British Engineer Captured By Chinese Bandits

(Canadian Press) PEKIN, July 24.—Chinese bandits have captured Darcy Weatherbe a British mining engineer near Chihuo in the province of Yunnan according to reports received by the Customs commissioner here today.

Weatherbe was formerly a resident of the globe. He was last heard from in May when he wrote his brother here from North Burma stating that he was setting out with mules and natives to explore a new uncharted route to Pekin from Burma through a country never before visited by whites.

After graduation Mr. Weatherbe held a position in the Nova Scotia mines office from whence he set out for foreign countries earning an international reputation as a mining engineer and visiting practically every part of the globe.

He was educated at the Royal Military College at Kingston and held positions in many parts of the globe.

DON'T CATER TO HALF MEASURES but vote the full straight. STEWART. GOVERNMENT TICKET in every district. JOHNSON & JOHNSON will be the only drug store open all day today.

BELL GOVERNMENT candidates are conscious of their coming defeat and the Patriot is whistling to keep up their courage. Don't mind their piping but get busy plugging your votes for the incoming Stewart Government.

TOMORROW THE LAST CHANCE to oust the discredited taxation government. Get onto the job, work with a will; record every vote and victory will perch triumphantly upon our banners.

MUSTER OUT IN FULL FORCE tomorrow and bury the deceivers beneath an avalanche of indignant ballots.

HAD PRACTICE YESTERDAY The Charlottetown Lifeboat crew under command of Capt. Edward White, were out for practice yesterday.

ENDS TOMORROW.—The "borrow" and pay themselves as they go" government goes out tomorrow. They were strong on debentures. Every dollar of debenture debt has been put on this province by Liberal governments.

"McDONALD and WOOD FOR FORT AUGUSTUS" Let every elector in the Third District make this his and her slogan and work from now till the polls close to elect those supporters of the incoming Stewart Government.

ENJOYED THE RACE.—The officers and men remaining on board H. M. S. Capetown last evening were interested spectators of the yacht race.

AUCTION SALE at N. Stewarts 19 Weymouth will recommence today 10.30 a. m. Lot of good furniture, Willes piano, oilcloth, etc. still to be sold.—A. Williamson, Auctioneer.

BAND CONCERT ENJOYED.—A very enjoyable concert was given on Queen Square last night by the League of the Cross band. The programme was a nicely arranged one and was well performed.

FUNERAL NOTICE.—The funeral of Hugh Connors will take place from his late residence 51 Dorchester St. tomorrow at 8.50 a. m. to St. Dunstan's Catholic Church thence to Roman Catholic Cemetery.

McMILLAN and McLEAN are the popular candidates in the good old Belfast District. They represent a splendid canvass and the best minded Liberals rallying to their support. Tired of the do nothing spend the cash, taxation Bell Government. Two members from this district to support the new Stewart Government.

COMPARE THIS.—The Matheson government, without borrowing a dollar reduced the public debt of the province from $1,008,242 in 1911 to $921,377 at the end of 1914. Had it not been for the heavy burdens of the war this reduction would have been continuous. Compare this with the borrowing record of the Bell government.

DON'T REST ON YOUR OARS because everybody tells you the Government is doomed. "Faith without works is dead," and only by getting your votes in you can ensure a victory. Be early at the poll and get your own and all your neighbor's votes in and at the close rejoice that you did your share in ridding the province of the useless past.

REMEMBER that Liberals do not win their elections by prayer. Don't take any chance with them but take off your coat and work and keep your eyes open for the "human devices" from Ottawa. If you take their money you only commit one wrong, but if you deliver your vote in return you commit two.

Lausanne Peace Treaty Signed Tuesday Afternoon

(Canadian Press) LAUSANNE, July 24.—The Lausanne peace treaty was signed Tuesday afternoon at 3.15 p. m. (British United Press)

CONSTANTINOPLE, July 24.—Today was observed as a public holiday in honor of the signing of the peace treaty at Lausanne. (By Dominion News Service)

LAUSANNE, July 24.—Morning papers with one exception agree that the treaty with Turkey signed at Lausanne is the most humiliating document of its kind ever signed by British statesmen.

The negotiations have ended in disappointment and the Turks gained practically every point the only concession made to the Allies being the maintenance of freedom of the Straits although an autonomy of a limited sort is granted to the Arabs under Turkish dominion.

LAUSANNE, July 24.—The general treaty, formally ending the state of war was signed by Great Britain, France, Italy, Japan, Greece, Rumania and Turkey. Jugo-Slavia announced refusal to sign on the grounds that to do so would be harmful to her national interests. The treaty distributes the Ottoman debt among countries like Jugo-Slavia which acquired parts of the former Ottoman empire. Jugo-Slavia maintains that she annexed her former Turkish territories as the result of the Balkan wars. She prefers therefore, to abide by the treaties of London and Bucharest which fixed the political status of the Balkans. She has agreed to negotiate directly with the European powers regarding her possible responsibility in connection with the Turkish debt.

