THE OLD FASHIONED WIFE.

A few days ago a New York Court allowed a woman alimony and counsel fees pending a separation suit in which she charged her husband with tiring of her and leaving their home because she was "old fashioned and out of date." In her complaint she said that she married him when he was poor, bore him eleven children, and had always done all her housework and made careful provision for his comfort. Now, after 27 years of married life, he has accumulated considerable property. He complained that she had not progressed as rapidly socially as he had, and that, therefore, he was privileged to spend much of his time among more congenial companions. This is by no means a unique situation. Nor is the court's decision which was vigorously opposed by the husband's counsel, unusual. But the case has attracted some attention in business affairs which afforded him an opportunity to extend his social connections, is very easily seen. But the husband declared that his future prosperity depended on her co-operation outside the home as well as within it. This brings up the question as to whether the husband should sacrifice his wife or his future prosperity. In effect, the court decided that his future prosperity was second in importance to his obligations to the wife who bore her share of the struggle in the early stages, and there is little doubt that the court expressed the popular belief.

There are a great many men and women who might better their worldly position by renouncing family ties, but what is worldly position compared to the unity and peace of the family? The wife who gives her time and work to her children and home does a great deal more for the good of the community at large than any but a very unusual man can do in the field of politics for business. Whatever may be the attractions outside the home, a man obligates himself when he marries, to put his family above them. There is no choice between family and activities which endanger the family. This principle applies to women as well as to men, and in these times there is not infrequently need for reminding women that there may be an "old fashioned husband" as well as an "old fashioned wife."

GASES IN WARFARE

That the Germans were determined to break the agreement of the Hague Convention, by which the Powers promised to abstain from the use of all asphyxiating gases, is evident from the fact that their patent office records show that Krupp patented a gun for throwing poisonous gas bombs some years before the war. The specifications show that it would throw a 150 lb. bomb a distance of 400 yards, causing the death of everybody within a radius of 400 ft.

The use of asphyxiating gases in the form of bombs and other contrivances is really a revival of the ancient method of warfare applied to modern conditions. The gas bomb is modernized "stink-pot," which the Chinese have employed to time immemorial; but whereas the old Chinese "stink-pot" merely rendered men unconscious, poisonous gases employed today are the most virulent and irritant of poisons, and few men recover from the effects after they have inhaled the gas to any extent.

Chlorine, which the Germans have introduced into war, is one of the most distressing of irritant poisons. The Germans carry it to the front in steel cylinders in a condensed or liquid state, and set fire in front of their trenches when the wind is blowing from them towards the enemy.

There are many other substances, however, which may be employed to poison or asphyxiate the enemy. Some of these are alluded to by the French chemists, who recently stated that they had a fearful form of reprisal for the Germans. Hydrocyanic acid, known as prussic acid, is so poisonous that a mere breath of it means instant death. Sulphuric anhydride, when brought into contact with the air, combines rapidly with moisture absorbed from the air, producing sulphuric acid. Thrown in a bomb with just explosive charge enough to disrupt the bomb and scatter the sulphuric anhydride, the air for a large space about the explosion would be at once converted into a dense fog of sulphuric acid. ALFALFA AND SILAGE

There are instances where it will not pay to construct a silo when there is an abundance of alfalfa says Hoard's Dairyman, but, as a rule, the silo is a very good institution where alfalfa hay is plentiful. There is nothing that will supplement alfalfa better than corn silage. There is something about the combination of these two feeds that seems to meet the requirements of the dairy cow. Furthermore dairy cows do better when fed some succulent feed.

WHERE U. S. STANDS ON GERMANY'S SUBMARINE POLICY

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13.—President Wilson to-day expressed his views of the gravity of the international situation which confronts the United States to a delegation of Virginians in declining their invitation to visit the Manassas battlefield late this month. "We are all hoping and praying that the skies may clear," said the President, "but we have no control of that on this side of the water, and it is impossible to predict any part of the course of affairs."

Conferences to-day between President Wilson and Secretary of State Lansing and between Secretary Lansing and Count Von Bernstorff, the German ambassador, brought the situation growing out of German submarine activities to the following status:

(1) The German ambassador has been furnished with the evidence of officers and survivors of the Arabic, and agreeing that the liner was proceeding peacefully when torpedoed without warning, and been advised that the United States desires a disclaimer of the attack and reparation for the American lives lost.

(2) The evidence will be sent by Count Von Bernstorff to the Berlin Foreign Office, to which it has not been available before, and probably ten days will elapse before Berlin can be heard from. In some quarters it is believed possible that the Foreign Office, upon examining the evidence, may change its position, and disavow the action of the submarine commander, who, it was claimed in the last note, sank the liner because he thought she was about to attack him.

(3) The United States has all information on the case, as it now stands, at hand, and is ready to decide upon its course, but action may be delayed until Count Von Bernstorff has had time to exchange communications with his government.

(4) While the United States will not consent to arbitration of a principle nor of a question involving the safety of American lives, it has accepted Germany's assurances that peaceful relations will not be torpedoed without warning, and if Germany desires to arbitrate the amount of indemnity, the question of whether the Arabic actually attempted to attack the submarine or whether her actions justified the submarine commander in believing he was about to be attacked, that probably would be agreed to.

