Plan Restoration Of Noted Vienna Church

VIENNA, Sept. 16 — (CP)—Restoring the shattered beauty of Stefanskirche, which more than any other building breathed the religious spirit of Vienna, will take at least two years, says Bella Buchweiser-Kitchelt.

She is the architect in charge of rebuilding the noted old Church ruined by shells and incendiary bombs loosed by vindictive SS men retreating as the Russians entered the city.

Her father, Bruno Buchweiser, is a construction engineer and the restoration of Stefanskirche is his biggest project. The daughter, who studied here and in England, with church architecture her hobby, directs a staff of designers and fights a daily battle to get material for the reconstruction.

"Our first job is to get a roof over the building and get the windows rebuilt to save what interior there is left before winter," she says. "Perhaps the Americans and British will help us. Perhaps they will haul material. If they do we might have Stefanskirche rebuilt in two years."

UNION JACK—

Among the spectators to the signing was Admiral Sir Bruce Fraser, British Pacific Fleet commander.

Canada Signs Too

By Cmdr. Peter MacRitchie, R. C. N. V. R.

HONG KONG Sept. 16 — (CP Cable)—Canada today became a signatory to the Japanese surrender at Hong Kong, where Canadian soldiers were in the force compelled by the weight of numbers to captitulate to the Japanese on Christmas Day, 1941, after a gallant defence.

Beautiful weather featured the ceremonies.

Platoons of ratings and marines from various ships in the harbor, including the Prince Robert and the Ontario, Canada's newest cruiser, lined the roads leading to Government House, site of the ceremony.

As the Union Jack was hoisted once more in the grounds of the liberated Crown Colony's Government House, Admiral Harcourt said:

"We will now repair to the several tasks of repairing the ravages inflicted on this colony by war so that in conjunction with the Allies we may play a part in re-establishment of peace and prosperity in the Pacific."

Steel Backlogs Are On Increase

CLEVELAND, Sept. 16—(AP) — Steel production backlogs are increasing rapidly and schedules in some lines are almost as extended as before the war ended, the trade publication Steel reported today.

Except for a few gaps in mill schedules caused by cancellations and readjustments, deliveries are increasingly tight, Steel declared.

The estimated national rate of steel production advanced seven points to 80 1-2 per cent of capacity.

SAINT JOHN, N. B., Sept. 16 — (CP) — Mrs. Grace Marshall Best, wife of Rev. H. J. Best, rector of Christ Church parish, died in hospital here Saturday of injuries suffered Wednesday when she fell on the stairway of her home at Woodstock. She was born at Windsor, N.S., a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. D.A. Marshall, was educated at Acadia University and the University of King's College, and was married in 1925. Mrs. C.A. Ryan, Windsor, is a sister.

Food Situation In U. S. Uncertain

WASHINGTON, Sept. 16 — (CP) —Export of food from the United States has dropped to a comparative trickle with the ending of lend-lease and curtailed requirements for the services overseas, and an end to rationing of all commodities except sugar is in sight, War Food Administration officials said today.

But the entire picture may be changed overnight if the United States enters wholeheartedly, as it is expected to do, into the humanitarian task of feeding the hungry peoples of less fortunate countries.

Conversations are being carried on between the W.F.A. and the Office of Price Administration looking toward the possibility of ending meat rationing by Oct. 1.

But neither of these offices knows what may be in store for it in the way of providing for possible heavy exports of foodstuffs abroad under new arrangements with the needy countries and with the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration.

It is possible that if meat rationing is abandoned it may have to be restored to meet new export commitments, as was done in Canada when rationing of meat went back after more than a year's holiday, even though the war was over.

A W.F.A. official said today that sugar will be in short supply possibly all through 1946. Fats and oils are scarce and will remain so until next spring.

Elliott Roosevelt's Financial Dealings Revealed In Probe

WASHINGTON, Sept. 16 —(AP) —Brig-Gen. Elliott Roosevelt's own story of the financial dealings that brought him and some of his backers under Congressional scrutiny was pieced together Saturday for the first time.

The account related that the late President's second son:

1. Borrowed more than $600,000 to finance a Texas radio network.

2. Was referred by his late uncle, Hall Roosevelt, to John Hartford, president of the Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea Company, from whom he borrowed $200,000.

3. Never got any help from his father in arranging the loans beyond assurance to a lender that Elliott was independent in business and a loan would not embarrass the President.

4. Got from the elder Roosevelt a suggestion that he seek settlement advice from Jesse Jones, then Secretary of Commerce.

5. Didn't know until he read it in the newspapers that Mr. Jones had settled the Hartford loan for $4,000.

6. Left members of the House of Representatives Ways and Means Committee, which is making the inquiry, with the impression that he now is "broke."

The Committee completed reading the 200-page statement Saturday. It expects to reach some conclusion his week. The inquiry was undertaken in connection with a $196,000 bad-debt income tax deduction claimed by Mr. Hartford in his 1942 return.

Throughout the account of his business life, young Roosevelt hammered at one point—that the influence of the office of his father, the President, never was used to promote his financial affairs.

