POLLUTION OF STREAMS MENACE TO PUBLIC HEALTH

OTTAWA, Feb. 24. - In the Senate today a report upon the effect the pollution of streams has upon public health was made by the Senate health committee through the chairman Senator Deveber. The report called attention to the evidence taken by the committee last year showing the dangers to public health through the sources of water supply.

The committee reported that it could not fail to see that the public health of Canada is being seriously imperilled by the custom of disposing of sewerage, garbage and so forth, by dumping it into the lakes, rivers and streams of the country. Your committee is of the opinion that the only remedy and the only safeguard is the passage of legislation to control this practice. The legislation to be effective must be uniform throughout the whole Dominion and it can only be brought about by co-operation between the Dominion and Provincial Governments. It is therefore recommended that the commission of conservation, representing all the governments in Canada, be requested to call together the health authorities of each Province to meet them in conference at an early date and endeavor to devise means whereby this end may be attained.

THE WORLD'S RICHEST PEOPLE--THE OSAGE INDIANS

IF A POPE of the Osage Indian Nation in Oklahoma should, in pitying mood, indite such a line as, "Lo, the poor Paleface!" he would be perfectly within bounds, for no matter what nationalities or communities of Caucasians should take exception, they would be poor compared with this particular tribe of Indians. Every one of the 1800 of them--man, woman and child--is worth $800 in land and cash, and has a comfortable income besides. The words "every one" are used advisedly, for all the worldly goods of these people are held in common. Yet their possessions, reinforced by a present capitalization of their income, make every one of the tribe worth, it is estimated, about $50,000. Their wealth, and consists principally of $5,000,000 in cash held by the government and 2,500,000 acres of land, most of which they lease for grazing at a good rental. The average per capita wealth of residents of the United States is about $1400; for the whole world, only about $40. Here is a tribe of Indians worth per capita almost a thousand times as much as the average citizen of the world!

Much Wealthier than They Look

Chief Black Dog - A Man

Washington, makes a revenue of a little over $500 for each man, woman and child, or over $100 a year for each family of five or more. One family of fifteen, for instance, receives $4500 a year without having to do a tap of work. At $5 an acre--a small valuation for land in that section--the Osage grounds are worth $7,500,000, or $4000 per man. This added to the $444 in cash, makes a total of $8000 owned by each individual; and those who care to can grow constantly richer from the increment. The fact that their revenue enables them to live in idleness has resulted in abuses in some quarters; intoxication is said to be on the increase, and many of the Indians are described as having retrograded to primitive conditions. The widest of the Osages live in the southwestern part of the domain, where they are said to closely observe all the ancient customs of their forefathers, such as burning their dead at the stake, going about naked in summer, and eating dirt. An instance of their adherence to ancient custom was the election of a chief some time ago--a ceremony hardly to be reconciled with one's conception of the richest people on earth. In the centre of a circle of trees was a large fire. A fire dance and a tomahawk dance preceded the election. Then the voters were tried by fire--that is, a burning stick was held in front of each, and if the flame burned straight he was yet in the good graces of the Great Spirit; but if they flickered he was commencing to leave the medicine lodge. With painful faces, the men danced until midnight, then joined hands and circled about singing. Our Father, make our new chief: Oh, make him a wise man; Let us be happy And have many feasts. At the dog feast, which followed the election, the dog was killed to eat, and two white dogs were killed out of courtesy to the Osages to eat dog. Thirty years ago, when their tribe, long of peaceful habits, was organized, the Osages were the great warriors in the West, but smallpox cut down their numbers. Then the medicine lodge was introduced, and the Osages have remained peace-loving since. Their organization was effected by a chief, a council of elders, and a chief assistant. The chief assistant was elected every four years, and he presided over the council. The people lived in the same houses, and each family was a unit. The people were not allowed to have any other advantages, such as a gun, a horse, or a cow, but they were allowed to have a dog, and a dog was a great asset to the tribe. The Osages were a brave and warlike people, and they were the most powerful tribe in the West. They were the only tribe in the West who were not conquered by the white men. They were the only tribe in the West who were not driven to the reservation. They were the only tribe in the West who were not killed off. They were the only tribe in the West who were not made slaves. They were the only tribe in the West who were not made prisoners. They were the only tribe in the West who were not made captives. They were the only tribe in the West who were not made property. They were the only tribe in the West who were not made chattel. They were the only tribe in the West who were not made serfs. They were the only tribe in the West who were not made vassals. They were the only tribe in the West who were not made subjects. They were the only tribe in the West who were not made citizens. They were the only tribe in the West who were not made children. They were the only tribe in the West who were not made souls. They were the only tribe in the West who were not made spirits. They were the only tribe in the West who were not made gods. They were the only tribe in the West who were not made demons. They were the only tribe in the West who were not made devils. They were the only tribe in the West who were not made fiends. They were the only tribe in the West who were not made monsters. They were the only tribe in the West who were not made beasts. They were the only tribe in the West who were not made brutes. They were the only tribe in the West who were not made animals. They were the only tribe in the West who were not made creatures. They were the only tribe in the West who were not made beings. They were the only tribe in the West who were not made entities. They were the only tribe in the West who were not made objects.
