Graydon

Stanley Knowles (C.C.F. Winnipeg North Centre) said a policy of putting a ceiling on wages should not have carried with it the possibility that in some cases the floor would be the ceiling. The minimum wage rates should not be looked on as basic wages.

Mr. Mitchell said labor and wages were a matter of provincial jurisdiction but as a result of recent national war labor board meetings there might be some crystallization of viewpoints on minimum wage laws in the provinces and the ends desired by Mr. Knowles might be achieved.

Re Mr. Little

Mr Graydon said the Government had failed to make effective use of the national registration conducted in 1940. Many felt that Elliott M. Little, former director of National Selective Service who resigned last November, had been "too good a planner for what the government had in mind."

He said Mr. Little apparently tried to bring his branch to a point of efficiency and dispatch, and had attempted to see if the government was prepared to do its utmost, in compliance with 1939 undertakings, to prosecute the war effort with all vigor.

It appeared the unemployment insurance commission, also a unit of the labor department, had been jealous of national selective service which was to be superimposed on it.

"When Mr. Little resigned in November and his resignation was accepted, of course the unemployment insurance commission had won the day," said Mr. Graydon.

The conservative house leader read the Winnipeg convention resolution advocating unrestricted national selective service as representing his party's view of one abpect of the government's manpower policy.

Permits Needed

—Newfoundland, Greenland, Iceland, and the Faro Islands—as well as supplies from Canada will be allocated to the different markets, including, in the case of some of the producng areas, shipments to Portugal and Spain.

"The Canadian authorities," said Mr. Bertrand, "have agreed to allocate supplies to designated importing areas as follows: United States, 8,380,000 pounds; Porto Rico, 5,870,000; British West Indies, 5,850,000; Latin America, 3,480,000; and the United Kingdom, 2,370,000 pounds.

"An additional quantity of about 1,400,000 pounds wil be treated as a safeguarding reserve in case adjustments become necessary in any of the quotas because of changes in the shipping situation or other factors."

Price levels, uniform in all the markets, have been fixed for each kind of grade of salt fish.

Inspection In Maritimes

Inspection of Canadian exports to determine the grades of the shipments will be carried on by fisheries officers: In the Maritime Provinces inspection wil be by officers of the Dominion Department of Fisheries and in Quebec, the other producing area, by employees of the Provincial Fisheries service.

Export permits will be issued on the advice of the Department of Fisheries but will be handled through two associations — the Canadian Atlantic salt fish exporters' association with headquarters at Halifax, and the Quebec fish exporters' association.

Each association will apportion its share of the quotas among the individual members or exporters.

wood, presided. Others on the platform included Dr. A. A MacDonald, J Frank Sterns, president of the King's County Association, Henry Mallard, secretary, A. F. McQuaid, K.C., and John MacLean, M.L.A.

Mr. Bracken related many interesting incidents of his tour across Canada. He emphasized the increased responsibilities placed on Canadian agriculture in wartime and the great opportunities which the postwar years will present.

Expressing appreciation of what he had seen in his day's tour, Mr. Bracken said he wondered why anyone living on Prince Edward Island should ever want to leave it.

Today he will visit various centres in Queen's County and in the evening will address a public meeting in the Empire Theatre, Charlottetown.

Labor Minister Discusses Callups And Enlistments

OTTAWA, June 24 —(CP)—Labor Minister Mitchell said yesterday in the House of Commons that the calling of men for compulsory military service achieves the same objective in all call up districts, although the rate of calling men into the army might be affected by staff and accommodation difficulties.

The minister said J. G. Diefenbaker (Prog. Con. Lake Centre) had said in the House he considered there was inequality in the percentage of the call up of men as between different military districts.

"The fact that the percentage of enlistments and call-ups both are low in the same district or division would indicate that in such districts there is a higher percentage of men unfit for military service or that more men are required for farming and essential industry, or perhaps both,' the minister said.

"If the percentage of fit and unfit men were the same and the demands for farming and industry equal in each district or division the district or division having a high percentage of volunteers would have a smaller percentage liable to the regulations and, consequently, a smaller percentage of men called up."

