PROROGATION

their constitutional right to appeal to the central government for aid nothing can be done, Prime Minister R. B. Bennett stated in the House Friday. No such regulation had been received although the men are travelling as trespassers on railway trains.

30,000 Ton Steel Rail Order

Yesterday the Government's latest move to assist the heavier industries toward recovery was announced in the form of an $0,000 steel rail order for the Canadian National, to be divided equally between the Algoma Steel Corporation, Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., and the Dominion Steel and Coal Corporation, Sydney, N. S.

This has been described as the cheapest form of unemployment relief since the only cost to the Government in similar experiences has been for a year or two of interest payments. Guarantees are given to the banks for 50 per cent of the production costs and the rails are paid for as delivered.

A record number of cabinet council sessions has been held in the past three weeks since the return of Prime Minister Bennett. He has called council meetings every week, including Saturdays and holidays, to deal with government legislation and policy. Council sat all day Saturday. Mr. Bennett has also attended the House of Commons every day and taken a prominent part in debate, but has seldom appeared in the House at evening sessions.

TITHE SYSTEM

Church of Canada. Dr. Roberts was excited yesterday to speak in an unofficial capacity but the steamer on which he was returning from Europe had been delayed by fog in the Gulf of St. Lawrence.

Real Objective

"I believe the title and the offering is the real objective of Christian people," said Mr. Brown who added the budget system didn't appeal to him because it was "based on commercial and political conditions," and he didn't believe in allocating to congregations the amount of money they must raise.

Pointing to unemployment in his presbytery, J. G. Oalkin of New Glasgow, N. S., a layman, told the assembly the Presbytery would not raise its budget allocation this year.

Consideration of remaining reports, a lengthy list of proposals and reports of special committees face commissioners next week. Officials believed the assembly might conclude Wednesday night of the province's business men.

DOUGLAS CRITICIZES ABERHART

Founder of the Principles of Social Credit Finds Fault With Alberta Leader.

(O.P. By Guardian's Special Wire) EDMONTON, June 9—Alberta tonight awaited a reply from William Aberhart of Calgary, Social Credit leader, to criticism of his proposals by Major C. H. Douglas, noted British economist and founder of the principles of social credit.

The criticism was made public Saturday in a letter sent by Major Douglas to Hon. J. H. Lymburn, Attorney General for Alberta. Mr. Douglas, now enroute to England, was engaged by the Alberta Government as reconstruction adviser.

In his letter he dealt with statements attributed to Mr. Aberhart, who, at the head of his Alberta Social Credit League has entered the field for the provincial general elections to be held this year.

Major Douglas said it would appear Mr. Aberhart had not grasped the fact social credit involved creation of additional purchasing power for the purpose of enabling the consumer to obtain more goods for a given amount of money in his possession as defined in the Douglas plan.

Under Major Douglas' scheme, the financial deficit to the producer would be made up in fresh credit, "or by additional sufficient purchasing power which is not passed through the costing system and therefore does not increase prices in the form of a national dividend."

Major Douglas had been asked by Mr. Lymburn to criticize a broadcast by Mr. Aberhart on social credit. In his address the Calgary Social Credit leader said he believed that if business men of Alberta understood the workings of the "just price" of his social credit plan, then the whole province would support his social credit principles.

He said it would be the purpose of the government to form a commission of experts whose duty it would be to discuss and settle what a fair price would be for each article offered for sale in Alberta.

This would take into account the cost of the raw materials, labor, machinery and so forth. Then this "just price" said Mr. Aberhart would be just to the producer, the distributor and the consumer.

The Alberta Social Credit leader advocated issuance of sufficient basic monthly dividends to provide the bare necessities of food, clothing and shelter to the people, so that there would at once be a large increase in purchasing power.

This he said would reflect itself at once in the turn-over of merchant's stocks. Such a plan he contended demanded the support of the province's business men.

In his letter to Mr. Lymburn, Major Douglas said that the aims of Mr. Aberhart were in the right direction but his method of carrying out the plan was at fault.

He said Major Douglas, Mr. Aberhart's objectives were attainable by the methods he had outlined, details he gave would be of primary importance, but this was not the case.

Major Douglas believed Mr. Aberhart had made a technical error in elaborating his detail to too great an extent to a general audience.

He declared Mr. Aberhart's explanation of the "just price" was not that which could be applied to the same phrase as used in responsible social credit literature. He claimed Mr. Aberhart's proposal appeared to contemplate a fixed price regardless of costs, which seemed to be assumed as constant.

Such a proposal Major Douglas said would decrease purchasing power rather than increase it. Also he said Mr. Aberhart's theory that purchasing power would be increased by rate of turnover was demonstrably incorrect.

Nova Scotia Youth Drowned

(C. P. By Guardian's Special Wire) ST. JOHN'S, N. S., June 9—Unlabeled, Billy Gibson, 15, was drowned in Smiley's pond here today when he went beyond his depth while bathing with a 13-year old companion, Owen Spence.

When he saw his friend sink, young Spence ran to the home of his grandfather and a number of men were called to the pond with like poles and grappling hooks. They were unable to recover the body until it had been submerged for more than an hour, and attempts at artificial respiration by Dr. A. R. Reid of Windsor proved futile.

