THE WAR.

The war has reached another critical stage both in the field and in the Spanish capital. At Santiago the American forces are closing in on the doomed city, which must soon surrender at discretion or be carried by assault. At Madrid there is a political crisis caused by the resignation of Premier Sagasta.

What the result of the fall of Santiago will be it is difficult to forecast. It will be a less important matter than the destruction of either Cervera's, or the Manila fleet, but following those disasters it will make an accumulation of defeat which will involve a terrible strain upon any new cabinet that may be formed and upon the Queen Regent as well.

Peace might now be made by the Spanish government were it possible to arrange it upon any such terms as the mere loss of Cuba. But it is probably true as is reported that the American demands will far exceed this concession. War now as in past ages, means woe to the vanquished, for the terms are still to be dictated by the victors. And yet to continue the hopeless struggle will mean only that Spain will be subjected to increasingly intolerable terms.

But it seems improbable that any government at Madrid can, without further losses, consent to cede both the Spanish West India Islands and pay a war indemnity of $240,000,000 besides. Hence we conclude that even after the fall of Santiago the war may go on till other and more decisive blows are struck.

There is some doubt about the announced intention for the American squadron under Commodore Watson to make an attack up the coast cities of Spain. What is more probable is that the American commander will endeavor to intercept and destroy Camara's returning fleet. A special effort will also be made to destroy the considerable number of gunboats and old war vessels which Spain still has in her West India ports and harbors.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

This is nomination day in the first district of Prince, the seat having become vacant by the resignation of Mr Haskett. At the last election the figures stood: Haskett, Conservative 1,123; Gaudet, Liberal, 930; majority for Hackett 193.

The Toronto Globe points out that under the preferential tariff the purchasing power of the people is increased. For instance, under the old tariff a person importing 2,000 yards of cotton costing in Manchester five cents a yard had to pay $100 to the merchant in England and $25 to the customs officer in Canada. Now he pays $118.85, or, in other words, saves enough to buy 102 yards more of cotton and to pay the duty on it.

The new legislature of British Columbia, when complete, will contain 38 members, an increase of five over the old house. It now seems probable that Premier Turner will have a majority of two or three, as some seats for which elections are to be held are conceded to the government. The number of Liberals in the late house was not more than one fourth of the total. The new house will contain a larger number but still a minority of Liberals. The opposition members elected contain a number of Conservatives.

United States battleships are named for states. Thus The Maine, Massachusetts, Iowa, Oregon, Texas, which have been in service and the Kentucky, Alabama, Illinois and Wisconsin, which are approaching completion. Cruisers are named for cities, as the Brooklyn, New York, Atlanta, Baltimore, Boston, Charleston, Marblehead, Minneapolis, &c. Many of the monitors have Indian names, as the Miantonomoh, Monadnock, &c; a few have classical names, as the Ajax and Amphitrite, while others are named for sentimental reasons, as the Puritan and Terror. Gunboats are named for smaller cities, as Bennington, Concord, &c. Torpedo boats are named for persons, as Cushing, Winslow, Porter, &c. Bearing these facts in mind the reader can generally distinguish the class a warship belongs to by her name.

The late collision between the sailing ship Cromartyshire and the steamship Burgoyne—the latter three times the size of the former—shows that for a steamship to strike a sailing ship may be as fatal as to strike upon a rock. It would seem that there can be no security against recurrence of these awful ocean tragedies unless the swift passenger vessels take a more southern course and run clear of the fog-belt, making a few hours longer run in order to secure greater safety. A sailing vessel in a fog, which is usually a time of calm, has no power to get out of the way even when she knows that a steamer is plunging through the darkness directly toward her. A steamer running at full speed must under such circumstances from time to time encounter such ships and collide with them. Louder signals are doubtless necessary than are provided, but the only real safety is in the steamer taking the longer and more southern course.

Uncle Sam, with his flag already flying over Hawaii, the Ladrone Islands and at Cavite in the Phillipines has in a measure caught up to Britain's proud boast. The sun sets no more the United States' world-girdling dominions. Hawaii is 2,100 miles west of San Francisco; the Ladrone Islands are about 2,900 miles from Hawaii and the Phillipines about 1,300 miles from the Ladrones. At the Phillipines a point within about 600 miles of the coast of China is reached. Within three months the chain of possessions has been stretched across the Pacific Ocean.

One Way To Sell Goods.
Is to offer well known articles at less price than regular, and sell higher priced articles by asserting they are worth much more than they really are, and then taking about half. The public are sometimes deceived this way, and pay pretty dear for goods. Our way is all goods marked in plain figures. Less regular discount for cash.