In addition to the General Treaty the conference settling up the convention for the regime for the Turkish Straits, to which Russia and Bulgaria adhere, and a separate agreement on the frontiers of Thrace, commercial and annuity accords, and protocols on concessions, minorities and documents by which Belgium and Portugal adhere to certain parts of the treaty.

Imet Pasha, for the Turks signed first, the Allied representatives following. The signing took place in the imposing hall of Lausanne and was carried out with traditional Swiss simplicity. Lausanne made the occasion a holiday.

Stambulski's Vanity Speeches On The Gramophone

(By Dominion News Service) SOFIA July 24.—Though bold and courageous, Stambulski, the Prime Minister of Bulgaria, who was shot dead while trying to escape after the overthrow of his Government, has become obsessed by fear of assassination.

"I will smash Communism with Communism," he used to say. Against Communism was to his hand a weapon, not only against Bolshevism but against every kind of opposition. He developed from demagogue to dictator and then his mind became unbinged.

Tons of documents taken from his residence and those of the late Ministers are being sorted in a large school-room in Sofia under military supervision. I saw shown there a portfolio containing the formal resignation of all his colleagues, with the date-line blank, duly signed by each, for him to use when he might think fit. By "decrees" he is said to have obtained from the Treasury the equivalent of $1,500,000. The Ministers who supported him at the necessary Cabinet meetings held to confirm such "decrees" each had, it is alleged a share of the spoil.

A use is being made of his correspondence from women, some of whom are well known outside Bulgaria. Nothing can palliate his vanity. In his town house, which is in fact with all its furniture, each room sealed and guarded, there are endless photographs of himself, busts of his torso, nude, in marble and bronze, and only one small signed photograph on a side-table of King Boris. His favourite gramophone records were samples of his oratory.

His wife's sister, a peasant woman of 73, still lives there. She is the mother of M. Muravieff, Stambulski's nephew by marriage, who was his last War Minister, and was arrested in this house at dawn on June 10. Sewn into her bodice were notes worth several thousand pounds, and still larger sums have been found in the house.

A widowed orphan of nine, named Ivan, adopted by Stambulski, seems to mourn him more than anyone else. "Mother" she said, "I shall never play with my puppy any more because he has germs on him." "Oh, no!" replied the mother. "There are no germs on your puppy." "Yes, there are," insisted the child. "I saw one hop."

Little of Both.

Jack is perfectly devoted to that blonde. His family thinks it is a case of hypnotism. "Huh! Seems to me more like chemical attraction."

PRESIDENT NONE SO EASY

LONDON, July 24.—The World's Congress of Surgeons now in session here, is to be followed by what is known as the Doctors' Parliament, otherwise the annual meeting of the British Medical Association. Dr. F. G. Banting who has been one of the most outstanding figures at the surgeons' gathering, will also participate in the meeting of Medical men by taking part in a general discussion that is to take place on the subject of diabetes. This discussion will be opened by Sir Thomas Horder the famous specialist, whose decision it may be recalled, caused Mr. Bonar Law to put an end to his political career.

Banting To Discuss Cure Of Diabetes

There is a speculation whether Dr. Banting will deal with assertions which have been made in the United States as well as in England to the effect that insulin reverses rather than completely cures diabetes.

At today's concluding session of the surgeons' congress, Dr. C. C. que paid a tribute to Dr. Banting's genius, and gave conclusions that had been arrived at in 161 cases of diabetes—the majority being severe instances—from the use of insulin which he described as "that epoch-making discovery of Dr. Banting, which may well be compared, in its far-reaching benefits to mankind with the discoveries of Pasteur."

Insulin, he added, attested to the fertility of the genius of a man who is as modest as he is remarkable. All cases of uncomplicated diabetes responded favorably to treatments with insulin. There had been only one death and, that the speaker said, was due to flagrant disregard of diet. Of nine comatose patients treated with insulin, five died and four recovered. All, or nearly all of these cases were evidently hopeless with ordinary treatment.

Coptic Translation In Gospel Of St. John

(By Dominion News Service) LONDON, July 23.—The object of transcendent interest in the exhibition of the British School of Archaeology in Egypt being held at University College is a papyrus manuscript of the Coptic translation of the Gospel according to St. John.

The manuscript was discovered by the School this year at Qau-febr, and is about three parts complete. It was found doubled up and wrapped in linen cloth, and the evidence of the handwriting shows that its date must be approximately 400 A. D., so that it would appear to lie between the two earliest Greek codices, the Vatican and the Sinaitic. The leaves, of which there must originally have been about a hundred, have been straightened out by moistening with damp cotton wool, and many of them are in excellent condition. It is conjectured that it was a church book and buried for safety at the time of the Mohammedan invasion. So far it has not been deciphered, but it is plain that it differs in several ways from the orthodox text and will be authoritative in so far as it will show what was the text of the Gospel as accepted by the early Copts.

The Museum contains many exhibits of interest both to the layman and the expert. An iron dagger, for instance, was found among copper weapons that can be assigned with good probability to about 400 B. C., and is probably the oldest iron weapon yet discovered.