Gibson was an orphan.

Dust Mulch Protects Against Hot Weather

Dry weather and a light soil offentimes mean the end of an otherwise good vegetable garden. There are precautions, however, which may be taken to prevent disaster, and the simplest and easiest is the dust mulch.

Going to work on the basis that there is always, even in the driest of soils, a constant upward flow of moisture from below, the business of the dust that moisture before it is dissipated by coming in contact with the air.

This is done by loosening the subsoil and pulverizing the surface, and thereby relieving the pressure which forces the moisture to the surface. Aside from adding a good humus to the soil, this ancient method of moisture conservation is the best.

Drowning Tragedy Near Halifax

(C. P. By Guardian's Special Wire) HALIFAX, June 9—The body of James MacPherson, 29-year-old Haligonian, was recovered Saturday near an overturned rowboat in Sheldrake Lake, about 20 miles from Halifax.

There were no witnesses of the tragedy, but reconstructed evidence led to the theory that MacPherson set out fishing Saturday morning in an old rowboat, apparently unaware that it had no caulk in its bungle.

He had been able to row across the lake, within eight feet of shallow water before the half-filled boat tipped.

MacPherson's arms were stretched upwards when his body was recovered, as if he had held on to the boat for some time and then let go.

Search began when his brother returned to the camp at the lake from Halifax and saw the overturned boat.

A coroner's jury returned a verdict of death by drowning and recommended that all old boats lying disused on the shores of lakes be destroyed by police and rangers.

ONE DEAD, TWO INJURED

(C. P. By Guardian's Special Wire) EDMUNDSTON, N. B., June 9—Instantaneous death to Alphonse Roy, of Fort Kent, Me., and possibly fatal injuries to his wife and child occurred this afternoon when a car owned and driven by Roy was in collision with a truck near Fort Kent, according to meagre details reaching here tonight. Mrs. Roy and the child were on the danger list at the Eagle Lake Hospital.

GET AT WEEDS EARLY

You can't just shake your fist at the weeds. The only remedy is to get under them with the hoe, or pull them up. And the earlier, the better. Young weeds are easily destroyed, with a minimum of effort, but if you give them a chance to grow they will cause you no end of trouble later.

(By The Canadian Press) HALIFAX, June 9—Visitors to Halifax! beware Saturdays! If you're not careful, your car is sure to be caught on some one of these for citizens here claim the dubious honor of this being the most "tagged" city on the North American continent.

No less than nine applications for tag days were awarded by a recent meeting of the city council. Beginning in May, the list gives tag days for each of the five Saturdays in June, a couple in July and one in September.

About every organization from the Salvation Army to the Women's Amateur Athletic Association will be printing tags.

NORTHAMPTON, Eng. — A. W. Snowden has been appointed captain of the Northamptonshire County Cricket Club in place of W. G. Brown, who may be unable to play for some weeks owing to a leg injury.

Thousands Hear Social Work Leader

(C. P. By Guardian's Special Wire) MONTREAL, June 9—Twenty-fifth century social work will be only a stretcher bearer and minister of first aid if it does not interpret the frustration and the pain and help to justify the courage and the hope of the people," stated Katherine F. Lenroot, of Washington, President of the National Conference of social work, in her presidential address here tonight.

Addressing a crowded forum, numbering in her audience thousands of leaders and rank and file of the social service workers of the United States and Canada, with important delegations from Great Britain and Japan among other countries, Miss Lenroot declared the essence of social work is understanding. "In its philosophy there is no common man, but there are common needs whose satisfaction is the goal of individual striving and social organization."

The task of the present century was to reconcile individual freedom and social security. "Interpretation of human need, crystallization of social work is understanding of the social order are supremely difficult."

Expect Good Team For English Tour

(By The Canadian Press) TORONTO, June 9—Further progress has been made by Hon. R. C. Matthews, Minister of National Revenue, with his plans to sponsor an English tour by a team of Canadian cricketers during the summer of 1936.

It is 13 years ago since a representative Canadian team visited England and in order that the best men available may be selected Mr. Matthews has expressed his intention of inviting several well-known cricketers to act as a selection committee. The selectors will include Dr. H. C. Griffith of Ridley College, St. Catharines, and Harry Dean of the Toronto Cricket Club.

They will be asked to watch the form displayed by a number of promising young Canadian cricketers during the present season.

While many members of the side to be chosen will probably come from Ontario clubs several young players from Quebec, British Columbia and other parts of the Dominion are expected to be included.

In order that the strongest team possible may be sent an appeal will be made to employers to allow extended leave of absence in the case of a number of outstanding players.

It is expected that the team will leave Canada late in June and return by the end of August.

Mr. Matthews, who is chairman of the Dominion Cricket Advisory Board, is of the opinion that an exceptionally strong team is possible and the experience gained in meeting British teams would be invaluable in building up the sport in the Dominion.

Baldwin Outlines Policy, To Strengthen Armaments

as to the date of the forthcoming general elections.

