Ideas of East Are Contradicted

VANCOUVER, B.C., August 17.—Married couples in Europe and America who find friction developing when the wife's career interferes with their marriage can take lessons from Chinese domestic relations.

In China, said Mrs. Zen, husbands encourage their wives to take up careers outside of the home and proud is the Chinese husband whose wife gains fame and eminence of her own in the realm of art, literature, science or business.

"Chinese women even in the olden days" said the author of "The Chinese Woman in a Modern World," "did not confine their interests and ambitions to the family circle but now and then distinguished themselves with deeds and thoughts and in services both social and national.

Women of China, she said, today fill important places in practically all branches of thought, a fact which contradicts the popular Western notion that the Chinese woman holds a subservient place in affairs.

There was a loud stamping of feet in the corridor. Suddenly the office door burst open and in sprang an angry stranger. The office-boy jumped to his feet. "Look here, my lad!" snapped the stranger, "who's the person in this firm responsible for posting mail orders? I want to make a complaint." The office-boy mopped his perspiring brow. "I don't know who's responsible," he replied wearily, "but I know who'll set the blame."

WHEAT TITLE WELL EARNED

STAVELY, Alta., Aug. 17.—(C. P.)—Freelan (correct) Wilford, a busy practical farmer in the Stavely district—not an idealist at all—is wheat king of the world as no other agrarian ever has been.

With samples from hundreds of Canadian farms and 13 other countries, the judges planted Wilford's wheat. It was grown on the Canadian government's experimental farm at Indian Head, Sask.—a new test for prize wheat.

First-stage results tabulated, the judges then took the remainder of the original samples for the standard examinations. Each kernel was examined for appearance, weight, general size and uniformity, weight per bushel and quality for use as seed.

Wilford's exhibit was in the most rigorous test to which prize wheat has ever been subjected. The 36-year old Stavely grower was in Regina when announcement of his victory was made.

"I am pleased," he said, and that was all. He left the comment for others. They said: "The greatest victory of all wheat competitions." Wilford has been gunning for the world wheat title for many a day. On the homestead his father staked in 1903 when he crossed the international border from Aurora, Nebraska, bronzed Freelan has grown wheat and coarse grains, raised cattle and live stock, bred horses and given attention to sheep.

But he has never been too busy to give a thought to prize wheat. Twice he was second to Herman Trelle, his Wembley, Alta., rival in wheat and coarse grains at the Chicago world fairs. It happened to be the greatest of all grain shows when Wilford was first and Trelle second.

Wilford took his winning kernels from a piece of land broken for the first time in 1882. The original seed was purchased four years before from the government seed farm at Olds, Alta. The strain was kept pure, finally planted in the virgin 15-acre field that yielded the best wheat sample in the world.

During the winter months Wilford and his wife chose the perfect kernels—thousands of them—by the light of oil lamps. They brought $2,000 in prize money. The Wilford wheat was pitted against samples from hundreds of farms in Canada, from England, Scotland, Northern Ireland, Germany, India, Burma, Siam, New Zealand, British Guiana, Australia, South Africa, Argentina, the Philippines and from 24 states in the United States.

Wilford did not race back to his farm when he learned he had won. He stayed—living with 800 other visiting farm families in the "tent city"—to learn all he could from the scores of agricultural authorities gathered from all over the world. And when it was over he returned home with his wife—still the practical mixed farmer from the foothills of the Rockies who gave to Alberta its 10th world wheat title and the first for South Alberta since 1912.

Canadians Win Scholarships

(Special to The Guardian) CHICAGO, Aug. 17.—Three university scholarships, out of seven offered by the Fisher Body Craftsman's Guild to boys who built the best miniature model Napoleonic coaches in North America go to Canadians.

Last night before one hundred and fourteen state and provincial winners attending the Century of Progress Exposition, the Guild announced that Joseph Olafson of Leslie, Saskatchewan, and David Tennant, of London, Ontario, had tied for the first senior scholarship and because of the dead heat a last minute decision was made to award both boys the $5,000, that will give them college education.

The third Canadian scholarship winner was another London boy, Richard H. Guthrie, who ranked first among the juniors. Guthrie who is sixteen years old was easily first in his class, but the other Ontario boy and his Saskatchewan competitor were so close for the senior award that the judges appealed to Guild officers who generously decided to award two senior scholarships.

The three fortunate young Canadians were presented with their scholarship certificates by Mr. R. S. McLaughlin, President of General Motors of Canada Limited, and President of the Canadian section of the Guild and were warmly congratulated for the beautiful model coaches they submitted in the competition. All three winning Canadian boys expended thousands of hours of work on their models and they are among the finest yet submitted by Guild members. Olafson and Tennant were district winners last year and attended the International Convention in Detroit. Guthrie was junior second in Ontario district last year.

Mr. W. A. Fisher, International President of the Fisher Body Craftsman's Guild, congratulated the three Canadian boys for their pluck and perseverance in duplicating their feat of last year.

The four American scholarship winners announced were Charles Gadd, of Spokane, Wash.; Jack Wicks, of St. Paul, Minn.; Myron Webb, of Arkansas City, Kan.; E. Stanley Knoche, of Baltimore.

Each award entitles its winner to four years in any university he selects.

Studying the course he desires he will have the benefit of the advice of the Guild Board of Honorary Judges which includes fourteen of the leading scientific educators of Canada and the United States. Boys still in high school will be credited at once with the $5,000 award and will receive the interest as well as the principal to defray their university costs. Any money remaining upon completion of a boy's higher education will be paid him in a lump sum.

Junior and senior winners in their respective districts, the fourteen Canadians present for the big event at the army were David Tennant, London, Ont.; Richard H. Guthrie, London, Ont.; Paul LeBlanc, Quebec City, P.Q.; Leonard Duquet, Theftford Mines, Que.; Wilford Cote, Edmundston, N. B.; Howard W. Dickinson, Hartland, N. B.; Harold Hirst, Vancouver, B.C.; Carson Pecknold, Victoria, B.C.; Vernon M. Parrish, Medicine Hat, Alta.; Donald W. MacGregor, Dayland, Alta.; Joseph Olafson, Midway Park, Leslie, Sask.; Harold Rasmussen, Regina, Sask.; Harry Yasyna, Winnipeg, Man., and Fred Ross, Winnipeg, Man.

Present also were Mr. John A. Stiles, Chief Executive Commissioner of the Boy Scouts' Association of Canada; Mr. C. H. Mitchell, Dean General of Applied Science and Engineering, University of Toronto; Mr. Augustin Frigon, Director General of Technical Education, Province of Quebec; Dean of Ecole Polytechnique, University of Montreal, and Mr. T. H. Clrpe, Secretary Canadian Section Fisher Body Craftsman's Guild and Advertising Manager of General Motors of Canada.
