

Look At It.

We mean our little picture here. There's a vaporizer, you put some Vapo-Cresolene in it; there's a lamp, you light it. Then you just naturally breathe-in the vapor. You can read, or sew, or study, the cure goes right on all the time. Now you see why the doctors all speak so highly of Vapo-Cresolene for throat troubles. It takes the medicine just where it's most needed, and it is a perfect cure for whooping-cough.

Vapo-Cresolene is sold by druggists everywhere. The Vaporizer and Lamp, which should last a lifetime, and a bottle of Cresolene complete, $1.50; extra supplies of Cresolene 25 cents and 50 cents. Illustrated booklet containing physicians' testimonials free upon request. VAPOR-CRESOLENE CO., 30 Fulton St., New York, U.S.A.

THE MORNING GUARDIAN

WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 4, 1901.
VACCINATION.

It is now a little more than one hundred years since Dr. Edward Jenner introduced vaccination to the world. He was born at Berkeley, a small town in Gloucestershire in 1749, and after qualifying for the practice of medicine, set up as a physician in his native town in 1773. Smallpox was at that time prevalent in England and throughout the world. Its ravages were frightful. Its victims were gathered alike from palaces, lordly castles and the hovels of the poor, and were numbered by thousands. Those whom it did not kill in many cases it disfigured for life. It was thought inevitable that every one must at some time contract the disease, and the common practice was for the head of a family to select a favorable time of year, and after preparatory treatment, to have the whole family inoculated with the smallpox and get it over with.

Quite early in his practice young Dr. Jenner was told that the cowpox was a preventive of smallpox. Having occasion to employ a nurse for a wealthy patient, a milkmaid offered her services. Jenner inquired, naturally enough, whether she ever had the disease. She replied that she had not, but had taken the cowpox some time before and therefore was in no danger from smallpox. On inquiry he learned there was a local rustic tradition that the milkmaids generally contracted a disease from the cows which rendered them immune from smallpox. Again and again he employed nurses who had the milder disease to attend smallpox patients and they passed the ordeal safely. Then he began to experiment by imparting the cowpox as a preventive measure. In May, 1796 he made the supreme test of vaccinating a boy of eight years and on 1st July following inoculated him with the virus of smallpox. The experiment was successful; the boy escaped smallpox.

But the medical world in common with the general public were incredulous, and strong opposition to the innovation developed. This continued until long after Jenner had in 1798 published a full account of the case above cited and other experiments with vaccination. Thereafter the practice of vaccination gradually gained ground until in 1800 much of Jenner's time was taken up by the distribution of vaccine lymph, much of which was sent to America, whither his fame had spread. With the adoption of vaccination, honors came to Jenner from every quarter of the world, and so great had been the decrease of mortality resulting that in June 1802 the British Parliament, recognizing him as a public benefactor, voted him a grant of £10,000. It would be needless here to recite the abundant statistics which go to show how great a boon vaccination has been to the world. But one recent instance may be here cited to show how great is the benefit still being derived from Dr

Jenner's discovery. In Porto Rico under Spanish rule vaccination was almost entirely neglected. When the Island came under United States rule a general vaccination of the entire population was ordered, with the result that 800,000 people young and old passed under the operation. In the ten years previous the average number of deaths in Porto Rico had been 621. In the single year 1890 no fewer than 2,362 died of the disease. It was on June 30th, 1899 that the general vaccination was completed, and in the two years and nearly five months since, down to November 3rd, 1901, but three deaths have occurred from smallpox in the entire Island of Porto Rico. The facts as here set down are officially certified by the Surgeon General of the United States War Department at Washington, under the date last named.

As to the alleged dangers from vaccination, the report of the Surgeon General are most assuring. Of 800,000 vaccinations in Porto Rico there was but a single case in which death resulted, and that was from a subsequent infection of the wound with germs of another disease. Bear in mind that the vast number upon whom the vaccination was performed embraces persons of every station in life, most of them poor and many of them not of cleanly habits, and it will be apparent that an equal number of tiny scratches with a pin's point would in all probability have proved more largely fatal. We wish to impress upon our readers in the strongest possible way that vaccination is a sovereign preventive of smallpox; that where the entire community is vaccinated the disease can make no inroads; that the risk from vaccination performed by a regular physician is almost infinitesimally small, and that to neglect this precaution at a time when smallpox is abroad is a serious if not a criminal omission.

THE RACE

Does not depend on the start but on the finish. It's staying power which carries many a runner to victory. It's like that in business. Many a man starts off in a race for business success with a burst of speed which seems to assure victory. Presently he begins to falter and at last he falls and fails. The cause? Generally "stomach trouble." No man is stronger than his stomach. Business haste leads to careless and irregular eating. The stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition become diseased. The body is inadequately nourished and so grows weak.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cures diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition. It strengthens the stomach and so strengthens the whole body which depends on the stomach for the nourishment from which strength is made.

There is no alcohol in "Golden Medical Discovery," and it is entirely free from opium, cocaine and all other narcotics. Accept no substitute for the "Discovery." There is no medicine "just as good" for diseases of the stomach and allied organs.

"Your Golden Medical Discovery has performed a wonderful cure," says W. M. H. House of Charleston, S. C., Ark. "I had a worst case of dyspepsia, the doctors say that they ever saw. After trying other doctors and everything I could hear of, with no benefit, I tried Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, and now I am cured."

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cure constipation.