Mr. Mitchell said instructions to mobilization divisions were to bring the men in designated classes under the regulations as quickly as possible. The districts varied in size and some had greater difficulty in obtaining accommodation and staff.

"Therefore, the speed of selection varies, but in the end, the result sought for is obtained that is, all men fit for service, in the designated class, who are not given postponement and have not volunteered for service in the armed forces, are selected," he continued.

Mr. Mitchell said Hon. R. B. Hanson (Prog. Con. York-Sunbury) had not been correct in stating that the call-up quota for each district was on the bas's of voluntary enlistments, not on the basis of available manpower.

"In districts where there has been high voluntary enlistment, the National Defence training facilities would be taxed and the tendency might be to lower the allotment from such a district," the Minister said.

It might happen that a district with many voluntary enlistments had cleared its training centres, but th's would not affect the number called for compulsory training. If there were not training facilities for men in one district they would be moved to another.

One of the most daring young officers in Britain's "little Navy," Lieut Philip Gould, 26, has been killed in action, Gould, skipper of a motor torpedo boat, once found himself alone between two enemy convoys, escorted by E-boats. He calmly decided to throw in his lot with the E-boats which failed to recognize him in the darkness.

Addresses were delivered and explanations given by Mr. M. F. Graves of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board, and Mr. William McNeill, who explained the meat situation and the necessity for careful rationing. Plans for serving meals during Old Home Week were taken up at length and discussed and as a result arrangements will be much improved.

It was decided to form an association to be known as the Charlottetown Public Caterers Association.

Sergt. E. H. Sellar Killed In Action

Sergeant Observer Ernest Harold Sellar, 22, son of the late Major and Mrs. R. Sellar, was killed in action, February 21, according to word received recently by his brother, Shirley R. Sellar, 825 Jessie Avenue, Winnipeg.

Prior to enlistment with the R. C.A.F. in June 1941, Sergt. Sellar was employed at the C.P.R time. office of the Weston shops. His parents, Major and Mrs. Sellar, operated the C.P.R dining hall at Weston for over 30 years.

"Stamp Out U-Boat" Is Club Slogan

"Stamp out The U-boat" will be the fighting slogan of the Summerside Y's men Club during the forthcoming sale of War Savings Stamps which opens in Summerside on Monday June 28th. The idea involved in the sale of the stamps tis a novel one. Each purchaser of four war saving stamps during the "Stamp out the U-Boat" programme is entitled to receive a printed "Stamp-O-Gram" "message to be signed with his or her name and address to be affixed in one of the spaces on the large Depth Charge Tally Sheet. The tally sheet holds 90 messages and represents the purchase price of one depth charge.

The "Stamp O Grams" range from messages of encouragement to our sailors to messages of defiance to Hitler and his aides. You have a wide selection of messages to choose from and there are blank forms for those who wish to write personal message. To Hitler you may say for instance "Free people who want to stay free, send you this, with more to come" or if you are sending it to the boys on the Corvette Summerside you could say "Good luck and Good Hunting". The complete Depth Charge Tally is eventually delivered to the various fighting ships as a tangible demonstration that the people at home are solidly behind them.

Realizing the urgency of the Campaign the men of the Summerside Y's mens club are getting solidly behind the drive and since there are hundreds of thousands of Canadians who have a personal interest in seeing that our convoys get safely through, then the success of the Campaign will provide the men of the Corvetts with a vital weapon against the U-boats.—S

The secretary was instructed to write the Federal members and the Postmaster General that this be looked into and future legion men be given consideration.

Comrade Phil Palmer read a resolution regarding the re-arranging of the home, discussion followed by E. M. Bagnall, T. E. McNutt, Fred McWade, Harold Messervy, Leo Bradley and James McKenna and after some minor adjustments was passed.

Comrade Leo Bradley brought up the matter of membership and wanted to know if any effort was being put forth to secure any of the men from the present forces that were returning home.

Appointment of delegates to the Provincial Convention was the next order of discussion and resulted in Comrades E. M. Bagnall, Leo Bradley, and Harold Measervy receiving the vote.

There being no further business the meeting adjourned with the singing of the National Anthem.