"When the National Government is returned to power," he said, "it may be with a reduced majority, but let it be with a majority that will make the world conscious that behind the government stands the mass of the British people, whatever their local political allegiance may be."

Speaking later in a broadcast to the nation, the incoming Prime Minister recapitulated to the main points of his Himley Hall speech. He emphasized the need for continuance of the National Government to insure the maintenance of trade revival. He said the government would persist in its efforts for peace and disarmament and he believed they would succeed ultimately.

Mr. Baldwin referred to the appointment of Anthony Eden as minister without portfolio for League of Nations affairs. He said he deliberately adopted the "new peace procedure" of having two ministers in the cabinet, both dealing with foreign affairs, in order to give special emphasis to the importance of the government attached to membership in the League.

"The difficulties of Italy with Abyssinia are causing anxiety in the rest of Europe. We are confronted suddenly with these difficulties and possible dangers.

"This has made more necessary than ever stability and strength in the governments of the countries of the world. Let that be an additional reason for maintaining the national principle in government."

"My own desire," he concluded, "is that the team spirit should continue so that this country should be enabled to consolidate and maintain its position as a leader in the van of progress towards world prosperity, world freedom and world peace."

At Himley Hall, Mr. Baldwin briefly reviewed the political standpoint of the great countries—Italy, Russia, Germany, the United States and France.

"Today the one great country which enjoys stability is our own," he said amid cheers. Dealing with dictators, he reminded his hearers these were only stable as long as the dictator himself was able to maintain power.

"The characteristics of dictatorship—the possibility of swift and unexpected action—are often denied to a democratic country controlled by a democratic constitution. Thus we see Germany's swift but armament conceded for a time but performed by two years' work."

VETERAN

Telegraph-Journal and F. J. Burd of the Vancouver Province acted as joint chairmen.

In proposing the toast to Mr. Macklin's health, Mr. Robinson said the fact so many prominent Canadian newspaper men had come to Winnipeg two days before their annual meetings testified to the esteem and affection in which Mr. Macklin was held by his colleagues.

Other Speakers

Other speakers were A. W. Robb of the Halifax Herald, Henri Gagnon of Quebec, Le Soleil, P. D. W. Dafe of the Winnipeg Free Press, M. E. Nichols of the Winnipeg Tribune, Thomas Miller of the Moose Jaw Times and J. H. Woods of the Calgary Herald.

Mr. Burd read the following address, signed by the presidents of the two associations, W. J. J. Butler (Toronto Mail and Empire) of the C.D.N.A. and Henri Gagnon of the Canadian Press:

"To Edward Hamilton Macklin: "The Canadian Daily Newspapers would be strangely forgetful and ungracious if they failed to place on record their high appreciation of the services you have rendered in their behalf. Your abilities and energies have been expressed in every movement jointly undertaken by the daily newspapers of Canada for the advancement of their mutual interests and for the enlargement of their facilities to serve the public.

"It was you whose vision and courage in 1927 conceived the Western Associated Press, the pioneer of co-operative news gathering in Canada. Your power and personality were evidenced in the expansion of that association till it embraced in its members and participants all the daily newspapers between the head of the lakes and the Pacific Ocean. No less striking was the strength you brought to the task of merging in 1917 all the sectional co-operative news gathering associations in what is now The Canadian Press, a truly national achievement and one of outstanding benefit to the press and the public.

"You have been similarly active and influential in contributing to the solution of strictly business problems which are of common interest to the daily newspapers of Canada and which therefore demand common newspaper action. In this field of effort, you have at every step given freely of your time, your talent and your energies. The Canadian Daily Newspapers Association is the fruition of the numerous organized efforts of Canadian daily newspaper publishers to establish sound and ethical business practices. In its present strong position and in its ever increasing power to serve the mutual interests of Canadian daily newspapers there is evidence of solid building to which you have been a potent contributor.

"Yours is a personality that has won the hearts of all those of our fraternity who have served with you in the field of common endeavor. Yours is ability that has commanded their respect and admiration. With one voice the members of The Canadian Press and the Canadian Daily Newspapers Association acclaim their indebtedness to you for the distinguished service you have rendered as one of them, and most fervently do they hope that you may long live to enrich their business proceedings and to grace their social gatherings."

After being presented with a piece of silver, Mr. Macklin made an acknowledgment in which he recalled the early days of cooperative news gathering in Canada.

CANTERBURY, England — The King has approved the appointment as Canon of Canterbury of Rev. Frederick J. Shirley, headmaster of St. Cuthbert's College, Workop.

Such a base, or series of bases, the committee member asserted, would be regarded by many Canadians as promoting continental defence rather than defence of the United States exclusively.

Mentioning confidently the possibility of aggression by one nation in particular, he added:

Interests Linked

"The interests of the United States and Canada are linked so closely that sooner or later we must consider joint continental defence and look on our bases and Canadian bases as integral parts of a unified defence system."

Representative James Wilcox, Florida Democrat, author of the air base measure, said he had assembled figures to show Canada had established five bases within 100 miles of the United States—one at Vancouver, one at Winnipeg and three in Ontario.

The Canadian Government recently queried the state department about a statement of a member of the United States Army High
