It Pays to Advertise Your Foxes in The Black Fox Magizine

The following testimonial letter, which speaks for itself has been received from a well known Rancher in Summerside.

February 7, 1920

The Black Fox Magazine,
1400 Broadway
New York, N. Y.

Gentlemen:—

I have had wonderful returns from the page advertisement I sent you, and I am fairly buried in inquiries from prospective ranchers all over the United States and Canada.

Would appreciate it if you would intimate to enquiriers in your paper that if there is any delay in replying to their letters it is not a matter of intentional laxity, but a physical impossibility to give all the promptness that I would like to; but all enquiries will be answered in the shortest possible space of time.

Yours truly,

D. J. BONNELL
Summerside, P. E. I.

The Black Fox Magazine is the only Magazine in the World published exclusively in the interests of the Fur Farmer—It reaches them all—and now has a very great circulation throughout the United States, Canada, Japan and other countries.

There are hundreds of people today who want to buy high grade "Quality Foxes," but as these buyers are widely scattered your only chance of reaching them is through carrying an advertisement in this Magazine.

Write for advertising rates, and reserve space in advance.

AUCTION SALE

Of Valuable Property in Charlottetown

I am instructed by T. B. Woodman, esq., to sell by public auction on Tuesday, March 2nd commencing at 2 o'clock p. m. the valuable property known as the DeBlois estate, consisting of 12 acres of choice land with dwelling house, barn and outbuildings, situated and fronting on the East by Upper Queen Street, on the north by the Woodman Fox Ranch on the west by Spring Park Road and on the south by Douglas Street. This property is beautifully situated. The land being high and sloping, having a splendid view of the city and only ten minutes walk from the post office is suitable for market gardening building lots or fox ranching, as there is a never-failing stream of water running through the centre of the land. And there is also a small orchard, altogether making this one of the most convenient properties within miles of the city of Charlottetown. Terms for this property will be made known at sale.

Also on the same day and place I will sell 6 choice milk cows, 3 horses, 4 new wood sleighs all mounted and ready for service. Two driving sleighs, one cream separator, Simplex. A lot of harness and other articles, also one choice brood sow. Terms at sale.

The Woman Who Loved and Earned

BY JANE PHELPS

A Modern Story of Home and Business

THE POVERTY PARTY

CHAPTER 63

Betty ushered us into the living room, where all but Marion were assembled. I noticed Robert looked sharply about, but he said nothing.

"We'll wait here until Marion comes," Betty said, after we had greeted all present. I could not avoid seeing, and being pleased, at the flash of pleasure in Gardner Kenyon's eyes when he thanked me for being the reason for being there. But everyone was so hilarious, and looked so ridiculous in their old costumes, that we had no time for any further conversation just then.

"You look lovely, Gerry! Mary said, "Where did you get that dress? I never saw you wear it."

"It was the one she had on the day I got up courage to ask her to marry me," Robert said to my surprise. He had not mentioned it when I put it on.

"No wonder he wanted to marry you!" Jane broke in. "It is lovely on you."

The dress was a soft satiny thing of a faded sort of Alice blue—a color I had worn constantly as a girl, but which I had discarded since my marriage.

Just then Marion came in.

"Better late than never!" she said, as she took off her coat and revealed herself dressed in the costume of Raggedty Ann, a doll made popular by the story in a new juvenile publication.

We all screamed with laughter.

"You clever girl!" Betty said with delight, "My party can't help being a success now." Then she led the way to the kitchen.

The supper was set out upon two bare kitchen tables pushed together. The room was lighted with tallow candels set in wide mouthed bottles so they wouldn't drip. We had paper plates, steel forks, the kitchen kind, and pewter spoons. The center piece was made up of carrots with the green left on, and then grouped about them, potatoes, onions, etc. The place cards were written on brown paper, with a jingle under the names—Mary had done them for Betty.

I found myself between Frank Weed, and Gardner Kenyon. Marion Hovey was on his other side, and then Robert. Mary Ryan was between Carson Murphy and Jack Alder, while Betty and Jane took the other two places.

Each one had to read aloud before supper was served what Mary had written on their place cards, Betty informed us. The jingles were uproariously funny, and every one was apropos. Mary seemed to have a flair for that sort of thing, and had really out-done herself.

I noticed that Gardner Kenyon was immensly interested when he was told that Mary had written the jingles and I had a bit of jealous feeling when I saw him look repeatedly in her direction.

It took us some time to quiet down after reading the nonsensical things, and then Betty said:

"Ragedy Ann, will you assist with the soup?" and Marion rose and with an elaborate courtesy signified her willingness to be waitress.