The stone of an ivory carver has been unearthed containing a number of partly completed toilet utensils dating from the Nineteenth Dynasty, and including a number of mineralised bones, mostly from hippopotami, but also two species only known in Pleistocene times, a buffalo and a long-petted crocodile. With them were portions of three human skulls, one of full size and two of pigmy size, of which the provisional date of 50,000 B. C., is assigned. It is believed that they were washed down from a higher plateau into a pool formed in the Nile valley antecedently to the retreat of the Nile. They constitute the earliest human remains as yet found in Egypt, and the fragments are sufficiently large for them to be studied usefully by anthropologists.

Doorn Hotbed Of German Intrigue

THE HAGUE, July 24.—As the state of Germany becomes more chaotic, the intrigue and plotting of German monarchists in Holland around the Hohenzollern camp become ever more active. There are constant arrivals and departures of messengers in one form or another. These latter are often the ex-Kaiser's own relatives, who come to visit him, bringing the latest news.

Besides many visits to the neighboring Dutch aristocracy, which, as already noted, the ex-Kaiser with his bride, Princess Helena, have begun systematically to make, a great amount of propaganda is being made by other methods. There is, in fact, a regular bureau for Hohenzollern propaganda at Haarle, under the auspices of a former German diplomat, Von Kracker, who is in constant attendance on the ex-Kaiser, and does much travelling in Doorn.

Although up to the present it is impossible to report anything definite in the form of intrigue or a plot for the return of the Hohenzollerns to Germany, there is little doubt that the Netherlands is again becoming a hotbed of monarchist intrigue. The House of Doorn is the centre of these intrigues, although it is now generally agreed by those in a position to know that William Hohenzollern has renounced all aspirations to the throne itself, and merely wishes to see the re-establishment of the House of Hohenzollern. There are those who maintain that Princess Helena is an ambitious woman and has rekindled the ex-Kaiser's aspirations, but those in the entourage of the ex-monarch deny this.

There is little doubt that the Hohenzollerns hope sooner or later to profit by the ever-increasing political chaos, a possible change of government, or even the much predicted military dictatorship, and rush in where angels fear to tread, as the Social Democrats would probably not be willing to assume the responsibility of government under such conditions.

Such are the predictions of careful observers of the situation with knowledge of the present Hohenzollern plots and aspirations. I learn, however, from first hand, that the ex-Crown Prince also seriously entertains the idea of being nominated as a candidate for the German presidency with future monarchial aspirations, thus following the example of Napoleon Third.

FIRST RACE FOR MCLURE CUP HELD LAST EVENING

"Barney Google" Takes Lead Early in Race and is Never Once Headed. Sheik Second.

The "Barney Google" captained by Pete Roberts, sailed home a winner last evening in the first of a series of three races for the McLure Cup with the Sheik a close second. Emerald J., which was beaten out by Miss Charlottetown on the last leg of the course came next with the Buddie fifth, Pollywog sixth, Pegnose seventh and Crossman eighth. The H. B. C. and Shamrock also started but withdrew from the race.

Although the weather was ideal last evening, the light north west wind which prevailed throughout the race was anything but a sailing breeze, the boats at times only doing a little better than drifting. The Buddie although one of the big favorites in last evening's race got away to a very poor start, falling away to leeward of the Capetown, which necessitated a tack in order to make the bridge buoy and in coming about on the run she was well in the rear and rounded the buoy fully five minutes after the first boat. No doubt her position would have been well up with the leaders but for this occurrence. The remainder of the boats with the exception of H. B. C., Shamrock and Crossman, were well bunched with "Barney Google" gradually footing it to the front of the fleet; the Sheik

Emerald J. and Miss Charlottetown closely following. At the Rosebank buoy, "Barney" had worked "himself" into a commanding lead and was never once headed, finishing well within the time-limit in 1 hour, 33 minutes, with the Sheik a good second. The remaining boats finished in the positions mentioned above.

The second race for the McLure Cup will be held this evening at 6.30. The officials were: Messrs. James King, Harold Mahar and Harold Barnes.

YACHTLETS

The largest crowd of fans to witness a yacht race this year was on hand last evening and enjoyed it immensely. "Barney Google" was given three rousing cheers as she made her way into the dock after the race.

Day by day, in every way, Miss Charlottetown is getting better and better. Mr. Malcolm Irwin, Capt. of the Committee Boat lost "heavily" on the race last evening.

Thanks awfully for the check "Mac" but cheer up there's another race tonight.

She is planning a canoe trip of more than 600 miles, living between times the free, untrammelled life of her people, learning a little of their language, gathering Indian legends and songs and getting together her own life story.

Born at York Factory, the child of real bush Cree Indians, she was adopted when four years old by Mrs. Riley, a Methodist missionary in the north. The child was given a first class education, with special attention to music, and a lecture tour in England. Miss Nickawa hopes to repeat her triumphs in a two year English-Australian tour.
