ST. JAMES CHURCH

Preaching yesterday morning on the text "Happy is the man that shall the God of Jacob for his help" (Psalm 146.5) the Minister, the Reverend T. H. Sussex, B.S.M., said: "Hours we have known by chance, when God has summoned us, and then like Abraham we have obeyed the call, and in such hours we praised the God of Abraham, and knew Him for our Father and our Friend. But through the years when ways were dim and perilous, when hearts were obscure and hopes were falling who has not felt that he was saved and spared because the God of Jacob was his help? Had he been swift to punish our forgetfulness, who among us would have sung this morning? Had he despaired of us as we of heaven, long ago we had made our bed in hell. But through the years, the lean and wasted years, the joyless prayerless and forgetful years, we have been brought again and pardoned and restored by the infinite patience of the God of Jacob. Lessons we would not do. He has forgiven, failures and falsehoods, made us of Jacob. He has covered us up in His infinite compassion. Thus in His mercy did He deal with Jacob, thus in His mercy He deals with us. Can any have gained the world and yet have never found the way of happiness. One year has been wasted in weakness and power and beauty, and yet may never have found the way of happiness. But this is certain, a little more than a year ago, we were covered up in His infinite compassion. Thus in His mercy did He deal with Jacob, thus in His mercy He deals with us. Can any have gained the world and yet have never found the way of happiness. One year has been wasted in weakness and power and beauty, and yet may never have found the way of happiness. But this is certain, a little more than a year ago, we were covered up in His infinite compassion. Thus in His mercy did He deal with Jacob, thus in His mercy He deals with us.
