In yesterday's issue the movement of certain churches in endeavoring to raise a sum to be sent to Campbellton to be applied to the relief of sufferers was not credited to any denomination. It appears that The Guardian should have stated that these appeals were made in Grace and First Methodist Churches in accordance with a letter from the N.B. and P. E. Conference asking immediate financial aid for the congregation there who are now without even a church in which to worship.

A rumor current on the mainland which has reached the city is to the effect that the Canadian Pacific Railway are going to build a line from Truro, N. S., to Wallace. To this report is added another, by which it is claimed that the C. P. R. were endeavoring to secure an option on the Charlottetown Steam Navigation Company's steamers. It was said also that it was generally believed that in the event of their failure to come to terms with the C. S. N. Company, the C. P. R. would put steamers of their own on to ply between this city and the terminal point of the new extension, Spunking. The Guardian's last evening Mr. Wakford of the Charlottetown Steam Navigation Company, stated that he had no knowledge of any proposal of this nature having been submitted to his company and says there is no truth in any of the rumors.

A very pretty marriage was solemnized in St. Dunstan's Cathedral at 7.30 yesterday morning when Miss Tena Gaudet of this city became the bride of James Coyle, foreman of the mechanical department and one of the most popular members of the Alberweits Athletic Association. Rev. G. J. McNeill performed the ceremony. The bride was tastefully dressed in cream serge with large black belt and carried a beautiful bouquet of white roses and maiden hair fern. The bridesmaid was Miss Margaret Coyle, sister of the groom, who wore pale blue and a black hat and also carried a large bouquet. The groom was supported by the bride's brother, Cornelius Gaudet. A large number of friends were present at the ceremony. "Jim" who has rendered splendid service for a number of years on the football field for the Alberweits was remembered by the members of that Association by the gift of a splendid Morris chair. Other presents received included a silver service from the Editorial and business staff of the Post, and a China tea set from the mechanical department. The happy couple crossed by the Northumberland this morning on a trip to the mainland. The Guardian joins in extending best wishes.

The late Robert H. Macford, aged 69 years, for a number of years a respected resident of Bradiabane and for the past five years a resident of Amherst, N. S., not feeling well took a visit to his mother's old home in this city where he was tenderly cared for, apparently nursing for a few days. A change took place however and he sank rapidly, lasting only three weeks. He passed peacefully away Wednesday morning about 3 o'clock, July 13, at the home of Mrs. J. H. Bous, Elm Ave. On Friday morning at 7 a.m. the funeral service was conducted by the Rev. W. Harrison, rector of the Methodist church, city, after which the remains were followed by a goodly number of people to the railway station, thence to Bradiabane station, where they were met by the undertaker who placed them in the hearse which conveyed them to Springfield Cemetery. The deceased was laid to rest, beside his predeceased wife, and four children. An impressive service was conducted at the grave by the Rev. H. L. Haslam, M. A. He leaves to mourn three sons, George B., Lemuel and James W., all of Boston, Mass., one daughter Clara, J. wife of William McNeill, Seartown, and one brother John, of Pleasant Valley. On the 30th ult., a most enjoyable garden party was held in Jacksonville under the beautiful maples of the parsonage grounds in honor of Rev. and Mrs. Turner. A bountiful supper was served, after which a purse of money was presented to Mrs. Turner and Mr. and Mrs. Turner were assured that they carry with them to their new home the prayers and loving thoughts of many friends in Jacksonville and all parts of the circuit.—Wesleyan.

In his annual report presented the Legislature last year, Hon. John Richards, Commissioner of Agriculture announced that two reports on the condition of the Island Crops would be issued this year, the first on July 1st, the second the last of August.

The first report is now being issued and from it, the Guardian takes the following extracts: Hay—The crop is excellent in quantity, especially timothy. It will be one of the best in the Island's history. Clover—Was partially damaged by frost on June 4th and 5th. Wheat—The outlook is good. Joint worm has done some injury. Oats—Exceptionally good on dry light lands. Not so good on low lands. On the whole crop never looked better.

Barley—Excellent crop. Peas—Much above the average. Corn—At present below the average but coming up rapidly. Potatoes—Falling off especially in western Prince. Cause not given. The bug worst than ever. Crop will be in fair condition. Roots—Prospects excellent. Fruit—Early apples badly damaged by frost July 4th and 5th. Late varieties will be half a crop. Plums, are scarce, cherries almost a failure, berries about 60 per cent of an average.