LONDON — (CP) — Traders asked that price control of onions be lifted — and had their way. They thought they could hold the price. Then the price of onions in London rose from the controlled maximum of nine cents a pound to 16 and 20 cents. The food ministry promised control would be reimposed if there was profiteering.

300 Canadians To Leave Manila For Home On Tuesday

By WILLIAM STEWART

MANILA, Sept. 16 — (CP Cable) —More than 300 Canadian prisoners liberated from Japanese camps, where they were taken after Hong Kong's fall Christmas Day, 1941, are expected to leave here Tuesday on their homeward journey by sea.

The group excludes 80 hospital cases who will remain under medical care until a Canadian hospital ship arrives in the Philippines to pick them up.

Thirty-two other Canadian prisoners, among the first to reach here from Japanese camps, await air passage to the United States and Canada.

With only a small trickle of Canadians arriving here from the Japanese home islands because of bad flying weather, Tuesday's evacuation party will leave the Canadian section at the reception camp here almost bare.

FUR BEHAVES LIKE VELVET ADDS BEAUTY TO THE BEAST

"This Autumn, the best fur coat you can buy is the fur coat that is best designed", advises Vogue Magazine, "not ncessarily the most expensive."

Acknowledged a foremost fashion reporter, Vogue made these fur forecasts in the August issue:

"The good fur coat must have more than beauty-of-the beast. It must have brains. As much design as the smartest cloth coat.

"Choose your silhouette and you can find it rendered in fur. The furriers have mastered the technique of making pelts behave like cloth—like velvet. There are tunics in fur, peplums, dropped shoulders, bloused tops, pleats under belts. You'll see a fur suit that has no more bulk or rigidity than a silk suit. It's galyak—slim-hipped, with a flare-back jacket.

"And there are the big capes. Graustarkian. And there are the big fur overcoats. Reefers and trench coats. With big cuffs, big pockets, often belted. Tailored with the competent unconcern that a good camel's-hair expects.

"The monochromatic furs are the new personalities of the season. These are all the light-warm moonlight-daylight toned furs. White seal, honey ermine, beige broadtail, frosty mink. These furs have their own palettes, their own techniques of wearing.

"Among the Surprise-Fashions: Skirt for your jersey blouse may be fur. Gilet stuffed in your suit may be marten. Belt for evening black may be ocelot. Cummerbund for bolero—white lamb."

Finally, a word about mink, which most of us don't get, but are interested in anyway. "Every well-bred mink has always faced up-and-down, vertical as a growing tree. Till now. In several of the most imaginative fur work-rooms, mink is being worked on its side. Horizontal mink has extraordinary grace in the continued line that sweeps across shoulders. For the tall, slim and pregnant."

LATE SUMMER EGG PRODUCTION

(Experimental Farm News)

To dispose of the bird that has ceased to lay is good practise in mid-summer of the year, but if the culling of the flock is carried too far it may prove to be expensive, says W.T. Scott, Head Poultryman, Dominion Experimental Station, Harrow, Ont.

To some extent the overhead investment in labour, building and equipment remains the same and when this is not utilized to the utmost, then the margin of profit is proportionately reduced.

The prevailing demand for poultry meat has encouraged heavy culling of the poultry flocks, but the old axiom "You can't eat your pudding and have it" was never more true than it is in the present situation of good prices and a ready demand for fresh eggs.

A falling off in egg yield is to be expected during the hot season but many birds that moult or cease to lay might coninue in profitable production if given a little extra attention during this critical period.

Before the grass on the range becomes tough and fibrous it should be mowed or if the birds are confined to the house or to small yards that have become bare, then some green alfalfa, clover, garden waste, or lawn clippings should be provided. On the range the supply of earth worms and insects may become scarce and it may be advisable to step up the meat scrap or fish meal portion of the mash mixture. If skimmed milk or buttermilk is available it can be used to advantage at this time.

As the season advances the utility of the concentrates that form a valuable part of the mash mixture assumes greater importance in maintaining condition and a moistened crumbly mash fed once a day will improve its palatability and encourage the birds to eat more.

The importance of a constant supply of fresh, cool water to drink should not be overlooked and the house cleaning job should be thorough or an infestation of lice and mites may be expected and the egg production seriously affected.

PERFECT TEETH

The discovery of an 18-year-old Iowa girl with a perfect set of teeth is reported by the American Dental Association's magazine.

She is Lois Price, a waitress of Jefferson, Iowa. The story of Miss Price's perfect teeth is described in an article by Dr. A.G. Barker, D.D.S., who says, "During the years of my dental practice, I have examined the teeth of approximately 25,000 people. Of that vast multitude I have found but one person whose teeth have fulfilled all the necessary specifications."

Dr. Barker lists the following specifications, all of which Miss Price meets:

"A perfect set of teeth must be absolutely free from dental caries (decay). They must be sized, shaped and set true and properly in the dental arch. They must have proper shade, colorings and translucence to blend perfectly with the surrounding gum tissue, the eyes, hair and complexion.

"They must have perfect cusps, grooves, pits fissures and marginal ridges. They must occlude perfectly. The roots must be set sound, dense well-formed process covered by healthy pink gum tissue."

Unexplained, premature relief of Admi.