The President and Secretary Lansing were in conference for nearly an hour, and later Count Von Bernstorff spent half-an-hour with the secretary. No announcements were made. It was said in well informed quarters,

We heartily extend you a cordial invitation to visit our Autumn

FERMAN AIR RAIDS STIMULATE RECRUITING

LONDON, Sept. 10.—The answer of the people of London and in the London district to these exercises in their willingness may be given in an episode mentioned in the Monarch Standard expressed the hope that the Government will announce its determination to hold the head of the German air craft service personally responsible for the death occasioned by Zeppelin raids.

The Globe and other newspapers take the view that every air raid on London or other English cities should be followed immediately by attacks on such German cities as Cologne, Strasbourg, Karlsruhe and Düsseldorf which are within easy reach of Bedford France.

STOPPED THE PREMIER

OTTAWA, Sept. 12.—The conscientiousness of a new member of the Dominion police force in the discharge of his duties caused an amusing incident at the entrance to the east block of the Parliament Buildings tonight. Two figures which emerged were challenged by the officer, whose duty it is to see that no unknown person goes in or out. Recognizing one of the pair as Hon. Dr. Reid, Minister of Customs, the policeman let him pass. His companion, however, seemed to incite his suspicion.

"What is your name?" he asked sharply.

"R. L. Bodren," was the answer. The policeman, however, was not satisfied, and it was only when Dr. Reid established the identity of Canada's prime minister, that Sir Robert was allowed to proceed on his way home. This he did after congratulating the new addition to the force on his faithful performance of his duties, however, that although the American government was not pleased with the Arabic note, the situation was considered far from hopeless.

No word has come from Vienna, where Ambassador Penfield is presumed to have delivered, several days ago, the note informing the Austro-Hungarian government that Dr Constantin Dumba no longer is acceptable as an envoy to the United States. Notice that Dr Dumba has been recalled is expected at any time. It was said at the State Department today that information regarding participation by Captain Von Popen, the German military attache, in Ambassador Dumba's plans for handicapping American munition plants, had not been received, so far, no action in regard to him had been considered.

COMMISSION TO SECURE AMERICAN LINER

(Special to the Guardian.)

NEW YORK, Sept. 13.—The present plan of a joint Anglo-French financial commission, it was reported tonight is to borrow one million dollars in the United States on straight British and French Government bonds without any collateral whatever. If the vast sum of money is obtained, it was said, it is to be spent to the last penny in the United States in payment for wheat, cotton, meal and other commodities and shipments including munitions of war. It will therefore, in the opinion of financial authorities be classified as a commercial loan. Where the neutrality of the States might be questioned in case that bankers financing a big loan should accept the straight British and French Government notes as their security, has been given serious consideration.

It is understood that the financiers familiar with the plan had every reason to believe the Washington administration would not interfere. We are not in a position to make a statement at the present time," Lord Reading said, tonight, "because we are studying conditions in New York and elsewhere in relation to American exchange on London and Paris."

ONLY TWELVE PATS WERE UNSCATHED

OTTAWA, Sept. 10.—M. S. Debay, Caledonian Springs, who is home on sick leave, with two shrapnel wounds in his arm, belongs to the Princess Pats, and on May 8th when he was wounded at Hooge he left only one other officer of the original officers of the regiment who had not been wounded. Of the men only twelve had come through unscathed out of the 1,100 who left here a year ago. Over 3,000 men have been enrolled in the regiment, including the reinforcements.

Lieut. Debay states that Col Buller, commander of the regiment, who lost an eye last spring, was told that he would have to have an artificial eye, but the only artificial eyes obtainable were made in Germany. Hearing this, Col. Buller refused to have one at all.

S.S. SANTA ANNA REPORTED SAFE

NEW YORK, Sept. 13.—The steamship Santa Anna, which was on fire in mid ocean is safe and proceeding under escort to the Azores, according to a wireless message received at the local office today. It read: Fire in hold 2, fire out and proceeding to Azores escorted by Aucona.

SANDY IN LONDON

(Philadelphia Ledger)

Sandy was spending his holidays in London, and whilst strolling down by the Thames was accosted by a boatman, who asked him if he would like to go for a row.

"How much is it?" Sandy asked.

"A shilling an hour," he was told.

After a few minutes anxious thought he decided to have half an hour, so he accordingly set off. On their return, the wily Scot found, after looking at his watch, that they had been away twenty minutes. "Hou'st! man, ye've only gien me twenty minutes," he said.

"Oh, that's all right," said the boatman. "Your time shrinks in London you know."

"I dinna ken that—and hoo much are ye chargin' for it?"

"Sixpence, please," was the reply.

"Sixpence, is it? Here ye are, then," said Sandy, handing the boatman a three-penny bit.

The boatman looked hard at it. "I want sixpence, please," he said.

"A weel, it was that sixpence when I gied it ye, but mabbe money shrinks in London, tae."
