Remembrance Day At Montague

Notwithstanding the chill of easterly winds, accompanied by showers of rain and intermittent furies of snow, and roads made almost impassable by recent continuous rains many people from the outlying districts came on Sunday to join with the citizens of Montague in paying tribute to the boys of yesterday, who, at the call of the Motherland, left home and loved ones in answer to that call, endured untold privations, and, on the battlefields of Flanders, laid down their young lives for the cause of freedom. Sixteen years have elapsed since that never to be forgotten day when the bugles heralded the message of peace to a heart-aching anxious world. Sixteen years helps to dim the memory of what those four years of war cost the finest of Canadian manhood. The total casualties sustained by the Canadian expeditionary force, and reported up to January 15, 1919, were 218,283. The details are: Killed in action, 55,964; Died of wounds, 12,837; Died of disease, 4,057; Wounded, 155,838; Prisoners of war, 3,049; Presumed dead, 4,682; Missing, 398; Deaths in Canada, 4,327. Total, 437,000.

This number does not include the many thousands who died from the effects of war since that date, or the many thousands who are dying at their homes and in military hospitals today. To get a waiting, of the tragic aftermath of war, one has but to visit one of the many military hospitals throughout the Dominion and there they will find men with both legs—and often both arms—missing, men with faces half shot away—beyond recognition, men in the last stages of T.B.—brought on by poisonous gases. Men with open wounds which will never heal, men shaking all over as with the piteous result of concussion—shellshock.

Then there are men we meet in every day life who are endeavoring as best they can to make a living for themselves and their families. Many of them were discharged as "physically fit" but it was not long after the discharge that their days, weeks and months of lightning in muddy, water-soaked uniforms, nights of tense waiting, bursting of huge projectiles mingled with the screams of high velocity shells and the groans of dying men, began to demand their price from the bodies and minds of those apparently physically fit men, with the result that practically every man who saw service on the battlefields is suffering because of that service.

There is another great army of soldiers who will carry the battle scars with them to their graves, the mothers, fathers, wives and sweethearts—whose part in the service of their King and country was to stay at home "and wait." In their hearts they fought the greatest battle that ever was fought—while they waited and watched for the dreaded telegram. One mother, who had a young son leave Montague with the first to answer the call in August, 1914, (another son followed later) suffered such agony of waiting that her heart was effected and when word of his death came she was under a doctor's care. This doctor, a man with a long experience, said that this mother had a broken heart which would never mend, and truly it was so for she died of heart failure some years later. Indirectly the war caused her death. There are many, many others, and we cannot forget them on Remembrance Day.

The most impressive Remembrance Day service ever held at Montague took place on Sunday last. Owing to inclement weather the first part of the service was held in the rink where a large number gathered. Rev. Mr. McNevin, of Georgetown, who responded to the call in 1914, delivered a most inspiring address, instilling in the hearts of his hearers "what we should teach our children."

Canadians Invested By Gov. General

(C. P. by Guardian's Special Wire)

OTTAWA, Nov. 12.—Government House was today the scene of an interesting ceremony when eight Canadians, six men and two women were invested by the Governor General with the insignia of orders in which they were admitted to the King's birthday honor list. Only a few relations and friends were present when the ceremony took place.

Included in the list were two knights, His Excellency, the Governor General, Dr. Frederick G. Banting, of Toronto, now Sir Frederick Banting, discoverer of insulin, with the insignia of Knight Commander of the order of the British Empire. To Dr. Charles Edward Saunders, discoverer of Marquis Wheat, he handed letters patent conferring upon him the order of knighthood. Sir Charles Saunders also resides in Toronto.

Known throughout Canada's prominent figures in the Dominion were invested with the insignia of the order of St. Michael and St. George. They were Alexander Johnston, C. M. G., former deputy minister of marine, Ottawa. Ernest J. Lemaire, C. M. G., clerk of the privy council, Ottawa, and Hon. William J. Roche, C. M. G., chief of the civil service commission.

The two women honored were Miss Margaret Eleanor Theodora Addison, formerly dean of women, Victoria College, Toronto University, and Rev. Mother Marie-Anne Piche, of Montreal who were invested with the insignia of commander of the British Empire.

Edward Lester Brittain, of Ottawa, now retired but for 50 years on the staff of the finance department, was invested with the insignia of officer of the British Empire.

General Smuts Pleads For Peace

(C.P. Cable by Guardian's Special Wire)

LONDON, Nov. 12.—Recognition of Germany's complete equality with other nations, and friendliness to Japan, were warmly urged by General Jan Smuts tonight as he vigorously denounced all talk of war.

Addressing a dinner of the Royal Institute of International Affairs the distinguished South African soldier and statesman pointed to the League of Nations as the medium for removal of the war-fear complex by open discussion.

He suggested that if the European fear obsession was removable only by sanctions, then they should be done on some such limited basis as the League system, within a circumscribed area of those nations interested.

General Smuts ridiculed the idea the German people were deliberately preparing for war. He pleaded for recognition of her complete status of equality and declared that Germany's return to the arms conference and the League would be a substantial step towards an international disarmament agreement.

He admitted the situation in the Far East had its dangers, but Manchukuo's establishment was a call to Europe to put her own house in order, he thought.

He appealed for the friendliest spirit towards Japan. "Everything possible in the power of diplomacy should be done to avoid even the appearance of antagonism between east and west," he declared.

"If we can not be allies with Asia we should at least be friends," he said, "and proceed to the unknown dangers of the future in a spirit of understanding and friendliness."

He concluded with an appeal for full cooperation between the British Empire and the United States.

DENTAL SERVICES

RECEIVE PRAISE (By The Canadian Press) TORONTO, Nov. 9.—"The time has come where there should be a dental service established in the hospitals whereby the dental profession should be recognized for the service they are rendering to humanity," said Hon. Dr. J. A. Faulkner, provincial minister of health, speaking in this city recently to the Ontario Dental Association.

He threw that out not having consulted the cabinet," he added. A large number of oral cases brought to the hospitals eventually have to consult an expert dentist, the doctor stated. He has seen that the indigent population has become a very serious responsibility. It has been approaching very serious proportions. The municipalities paid $4,510,813 in the fiscal year 1933 and the provincial government $1,060,156, he stated.

MARINA ARRIVES IN BABY NAMING

(By The Canadian Press) TORONTO, Nov. 13.—So much publicity had been given to the royal romance between British Princess Marina and Greek Prince George that it seemed almost inevitable that dozens of girl babies born in recent months would be named after her. Marina is a pretty name, a distinguished name, and an unusual name; in fact, it was so unusual that for at least the past 20 years no Toronto child has been named Marina. One came right on the heels of the first, in the matter of registration.

SOUR STOMACH, GAS

"I could not enjoy a meal, because of the bad after-ditch—sour stomach, gas and indigestion. I lost weight, became nervous and sleepless," said Mrs. F. H. Hamilton, Ont. "I took Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and my digestion was better. I enjoyed my meals, and I felt so much better." Write Dr. Pierce's Clinic, Buffalo, N. Y.
