"What Is Wrong with The Liberal Party?"

The marvelous luck which has attended the Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King throughout his political career seems to have run out. From every part of the country, except perhaps, Quebec, come reports regarding the disintegration of the Government party. The disaster which has overtaken the Liberals in Saskatchewan is fresh in the public mind and it is said that even Mr. Dunning will be rejected in Regina. Manitoba is reported to be in rebellion and everybody knows how popular the administration is in the major Province of Ontario. The latest bad news for the prime minister is from British Columbia. In a leading editorial, The Vancouver Province, which does not always take the same side in politics, observes:

"What is wrong with the Liberal party in British Columbia? Is it dead or asleep? Or is it entirely bankrupt of men, ideas and ideals? Whatever the trouble, it promises to play but a minor part in the election campaign which is now getting under way. The party appears to be helpless, inept, bewildered, a flock of sheep without a shepherd, and with little hope of getting one."

The Province proceeds to say that, though election day is only a few weeks away, there is in a majority of the fourteen British Columbia ridings not the faintest idea who the Liberal candidates are going to be. Even in those constituencies where the candidates have been chosen, "there are either men who cannot hope to win, or men to whom, for one reason or another, it is useless to look for leadership. There is not in all British Columbia a single Liberal in the running today whom Mr. Mackenzie King could take into his cabinet in the full knowledge that he was choosing an asset, and not a liability." Thus far no one with the slightest possibility of winning has shown any disposition to reach for the portfolio just abandoned by Dr. King. The Province concludes with the remark that if Mr. Bennett wins he will have ample cabinet material from British Columbia from which to choose. If we are to judge by this more or less independent analysis of the political situation on the Pacific Coast, the Government has scarcely a chance of winning any seats in that part of the Dominion.

If you see it once...and Why

If you see the oval trade-mark of Canadian Industries Limited once you will see it a hundred times. For instance, you will find it featured upon cans of New Process Paints, or Duco, or upon the cartons of Windsor and Regal Table Salt. Then again, a truck will pass loaded high with cases of Explosives, each carrying the same distinguishing trade-mark. Or, perhaps you will go out hunting and note that your ammunition boxes have the oval sign upon them.

Nine separate divisions, each manufacturing different products made from the same basic chemicals, are benefitting from pooled resources in the discoveries of chemical research and the technical co-operation of two of the world's largest chemical organizations.

The result is a united chemical industry in Canada, turning out products of higher quality, giving better service and reduced costs to the consumer.
