St Augustine Church Rustico, P. E. I. 1838-1938

The pink and golden colors of the rising sun were tinting the eastern skies on August third, presaging a fine day and dispelling the anxieties of the good people of Rustico Parish that fine weather would favor them for the grand Centenary Celebration which was about to take place on that day. For many months the people had planned, worked and prayed for its success, sacrificing many days from their various occupations in order to make this event worthy of the best traditions of their pioneer forefathers. The old wooden church of one-hundred years stood as staunchly upon its foundations, as it did when built and the repainting of its interior and exterior added much to the dignity of its appearance. The grounds about the Church were transformed into a picture of beauty, with its flowering lawns, heart-shaped, symbolical of the love with which their hearts were filled in planning the effects of their labours.

At the main entrance to the Church grounds was a massive arch, to permanently commemorate this historical event, surmounted by a Cross while on both its pillars were placed marble slabs on which were chiselled the names of all the parish priests that had served the spiritual wants of the parish from the time of its foundation to the present time.

The Parochial House, Hall, (old Rustico Bank) and Convent were newly painted and added another charm to the general surroundings. The interior decorations of the church were under the direction of the Sisters of St. Augustine's Convent who outdid themselves in the selection of their color schemes and well appointed designs. Mirthful with the gold and white of the Papal colors were the chaste and delicate tints of floral embellishments throughout the body of the church, but not until you had reached the Sanctuary did you fully realize the artistic achievement of their decorative skill.

The great central object of every Catholic Church is its High Altar, upon which is offered that priceless Act of Worship, namely the Holy Sacrifice of the Mass.

Amid this decorative surrounding, the ceremonial grandeur of a Pontifical High Mass was offered up by His Grace Archbishop J. T. McNally of Halifax, at ten o'clock. His Grace was born in Rustico Parish and made the journey to the occasion. His Excellency, Bishop O'Sullivan occupied a Throne in the sanctuary while upwards of fifty Priests were also in attendance. Sermons were preached in both French and English by His Grace Archbishop McNally and His Excellency Bishop O'Sullivan as also by Rev. F. X. Gallant.

Previous to the Sermons already referred to, Rev. J. C. Pire, the well-beloved Parish Priest, and a native son of the Parish, mounted the Pulpit and in an eloquent manner gave a comprehensive review of the history of the Parish, in both French and English. With his characteristic engaging manner he welcomed all these who had come to help to do honour to the occasion.

A male choir under the direction of Mr. Andrew Gallant rendered St. Basil's harmonized Mass most acceptably while Mrs. William J. Paquet of Souris, formerly Angie Peters of Rustico, presided at the organ.

Loud speakers were installed in the Church for the benefits of the large crowds who could not gain admittance.

A very special feature of the day's program also was the celebration of the Diamond Jubilee of Monsignor Jean Chasson who was Parish Priest of Rustico for thirty-five years. Although he retired to the quietude of the Sacred Heart Home at Charlottetown a year ago, yet he braved the trip by motor to meet his beloved former parishioners who in turn were overjoyed to do him honour on this, the sixtieth anniversary of his ordination to the Priesthood. Rev. N. Politie, of Mont Carmel delivered a complimentary address to him in French, while Rev. P. McMahon of the Basilica delivered a similar address in English. The Rev. Jubilarians' reply was characteristic of the man who laboured so faithfully and lovingly among a people who was always dear to his apostolic heart and his clever witticisms were truly indicative of a heart pregnant with a happiness known only to the young and innocent. Loved by so many who have known you so long, our prayers will ascend to heaven, that many more days will be added to gladden your declining years. So ended a celebration that will long be remembered by all those who had the privilege of attending it; so passed into history an event worthy of a people whose generosity made possible the proper observance of a centenary that means much to the glorious traditions of a truly Christian people.

In the quiet calm of their homes, the story of their event will reach down through the ages, to many yet unborn, that they, in turn, may emulate the example of the present generation and fasten into their hearts, this spirit of faith that prompted this manifestation of honor to the Glory of God.

Loath to leave this sacred spot, I retraced my steps homeward, carrying with me a sweet souvenir for memory's reflection.—A Visitor.

FORT AUGUSTUS W. I.

The October meeting was held Oct 11th at the home of Mrs. Leo Dunne with eight members and seven visitors present. Minutes of previous meeting were read and adopted. It was decided that the Institute help to buy new desks for the school, also that they buy cups for their own use. Plans were made for a Masquerade Dance to be held in the School. Mrs. Joseph Curley and Mrs. Damien Lavery were appointed on the Sick Committee and Mrs. Thomas Dalton and Imelda MacLellan were appointed on the programme committee for next month.

Next meeting to be held at the home of Mrs. Jos Curley when