The potato soup served in paper cups was delicious. Then as an entree' we had pork and beans.

"Not one of the 57 varieties either; these are home grown," Morion said as she passed the wooden platter.

After that came the main course corn beef and cabbage.

How we did eat, and what a good time we had! Robert was more like himself than he had been in weeks and weeks. We had our coffee with the dinner, and Betty proposed a toast to him, the honor guest of the evening, at the same time apologizing to Gardner Kenyon, and telling him she would give another party for him some day.

"I surely will if you get run over by an automobile"

"I have to get nearly killed to be honor guest, do I? I think I perfer to be one of the rabble," he returned. So in good natured rapartee' we finished our dinner and then went into the living room to dance. Betty had a new victrola, and some of the late dance records. She also had planned a suprise for us.

Quit Meat If Your Kidneys Act Badly

TAKE TABLESPOONFUL OF SALTS IF BACK HURTS OR BLADDER BOTHERS

We are a nation of meat eaters and our blood is filled with uric acid, says a well-known authority, who warns us to be constantly on guard against kidney trouble.

The kidneys do their utmost to free the blood of this irritating acid, but become weak from the overwork; they get sluggish; the eliminative tissues clog and thus the waste is retained in the blood to poison the entire system.

When your kidneys ache and feel like lumps of lead, and you have stinging pains in the back or the urine is cloudy, full of sediment, or the bladder is irritable, obliging you to seek relief during the night; when you have severe headaches, nervous and dizzy spells, sleeplessness, acid stomach or rheumatism in bad weather, get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast each morning and in a few days your kidneys will act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate clogged kidneys, to neutralize the acids in urine so it is no longer a source of irritation, thus ending urinary and bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink, and nobody can make a mistake by taking a little occasionally to keep the kidneys clean and active.

Fast-Trotting Mare at Auction

I am instructed by W. S. McKie to sell on Tuesday, March 2nd at Mr. T. B. Woodman's Sale, the fast-trotting mare Ideal McKinney, foaled 1907 Standard and registered United States and Canada, winner of first prize, Charlottetown Exhibition, 1919. Win race record 2.21¼ matinee record, 2.15¼. Sired by that great speed producer, McKinley, 2.11¼, sire of 27 in 2.10, including Sweet Marie, 2.02, Coney 2.02. Leonora, 2.24, the dam of Ideal McKinney, has 8 in list, including Jenny Mac, 2.09, DeBrook, 2.10. Look her breeding over and see if there is one better bred.

Ideal McKinney's foal of 1919, sired by The British Soldier, is a beauty and will be shown day of sale (but is not for sale.)

Ideal McKinney is guaranteed again with foal by The British Soldier, whose colts are large and handsome, showing lots of speed. She is a remarkably handsome mare, well broken, single and double, fearless of autos and trains, kind in and out of harness, a perfect gentleman's driver, with unlimited speed.

Credit till 1st November, approved joint note. Six per cent allowed for cash.

70 YEARS

Seventy years ago when our grandparents were young, they treated their colds and coughs, etc. with what was considered the reliable cough medicine,—

SHARP'S BALSAM

of Horehound and Anise Seed

Since then it has been the family remedy for coughs, colds, croup sore throat, asthma.

It was good for your grandparents and their children—it will do you and your children good.

IN MARCH 1852

Mr. M. Smith of Studholm, N.B., wrote:—"For sixteen years I suffered from Asthma, often being obliged to sit in bed to prevent suffocating. I tried all the usual medicines, but without effect, until I obtained some Sharp's Balsam (which was recommended to me), and after using two bottles, I found the relief so long sought for."

When you need a cough medicine ask for this famous old remedy. Sold at drug and general stores everywhere—25c.

HINTS FOR The Motorist

BY ALBERT L. CLOUGH

LOW TENSION MAGNETO FOR IGNITION

F. M. writes: I have a gallon engine equipped with single-spark ignition from dry-cells only. Would it be possible to install a low tension, belt-driven magneto, using the dry cells to start on and the magneto to run on I cannot use a high-tension magneto as there is no way to time it. What is the voltage of a low-tension magneto and how should it be wired to the coil? Would there be any advantages in using it?

Answer: You could do so. These magnetos are of about 6 volts and one of them would take the place of your dry-cells and prove an economical proposition. You require one that gives a direct current and has a governor on it to keep the voltage constant. We think that some of the auto-wrecking concerns have these machines on hand at low prices. You should use a three-point ignition-switch, wiring the coil to the switch lever, the dry-cells to one switch point and the magneto to the other and grounding one side of both the cells and the magneto.

