ceived instead a severe mauling. Then came next the calling of the "Poose" Comitatus by the High Sheriff, which started out one fine morning—some walking—some driving—to cross the Hillsborough for somewhere in Lot 49, where the "slippery" Fletcher lived, in order to arrest him. On nearing the farm, the "poose" was welcomed by the blare of hundreds of tin horns, and on arrival at the desired premises were nearly scared to death by what appeared to be a battery of heavy guns being served by a ferocious-looking gunner. But the cannon turned out to be a lot of stove-pipe lengths, and the gunner a straw man representing Fletcher, but the latter was nowhere to be found. Disgusted the "poose" retraced their steps to the city—some drunk, some hilarious, a few sober, but all realizing their ridiculous failure.

The story is dealt with in rhyme by Mr. John LePage in his second volume of the "Island Minstrel." I am giving but a few of the verses:

"The Tenant League, with bold intrigue,
Rent-paying unbelievers—
To organize and raise supplies,
All winter worked like beavers.

"They often met, their wits to whet;
And, after consultation,
With one consent, to pay no rent
Came to determination!
St. Patrick's Day, a long array—
The Saint he praised whatever—
From Southport shore, some twenty score,
Came tooting o'er the river.

"Gus Herman's trade looked up a grade,
Which made the Prussian prouder,
For every hand a trumpet spanned,
And every blast was louder!
Warned 'tis dat sound delinquents round
Would hide where none could find 'em;
And ball's clear, like frightened deer,
Afraid to look behind 'em.

"They, through the town march'd up and down,
Their horns defiance sounding;
While overhead their banners spread,
With loyal words abounding!

"Then came the rub, the Sheriff's sub
Essay'd the rash transaction,
To take a man, by legal plan,
From that lip-loyal faction!
'Essay'd in vain! with might and main
Their Prussian horns they sounded;
And, with their tins, brought to his pias,
The acting Sheriff, wounded.

By flags display'd, and speeches made,
Their loyalty could utter,
But rudely snub the Sheriff's sub,
And tramp him in the gutter!

"Said Johnny—we must be quick—
He holds the Sheriff's status—
I'll call, said he, to go with me,
The Poose Comitatus!
Instead of ten,—two hundred men
Shall snap rebellion's fibres;
And, pleased or not, those rogues shall trot,
—The Tenant League subscribers.

"And there and then, he took his pen,
And wrote for the occasion,
His summonses to chosen men,
To meet him at his station;
Ready to fight, for law and right,
Laying aside pretences,
To go with him, in marching trim,
And bear their own expenses!"

It was just after the fiasco of the posse comitatus that the Island Government sent for troops from Halifax to help the Sheriff's officers enforce the law on the tenant leaguers. A part regiment of regulars, about 175 rank and file, arrived here in 1904 and after remaining in temporary quarters for a time, were transferred to the New Barracks on the Brighton Road which, after the

Will Rogers Is Great In Debut

NOTED WIT PROVES HIMSELF AN UNUSUAL EMOTIONAL ACTOR AS WELL AS A HUMORIST.

When the best known and most loved American personality is both heard and seen on the screen, then it may surely be called an event. Yesterday Will Rogers, the quaint philosopher and the naive wit who is equally the friend of royalty and the common people, came to the Prince Edward Theatre in his first Fox Movietone starring picture yesterday, "They Had to See Paris," and it is surely an eye and ear treat. Millions of people who have expressed a wish to hear the Rogers witticisms from his own lips, but have hitherto been denied the treat, now are having the pleasure. "They Had to See Paris" fits Will Rogers like a glove. It starts in his home town, Claremore, Oklahoma, where we find Will happy and contented with his wife (Irene Rich) and his son and daughter (Owen Davis, Jr. and Marguerite Churchill). Oil gushes on their land. They become rich and Will's family get bitten with the social bug. They want to go to Paris and absorb culture and other things. Oklahoma oil and French cognac don't mix, however, and the result is highly humorous but, in a way, pathetic. Complication follows complication and they go back to Oklahoma broke only in spirit. Special mention should be made of Fifi Dorsay, a vivacious and piquant French actress who gives much color to the production. She appears as a cafe entertainer in Paris and sings, "I Could Do It for You," to Rogers with most ingratiating art. Rogers has been provided by Owen Davis, Sr., the dialogue, with some corking lines, and it is evident that he has added a few and interpolated many real Rogers witticisms. Rogers qualifies as a highly emotional actor as well as a comedian. In Paris, Mrs. Peters is determined to marry her daughter to a title and when Peters refuses to pay half a million dollars to consummate this desire, Mrs. Peters, in a frenzy of bitter disappointment, turns on her husband and gives him a severe tongue lashing. Among other things, she tells him she and her daughter are both ashamed of him and that she never wants to see his face again. Peters leaves the house while his wife sobs bitterly on a chaise longue. Peters' leavetaking, as enacted by Rogers, is a marvel of dramatic execution. The celebrated wit, who makes millions laugh and smile daily, sheds real tears. It is, perhaps, the high spot of the delightful comedy drama.

Miss Ethel McCarville and Myrtle Duffy returned to their homes in Kinkora Tuesday after spending Easter visiting in Charlottetown.

Mr. Eugene D. Gaudet, of the Provincial Bank of Canada, Moncton, in company with Mr. Jack Wonnacott, also of Moncton, spent the Easter holidays with the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Gaudet, 108 Prince Street, City.

Mr. Albert E. James, a prominent farmer from Midgell, Lot 40, is on his way home from Florida. He is stopping a few days to visit his son, Arthur E. James, at Auburn, R. I., and had the pleasure of sowing some oats and grass seed on his son's summer estate at Hamilton Park, North Kingston, R. I., last week.

In Memoriam

MR. JAMES A. McDONALD

On Saturday, Mar. 22nd, the community of Little Pond was shocked when it became known that Mr. James Anderson McDonald had passed to eternal reward.

Deceased had been in his usual good health up to a short time previous to his death and while attending to his duties around the stable, was suddenly stricken with acute indigestion. Medical aid was quickly summoned, but all efforts were of no avail to stay the hand of Death, and his soul anointed with condition by Reverend J. C. McDonald, of St. George's, went forth to Him who gave it.

The late Mr. McDonald was born in Little Pond, 63 years ago, and in his early years had followed the sea, but later retired and married Miss Eliza McDonald, and settled on the old homestead and carried on farming successfully until the end.

In his death the community has lost a splendid type of man—honest, upright, and sincere in all his dealings, an obliging friend and neighbor, who was ever ready to sacrifice his time or pleasure to assist the needy or console the distressed. In his home he was a loving husband and father, always solicitous for the welfare of his family and graced with a cheerful disposition, a high moral character, and a mind imbued with a deep religious sentiment, which reflected and adorned his life and his smiling welcome endeared him to all who had the pleasure of his acquaintance.

Friends from far and near came to see his mortal remains and pay their last tribute of respect and on Monday a solemn cortege wended its way to the St. Frances De Sales Church, where a High Mass of Requiem was celebrated by Rev. Lewis Callaghan, D. D., thence to the cemetery, where all that was mortal of one, whose memory will long be cherished, was laid to rest beside his wife, who predeceased him 22 years ago.

He leaves to mourn, besides a sorrowing brother Allan in Watertown, Mass., two sons and two daughters, Frank, Daniel, Mary and Annie, all at home.

His pall bearers were James A. McDonald, A. D. McDonald, Robert McDonald, E. McFarlane, Angus A. Walker and D. A. Steele.