Pastures—Were never better—Excellent prospects for fall and winter. Cattle will reap the benefit. Farm Help—The supply of farm labour is not so scarce as it was last year. Two correspondents report it scarce. The wages (with board) are as follows:

Table with 3 columns: County, Per day, Per month. PRINCE COUNTY: Lowest reported 65c $13.00, Highest reported 75c $15.00, Average reported 70c $14.00. QUEEN'S COUNTY: Lowest reported 75c $14.00, Highest reported 85c $16.00, Average reported 80c $15.00. KINGS COUNTY: Lowest reported 75c $14.00, Highest reported 85c $16.00, Average reported 80c $15.00.

The following are a few extracts from letters recently received by Mrs. (Dr.) Handrahan of this city from her sister, Miss Alice Hunter, formerly of Alberton, who has lately attended the celebrated Passion Play at Ober Ammergau: "As early as five o'clock on the morning of the play the church bells commenced to ring, and for those who wish to attend the church service they may do so at six o'clock. At a quarter before eight three cannon shots announce that the performance is about to begin. Promptly at eight o'clock everybody is in her or his place and the choir or "guardian angels" as they are called stepped slowly on the stage, preceded by the "prologue" bearing his wand, and the sacred drama begins. The orchestra ceases, and the majestic words of the prologue begin with "Cast thyself low with hisly fear, oh race bowed down with God's curse."

The play begins with Christ's entry into Jerusalem. He rides on an ass while crowds of people follow with palm branches. There are about five hundred people in the crowd, including a great many children who seem perfectly at home. A curtain further back rises, disclosing the hustle of the buyers and sellers in the temple. Christ drives them out and this first act comes to a close with the words of the prologue: "Cast thyself low with hisly fear, oh race bowed down with God's curse."

The curtain again rises showing the Sanhedrin taking council against Christ, and they order that the people be incited against him. They do this so very loudly and naturally that I wanted to kill with my fist. In the scene showing the dining hall, Simon of Bethany, where Mary Magdalen anoints the head and feet of Christ with the precious ointment, Jesus is a study, for he shows the commencement in the expression on his face of his loss of faith. When he expostulates about the waste of the ointment it is wonderful to see the face of the Christ as he turns to him and says: "The poor ye have always with you." Then Christ takes leave of his mother in a most touching way. It was in this scene that I first felt the awful tragedy that was coming. When the curtain dropped the whole vast audience was in tears, not only the women, but the men wept, an old man, a German, who was beside me, sobbed aloud. Then another curtain rises and represents the country near Jerusalem and on the road are walking Christ and his disciples. He is foretelling in the saddest tones the destruction of the Holy City. He sends Peter and John to prepare the Passover and continues on his road, while Judas the Sanhedrin approach. It is awful the way they pound upon the weakest spot of poor old Judas, who says not a word but looks from one to the other in a sort of excited manner, and yet one can see that he does not want to be a traitor. In the garden scene on the Mount of Olives where Christ goes apart a little to pray. The actor (Anton Lang) who represents him is marvelous in his prayer, for he makes you feel the awful agony of the Christ.

Scene follows scene. The scourging at the pillar is perfectly acted. Christ has never seen such acting. Christ shows his great physical suffering in his face and the soldiers are regular brutes. Pilate delivers Christ to his executioners with the words: "It is over with the Galilean." The mob disperses. This is a remarkable scene, for there are about five hundred people in the mob, and the way they howl for the blood of Christ would make a stronger man than Pilate give in.

The curtain rises on the crucifixion scene to show the crosses of the two thieves raised. Christ is lying, nailed to the cross on the ground and after the inscription being placed thereon it is raised. When he turns to the thief and says, "This day thou shalt be with Me in Paradise," there is a terrible deathly stillness, followed by the words "It is finished," and his death, accompanied by thunder, and a great fear among the people and many run while Zerobabel rushes in to say that the veil of the temple has been rent and the earth opened. Then comes the resurrection. Soldiers are guarding the tomb when suddenly the rock rolls away. Christ appears and the soldiers in great fear fall on their faces. The whole thing has made a wonderful impression upon me, and I would travel any distance to see it again, although it is by no means an agreeable thing to see. The strain is something awful. The acting is done so well that it is all real for the moment, so perhaps you can imagine the agony for the audience. Every person that I spoke to pronounced it the most marvelous thing they had ever seen and all remarked on the simplicity and beauty of character of the people of Ober Ammergau.

THURSDAY. The Guardian has received from Peter McDonald, Crapaud, a stalk of wheat that was picked on his farm yesterday. It measured six feet three inches.
