The Promoter's Wife

BY JANE PHELPH

NEIL TELLS BARBARA HIS STORY

CHAPTER CX.

At Neil's reply a faintness swept over me. "Take his medicine," he had said. "What did he mean? Not that he was guilty of all their charges against him? It could not be that! It could not. But even if it were I was his wife, I loved him, and would stand by him. Then incongruously there came to my mind the inventory I had prepared, and the thought that we could give up the horse quickly. That it might take time to settle such affairs never occurred to me. That we would make restitution at once and end it, was my thought.

"Poor boy," I repeated, smoothing his hair. "Don't feel so badly dear. You have me and Robert, no one can take us from you."

"—really Bab—will you stand by me through this? He clung to me now sobbing outright.

"Why of course I will! Didn't I marry you for better or worse? Why should I run when the 'worse' comes? No, dear heart, I love you. If you have made mistakes I still love you. Even if you have done—wrong. I love you, and always shall. Now try to get some sleep. But first let me telephone Mr. Frederick and ask him to come up here the first thing in the morning. If anyone in the world can and will help us it is he. Then before he comes you must tell me everything about your affairs—your trouble. I can't try to do anything in the dark. Now go to bed, dear."

Without a word he did as I had asked. And soon fell into a restless sleep. But I lay awake all the long night through, trying to pierce the future, planning to make him happy, and to help him rehabilitate himself socially and financially I was not foolish enough to want him to lay down and accept what seemed to be the inevitable. Even had I been I knew his ambitious spirit too well to think for a moment he would be satisfied to give up the struggle. If only I might help to direct him into other, and more elevating channels. He was still so young. Surely his life need not be a failure because of this—mistake.

When he awoke he looked unrested, unrefreshed. His sleep had done him little good. After breakfast we went into the library, taking the Express-Tribune with us. There on the first page was our story—part of it softened perhaps by the kind reporter, but starkly hideous just the same. It even spoke of arrest—as a possible.

"Now tell me," I took the paper from him and laid it on the table. "Please tell me all Neil. It will make no difference in my feeling for you, and perhaps I can help if I know."

It was a long and pitiful story to which I listened to that morning. A story of ambition so inordinate that it caused the loss of all perspective—even as regarded right and wrong. There was one ray of hope in the story and that was the faith Neil had pinned upon the men who had made him their agent—Eastern Agent in disposing of mines when no mines existed, of shares in oil companies that had no oil wells. That he had accepted their word without investigation, and had taken over their claims without looking them up in any way, seemed to me would show faith in his own projects. Little did I realize how very little sympathy men had for anyone who caused them to financial loss.

I tried to cheer him up as best I could, not letting him see how shocked I had been at his story. How hurt in my belief in him. He was very dependent, and all I said seemed to have no effect. He talked of disgracing me and Robert, of taking us back into poverty worse than we ever had known. Of the loss of all he had worked so hard to obtain. In all his regret it was for us, not for himself.

"You are so young Neil, you will show them you can make good even after all this. You can make money again. Rehabilitate yourself in the world. I know it, Neil, you must know it to. You must not allow this to crush you. A way out will be found." Even as I said it my eyes rested upon the word "arrest" in the paper. Suppose they sent him to jail!

"Mr. Frederick, ma'am," the maid announced at that moment.

MANAGEMENT AND MEN REACHED AGREEMENT

AMHERST, June 3.—The Robb Engineering Works, Limited, and the employees of that concern arrived at an amicable agreement concerning hours of work and the rates of pay. A committee of the men held a number of meetings with D. W. Robb, Vice-President and General Manager of the firm, and an agreement was eventually reached. By this step the Robb Engineering Works, Limited, are one of the first concerns in the Dominion of Canada to adopt an eight hour day. The men and management met half ways both sides gave concessions, and without any difficulty a satisfactory solution was presented. A memorandum of the agreement follows:—

Memorandum of agreement made this thirty-first day of May, 1919, between the Robb Engineering Works, Limited, and employees represented by the undersigned committee of the employees.

First—After August 30th, and beginning September 2nd, 1919, forty-eight hours will constitute a week's work. The hours per day to be arranged by mutual agreement of the employees and management of the works.

Second—Rates of pay to be not less than ninety per cent of the rates per hour for the same class of mechanics and laborers, in force at the Dominion Bridge Works, Montreal, at the time of the change to the forty-eight hour week.

Third—Time and half to be paid for all overtime, and double time for Sundays and holidays.