STIFFENED ENGINE OIL INTERFERES WITH CRANKING

W. H. D. writes: On these cold morning I have much trouble in starting my engine, although I fill the water system with hot water and prime the cylinders. It feels as though the pistons must freeze in the cylinders, it cranks so hard. What can I do to better the situation?

Answer: A warmed garage is the only satisfactory remedy, but the use of a different engine oil that does not stiffen so much at low temperatures, may be of some assistance. You better take this matter up with some reliable oil supply concern. Some motorists find that jacking up one rear wheel, engaging high speed and turning the engine over by the wheel is easier than doing it with the crank. Have you tried priming the cylinders with high-test gasoline or a mixture of gasoline and ether? Keeping the cylinders slightly warm, by running an electric heater under the hood during the night, might be found to be worth while.

WOOD VS. DENATURED ALCOHOL

M. T. asks: Which is more economical to use in the radiator to prevent freezing denatured or wood alcohol?

Answer: With wood alcohol selling at present, at about twice the price of denatured alcohol, the latter is much the more economical to use. Using the same proportion of wood and denatured alcohol in the mixture, the former gives slightly greater protection against freezing, but not nearly enough to make up for the great difference in price in favor of denatured alcohol.

Questions of general interest to motorists wil be answered in this column, space permitting. If an immediate answer is desired, enclose self-addressed, stamped envelop. Address Albert L. Clough, care of our office.

What is the Duty Value?

(Financial Post.)

On various occasions since the present abnormal exchange rates have prevailed the question of the valuation basis upon which duty shall be charged has been brought up. T. B. Macaulay, president of the Sun Life Assurance Company, is the latest exponent of the theory that the basis should be that of the import value in Canadian dollars rather than the value in the market of export. The Department exchange as a factor in the matter.

Mr. Macaulay argues that there is discrimination against Great Britain as compared with the United States. This he works out on the following basis:

$8,300 American goods cost	$10,000
Duty at 35 per cent.	2,905
Total cost.	$12,905
$13,500 English goods cost	$10,000
Duty at 30 per cent.	4,050
Total cost.	$14,050

In this argument, however, he has evidently overlooked that a much greater volume of goods on the basis of Canadian value are secured for the same amount of money from England and that the importer has the advantage in this respect. Surely, it may be well argued, if the importer gets say $13,500 of British goods for $10,000 he should be willing to pay the normal rate of duty and not ask a reduction there also. Opposing Mr. Macaulay is advanced the proposition that it is after all $10,000 worth of goods in the Canadian market which should be used as a basis. This would work out from the standpoint of the importer as folows:

$10,000 worth of goods bought in U. S.	$11,666
Duty at 35 per cent.	3,500
Total cost.	$15,166
$10,000 worth of goods bought in England	$ 7,000
Duty at 30 per cent.	3,000
Total cost.	$10,000

In connection with the controversy it may also be pointed out that if import values had to be figured on the basis of current exchange there would be endless difficulties for the Customs Department and an extensive machine would have to be established to deal with such details; what, for instance, would be the designated time of "import" at which the exchange rate would be taken?

We are inclined to the belief that the present flurry in exchange has not brought up any new problem and that the present system has been well considered by nations much older in international trade than Canada.

(It may be pointed out that in Mr. Macaulay's figures used above the value of the pound sterling is taken at $3.50. This is New York basis The Canadian demand rate is around $3.90.)—Financial Post.

IN MEMORIAM

MR. JOHN D. GILLIS

One more home was grief stricken and a whole community saddened when on February 19th John D. Gillis passed away at his home at St. Peters Bay in his sixty fourth year.

Although the deceased was a great suffered from asthma for twenty years and had of late years developed heart trouble, yet the end came stealing on and those about him did not realize how frail was the thread on which his life was suspended. He was however fortified on his last journey by the rites of the Roman Catholic Church which he received with full consciousness.

The funeral which was largely attended took place on February 24th to St. Peters church of whose choir he was a member for forty five years. A requiem high mass was celebrated by Rev. A. McAulay, P. P. who also conducted the services at the grave. The deceased leaves to mourn besides his wife, four daughters, Regina, Mary, Anna and Blanche—all at home and five sons, Joseph and Peter of Dorchester, Mass., Jerome and Brenden at home and Adolphus in St. Dunstan's University, also one brother and three sisters viz: Duncan Gillis, Mrs. P. McInnis, Mrs. Jas McCormac of St. Peters and Mrs. Jas McAdam of West St. Peters. To these the heart-felt sympathy of the whole community is extended in the loss of a loving husband, a kind father and a devoted brother. All join his church in its ritual prayer Requiescat in Pace.
