Shea Stopped In The Fourth

NEW YORK, July 24—Charley (Phil) Rosenberg, of New York world's bantamweight champion, knocked out Eddie Shea, of Chicago, in the fourth round of a fifteen round title match at the Velodrome A. C. last night.

Shea was down three times before the damaging blow landed, which terminated, for the present, Shea's chances of gaining the 115-pound title.

The fight was one of those gripping, slugging matches which happen once in a season. From the first blow to the last the spectators were on their feet cheering the gladiators as they stood toe to toe and poured a volley of blows at each other in reckless fashion.

There was no stalling or jockeying. Both forgot their science and skill and worked with a common idea—to drop the other for a count of ten.

Nanaimo Wins Boat Race Today

This afternoon at 2:30 the final race of the eighteen footers will take place over the same course for the Weller Cup.

The owners of the different yachts that have been competing for this coveted prize are anxious to see just what boat is going to be the winner, and are hoping that a good, stiff breeze will favor the boats this afternoon in which case there will be a battle royal to the finishing line.

The Red boat P-no is now leading according to points, followed closely by the Zenith, with the Sheba a dangerous third and the Shiek Roberta and Shadow well up on the list.

No doubt this race will be the most interesting of the series and it is expected a large number will be along the water front watching with interest the outcome of today's race.

A schooner was expected her cargo for to land, and agents were appointed all ready on hand.

On the seventeenth of July, nineteen twenty-four, the schooner she was sighted some three leagues from the shore.

Someone had to board her, arrangements for to make, for the landing of the cargo there was no appointed date.

The night was dark and dreary, the thunder loud did roar, the lightning flashed and dazled, the rain it down did pour.

But a hardy old campaigner he braved the raging main, his reward 'twas most enticing, he boarded her at midnight upon the briny deep.

Concluded his arrangements, and the bargain he did keep.

The Fate Of Rum Runner's Cargo

A King's County reader recalls a historic event in the following:

Come all who are interested and a story I will tell; As it is rather long to class it as a song, But for fear of losing time I'll reduce it into rhyme.

For 'twill go down in history a memorable date, The year the rum was landed to the eastward of Big Cape.

Bobbed Hair Brings Back BOA

The bob and the boa! No its not the title of the latest thriller, nor yet a new name for an ice cream sundae.

But it's the latest thriller in style, and it's as delectable as the most frothy concoction ever mixed by any soda fountain dispenser.

It's the ostrich feather boa, and it's to be worn especially with bobbed hair. In fact, according to the latest bulletin of the United Millinery Association of America, the bob caused the boa.

For a number of years the feather boa has been discarded as something of about the "before the war" period.

But now the ostrich has again come into his own, and from the shingle-bobbed flapper to the closely-cropped head of the white-haired grandmother, the boa is almost a necessity.

It has been computed by the bulletin of the association that the women of the United States now with bobbed hair range anywhere from 70 to 90 per cent and naturally, such a drastic change calls for new styles and features.

Ma-line worn about the neck has for some time been the "space-filler," but since the advent of the feather boa ma-line has gone into a decline.

A glance at the audience in one of the theatres shows why the boa will be popular. Row on row they sat—women with closely cropped necks, some shaven and short and others just short.

There was a long space of neck—sometimes neck with little protruding bones, sometimes large and fleshy. But nevertheless, there was much expanse of neck. And that is what the feather boa is for—to cover up some of the vast expanse and break the long line of bare back.

Those ladies who pay careful and considerate attention to a correct appearance, says the milliner's bulletin, "are rapidly finding it necessary to utilize some additional ornamentation for their neck and shoulders. As a result of this condition the careful and thoughtful dresser are adopting in no small measure the use of the ostrich feather boa.

FORTY WINKS—THE AWAKENING

—From London Opink

Some sold on a commission, the finders not a-wishing their names in such a deal.

Others who the law; according to the law; Others that the debt is pardoned by the restitution plan.

Some parted with it wholesale, one hundred bucks a keg.

But if it remains unsettled through this mundane sphere.

Others with business insight retailed it out instead.

'Twill surely be gazetted by good Saint Peter dear.

For sixteen bucks a gallon they'd fill it from the cask.

'Twas well explained by clergymen who took a firm stand.

And as the stock diminished for a bottle-full you'd ask.

The good old Christian principal the golden rule applies.

Goods purchased by another and claimed by you or I.

Is contrary to God's decree (the wet as well as dry).

Some others, their's they traded, for things they'd wish to buy.

But they had no need to sigh, for an agent was nigh (who was generally all dry).

And perfectly willing their needs to supply.

But as we all believe in charity, we'll throw that mantle o'er.

And leave it to their conscience to settle up the score.

Others with smaller quantities had theirs for personal use.

And to treat their friends and neighbors they always did produce.

That Socialistic tendencies and Bolshevik game.

Won't stand before St. Peter when he calls up your name.
