and virtually no opposition to the British forces on another, when only one enemy plane was destroyed, 111 of the 112 were shot down in six days. This figure does not include the destruction of isolated day raiders over the British coast, nor those destroyed today.

A famous Polish squadron, presumably the one which Sqdn.-Ldr. J. A. Kent of Winnipeg led last autumn when it destroyed more than 100 enemy aircraft, has been taking a leading part in the new operations, with the destruction of 20 Nazis without a loss themselves.

Observers saw an indication that the Germans sent their crack pilots to the Russian front in statements by R.A.F. veterans that the Nazi pilots they now encounter "seem inexperienced."

The R.A.F. bombed the occupied French coast all through today and then at nightfall sent the heavier bomber formations to hammer targets farther inland than usual from the Channel.

Observers on the British coast said there were few German aircraft in evidence to challenge the R.A.F. raiders, but that machine-gun and anti-aircraft fire was heard from the occupied coast.

Monday night far-ranging R.A.F. bombers raided the naval bases of Wilhelmshaven, Kiel and Emden and the factory city of Hanover.

Light Nazi raids were reported over East Anglia and the southeast coast.

A swarm of bombers attacked a large British convoy off a southeast coast port but no vessel was hit or damaged.

GERMANS CLAIM

seven cavalry divisions.

The German news and propaganda agency told of the piercing of a line of Soviet bunkers in the middle of the front which it failed to localize. It also said "several hundred were killed and several thousand Russian prisoners have been taken" in brief fighting at close quarters in an unspecified location.

The German news and propaganda agency reported also that German units had "destroyed" one Russian division. (A division normally has 15,000 men.)

The Germans clashed with the Russian division yesterday after breaking through enemy border positions, the agency said.

Tonight the agency reported that the Germans destroyed 280 Russian tanks in two operations. At one unnamed point where the Germans smashed through Soviet positions after fierce fighting they destroyed 180 tanks which had sought to hold up the Nazi advance, the agency said.

Yesterday, the agency said, the German air force destroyed 100 Russian tanks in a comparatively small sector of the eastern front.

The high command claimed only that operations were "following with great successes their planned course" in a communique issued from "the Fuehrer's headquarters."

(An Ankara dispatch quoted foreign military attaches as saying a German column had driven 120 miles from southern Poland into the Ukraine. Another column was said to have penetrated 80 miles through Bessarabia toward Odessa but these reports were not confirmed elsewhere.)

The Nazis claimed the sinking of a Soviet submarine and a destroyer in the Baltic.

(Reuters news agency from Ankara said Russian cruisers, destroyers and submarines were battling German planes off the Bulgarian coast of the Black Sea.)

Diplomatic activity kept pace with the fighting. Bulgaria agreed to take over representation of German interests in Moscow, thus indicating she intends to remain neutral. Nazi-dominated Slovakia, it was claimed in Berlin, declared war on Russia and sent her troops into action.

Hungary broke off relations with Russia. Lithuanian insurgents announced over the Kaunas radio that "independent" Lithuania was ready to assist in building the new order in Europe. Kaunas was claimed to be in insurgent hands with Russian government officials under arrest.

Finland's position still was unclear. There was no reports of fighting on the Karelian Isthmus.

Preliminary Inquiry into Loss of Ferry

The preliminary inquiry into the loss of the S. S. Charlottetown car ferry was held at Borden yesterday. It was conducted by Capt. Charles L. Waterhouse, representing the Department of Transport, Halifax.

Eight witnesses gave evidence at the inquiry which was concluded. They were: Captain John L. Read, Chief Officer Albert G. Jay, Chief Engineer John K. Sutherland, Second Officer J. A. MacDonald, Quarter Master Anthony Gallant, Watchman J. L. Herring, Carpenter Gordon Constable and Deck Hand Clarence Waddell.

Captain Waterhouse will leave on return to Halifax this morning and submit his report to Ottawa.

Jap Women, Children called From Moscow

By Max Hill
Associated Press Staff Writer

TOKYO, June 24 —(AP) —As the world awaited with keen interest an official indication of Japan's position in the Russian-German war, the government tonight ordered all Japanese women and children living in Moscow to return home as a precautionary measure.

This was the only move officially announced after a day of feverish diplomatic conferences. The cabinet met, Emperor Hirohito received Premier Prince Fumimaro Konoye, and Foreign Minister Yosuke Matsuoka conferred both with the Italian ambassador, Mario Indelli, and the Soviet ambassador, Constantin Smetanin.

There has not been the slightest indication of a German request for actual assistance, but the Smetanin visit, it was believed, might indicate that Russia has formally called upon Japan to observe their neutrality pact.

No announcement was made on the half-hour Matsuoka-Smetanin conference, except that they talked about the Russian-German conflict.

The majority of the press adopted a neutral attitude on the question of where Japan's interest lay, but Domei observed in a broadcast that today's comments on the Japanese press "are much clearer in their manifestations of sympathy for Germany and in indicating the future course of Japan's policy."

Soviets Report

army and citizens of the U. S. S. R. were assured by their high command that Red soldiers and airmen were covering themselves with glory.

With the new war not yet three days old, details of the exact situation at the front still were awaited.

Loss of three frontier towns of the far-flung western front—Brest Litovsk, Koino and Lomza—was acknowledged, but Soviet war correspondents hinted at heavy German losses in dispatches telling how the Russians fought "like lions" in hand-to-hand combat, disputing every inch of the invader's advance.

At other points in the Baltic-to-Black Sea zone two invading German columns were thrust back across the Soviet frontier in heavy fighting, an army communique said, and in the first two days of hostilities 300 German tanks were smashed, 5,000 German soldiers captured and 127 Nazi warplanes shot down.

On the home front Soviet citizens reacted emotionally to their country's rendezvous with destiny. Back again on old familiar anti-Fascist ground after an interlude of perplexing collaboration with the Nazis, they cheered troops departing for the front, sent them away with rousing Russian songs, pelted them with flowers.

Tass, the Soviet news agency, describing this upsurge of patriotic emotion, told of girls clamoring for permission to join the Red Army and high school students coming in groups to seek early enlistment in the armed forces.

Pravda, the Communist party organ, writing again with old Bolsnevist enthusiasm, proclaimed that now is the time to "smash the vile Fascist beast which dared to lift its blood-stained paw against our free life."

At the same time Soviet vigilance against counter-revolutionary, pro-Fascist and other subversive elements was redoubled. Pravda printed the stern warning that "each and every one attempting in these tense and hard times to violate discipline and spread panic will be regarded as an enemy of the Soviet state and treated mercilessly to the full extent of wartime law."

The two German thrusts which the Red Army claimed to have forced back across the Soviet frontier were said to have been aimed toward Sialuiai (Shavli), 60 miles northeast from East Prussia in Lithuania, and toward Rawa Ruska, 10 miles inside the Soviet boundary from the so-called government general section of Poland.

It was in the drive toward Sialuiai that the Germans were said to have lost 300 tanks under Soviet artillery fire.

The Russians said Nazi forces "met with no success" in other drives crossing the frontier in the directions of Kaunas, capital of Lithuania; Grodno and Wolkowysk (Volkovisk), beyond captured Kolno and Lomza; and Kobrxn, northeast of Brest Litovsk.