Fourth—Beginning June 1st, and ending August 30th, 1919, fifty-five hours will constitute a week's work. The hours for five days to be as at present, but a half holiday will be given on Saturdays.

Fifth—The hourly rates of pay until August 30th, 1919, for all employees will be increased so that the same pay will be given for a fifty-five hour week as is now given for a fifty-nine hour week.

Sixth—The rates of pay of boiler-makers and helpers in boiler shop will be increased to equal the rates per hour paid to similar classes of mechanics and helpers working in our machine shop. The pay of laborers will be increased in all departments of the works and yard to thirty-five, thirty seven or forty one cents per hour, depending on the ability of the men. All of which is agreed upon as stated above and signed by D. W. Robb, Vice-President and General Manager Robb Engineering Works, Limited, and six of the employees signed the same for the men.

HORSE NOTES.

Riverside starts the racing with three classes on Wednesday, June 12. The popular "Hammond" is reviving the "ring of sports" in that part of the country. We predict a record attendance.

Katie, 218 34, Duholm, 216 12, and Hilda S., 216 12, will be among the starters at Riverside June 18.

Moncton's $1,000 Free-for-all on July 2, is attracting a lot of interest. Adino Guy, 203 14, is among the probable starters. If so, the race will be the biggest sporting event ever staged in the maritime provinces.

The McKinnon Drug Co. are now the owners of Our Colonel, 203 14, having purchased him from Gay and Arbuth. The Colonel is training nicely and will likely start in the Moncton free-for-all.

After Riverside comes Charlotte-town, with three classes, on June 25. The program is 2.17 trot and 2.20 pace, mixed, 2.22 trot and 2.25 pace, mixed, and 2.35 trot and pace. Big fields are expected in all three classes.

STILL THEY COME! Horses are weekly arriving from the United States to Nova Scotia. Herbert Merrill, of Danvers, has sold three 204 trotters to Maritime gentlemen recently.

Roy Miller, 211 14, has been purchased by New Brunswick parties, and will be raced throughout the circuit.

Charlottetown's Exhibition racing program will be an eye-opener when published. It has many new and attractive features.

Sydney and North Sydney has gone wild over horse racing. Returned soldiers are buying fast ones and the coming year promises to be the best ever for racing.

Baby George, formerly owned by Mr. P. S. Brown, City, is very highly thought of in North Sydney. They think he is at least a 2.18 trotter.

Mr. J. S. Wedlock has recently brought from the United States the fast green trotter Don Bailey by Don Frazier.

The Canadian Soldier is being prepared for the 2.35 class. June 25. He appears to be training nicely.

AN INTERESTING POEM

The following splendid poem which appeared in a recent issue of the Family Herald, of Montreal, was written by Mr. J. F. Baker of North Lake, Mr. Baker states that the section of the country where he lives seems to have been a great resort for the natives in the long ago—probably on account of the fish and game in and around the North Lake. He remembers seeing some of the children come to school with strings of beads of different shapes and colors picked up among the flint stones where the aborigines quarried their arrow heads. When the tide is low some of these flint cuttings can yet be seen.

ABEGWEIT

When hardy mariners came o'er,
In early days, from France's shore,
An island in the Gulf was seen—
The seamen named it Isle St. Jean.

In virgin forests well arrayed,
The white man's absence it betrayed,
Its beaches white, its high sand-dunes
Spoke waves and winds of "many moons."

The wild fruits in its glades were good,
Its waters, teemed with living food,
And there in quest of food or foe,
The dark-eyed Micmac drew his bow.

Not warlike came the "pale face" there—
Not o'en to chase the deer or bear,
But toil and sweat from day to day,
To fish, to plant, to cure the bay.

The red man's peace, with tinkling beads,
He gained,—his love by nobler deeds,
And, to his Christian teaching true,
Taught him a grander "Manitou."

Auction Sale of Valuable Property, Charlottetown

Being instructed by the owner I will sell at public auction on Thursday, June 12, 1919, commencing at 12 o'clock noon that valuable three tenement house situated on Longworth Ave., opposite the property of Mr. H. Aitken. This property, Nos. 26, 30 and 34 is beautifully situated in one of the most pleasant parts of the city being the residential section of the town and is never known to be untenanted having all modern fixtures and sewerage connections, a firm foundation of stone and brick, splendid cellar and the whole building is in first class repair. There is also a choice building lot in the rear fronting on Cumberland St. This is a rare opportunity to purchase such an up-to-date property for so little money, and half the purchase money may remain on property if so desired.
