"Be sure that whatever you do you cannot equal the ingenuity of the Ga-go-sa. Yes, I think you will come to know more about them some day, Iroquois. I seem to see pictures in the firelight of a stake, and a building with a tower and a bell that rings, and many of the Ga-go-sa dance around you, and your pain is very great. Aye, you are shrieking like a woman; you—"

He sprang, not at the Seneca but at me. His hands were around my throat before I could move. His eyes blazed into mine. His teeth gnashed at my face. A gout of blood, thick and warm, deluged me. The next thing I remembered was seeing Ta-wan-ne-ars bending over me.

"My brother is whole?" he asked anxiously.

Yes I said, sitting up and rubbing a very sore throat, "except that I shall not be able to swallow for a time."

"You were choked, brother?"

"And the Cahnua?"

"That dog is dead. Do you sleep now, for the dawn grows near and we must be upon our way."

I stirred to wakefulness when the first pink light of morning was in the eastern skies. A pungent whiff of wood smoke filled my nostrils, and I turned over to watch Corlier frying bacon and maize cakes.

After eating, I fell into my place between the Dutchman and Ta-wan-ne-ars. In five minutes the forest had closed around us. The glade of last night's adventure was shut off as completely as if it existed in another world. There remained no more than the bare groove of the trail and the encompassing walls of underbrush and overhanging the roof of tree boughs.

That afternoon we forded the Mohawk to the southern side some distance above Ga-ne-ga-ha-ga (near Danube, N. Y.), the Upper Mohawk castle. And now for the first time we begin to meet other travelers. Several Mohawk families shifted their abodes on account of poor crop conditions in their old villages; a party of Oneidas of the Turtle clan journeying on a visit of condolence to the Mohawk Turtles, one of whose roy-an-ehs had just died; a band of Mohawk hunters returning from the spring hunt. By these latter Ta-wan-ne-ars sent word to So-a-wa-ah, the senior roy-an-eh of the Mohawk Wolf clan, charged with the warding of the Eastern Door, of our encounter with the Cahnua and its result.

The evening of the third day we camped in the Oneida country at the base of a hill, which the trail encircled and which for that reason was called Nun-da-da-sis ("Around the Hill," present site of Utica, N. Y.). Here we had a stroke of what turned out afterward to be rare good luck. While we were making camp a group of five canoes of the birch-bark which is used by other nations than the Iroquois approached from up-stream, and their occupants camped beside us.

These Indians were Messesagues, whose country lay between the two great inland seas, the Erie and Huron lakes. They were on their way to Fort Orange or Albany to trade their winter catch of furs, which lay baled in the canoes.

They told Ta-wan-ne-ars they had had trouble with the Sieur de Tonty, commander of the French trading post of Le De Troit (Detroit Mich.), which had been established in their country; and that in consequence De Tonty had decided to shift their trade to the English, Ta-wan-ne-ars encouraged them in this design and described to them the high quality and quantity of the goods they might expect to get in exchange for their furs at Albany.

On the fourth day the trail abandoned the headwaters of the Mohawk, fast shallowing in depth, and headed westward across the mile-wide divide of land which separates the waters flowing into the Mohawk and Hudson rivers from those flowing into Lake Ontario and the St. Lawrence river of Canada.

I had my first view of the long houses of the Iroquois at the Oneida Castle, Ga-no-a-lo-hale "A head on a pole". They were impressive buildings, sixty, eighty, one hundred and twenty feet in length and from twelve to fifteen or twenty feet wide. We went as a matter of course to the lodgings of the Oneida Wolves, of whom Ta-wan-ne-ars, according to the Iroquois code, was a blood brother; and they placed at our disposal a guest chamber, the first next to the entrance of the Ga-no-sote (Bark house), together with all the firewood and food which we required and an aged squaw to cook and wait upon us.

From the Oneida Castle the Great Trail bore westward past De-a-sa-da-ya-ah (Deep Springs), which lay on the boundaries of the Onondagas, whose beautiful valley, with its mirror lake, was the fairest country I have ever seen unless it be the matchless home of the Senecas. The trail led us through the three villages of the tribe, which were scattered along the banks of the Onondaga river northward of the lake.

It was a rich country which we traversed, a country fit to be the home of a race of warriors. The people we met, in the villages where we sometimes slept and ate or along the shaded slot of the trail, were pleasant and courteous. They eyed me curiously, but there was never any unseemly disregard of manners. Even the children were polite and hospitable.

We slept that night in the Cayuga village, and in the morning forded the foot of the lake and pursued the trail westward again until it emerged upon the north bank of the Seneca river, which we followed to the village of Ga-nun-da-gwa (site of Canandaigua, N. Y.), on the lake of that name.

"Now we are in the country of the Senecas, brother," said Ta-wan-ne-ars, when we started the next morning. "You have seen the homes of

Hands equally lovely!

Now wives who do all their own work have hands lovely as women with maids... thanks to Lux

Almost anywhere they may meet...

The woman of wealth—with maids at her call—the young wife who is homemaker—cook—dishwasher, too. Notice this amazing TRUE fact—

You can't tell, from their hands, which is which!

Everywhere wives are achieving this triumph... doing all the many tasks of a home... yet keeping their HANDS so EXQUISITE, so white—you'd think they never touched soap and water!

Women discovered the secret themselves. Washing fine things in Lux, they noticed how nice their hands looked afterward. Then began using Lux for dishes. Then for cleaning. In fact, whenever their hands touched soap and water!

Almost AT ONCE their hands showed the difference... became lovelier... SMOOTH, WHITE, like a GIRL'S!

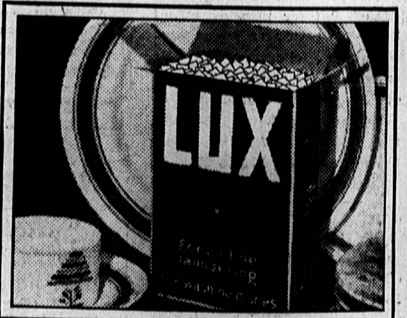

So wonderful is Lux for the hands that beauty experts—with all their experience—say, "We can't distinguish between the hands of a woman with maids and the hands of the housewife who uses Lux."

Why is Lux so fine for the hands? The reason is this. Many soaps contain harmful alkali that dries up the oils of the skin, the oils that nature placed there to keep the skin smooth and white.

Lux does not dry these delicate oils. Those sparkling Lux suds in your dishpan are soothing and very bland.

Why not try Lux for YOUR dishes—it costs less than 1¢ a day!

Nostrils tainted by Catarrh Quickly Spread disease

If your nose is unclean, or even tainted with the germs that cause colds and catarrh, you are likely to spread diseased conditions to other members of your family.

Most colds start in the nose. Stop them in the nose and you avoid lots of trouble later on. The most effective disinfectant is the healing vapor of Catarrhazone.

The medicated vapors of Catarrhazone spread a thin film of healing oils over the entire breathing apparatus; it cleans away nasty discharges, stops spitting and sneezing, goes away with headache, coughing, throat trouble and catarrh. To prevent winter ills, to stop sniffles, to heal and strengthen the nose and throat, use Catarrhazone. Complete outfit you can secure in any drug store for one dollar. Smaller size 50c.

IN THE SURROGATE COURT

21st George V., A. D., 1931

In Re Estate of Ida Gay Vaughan late of Charlottetown in Queen's County in the said Province deceased Intestate.

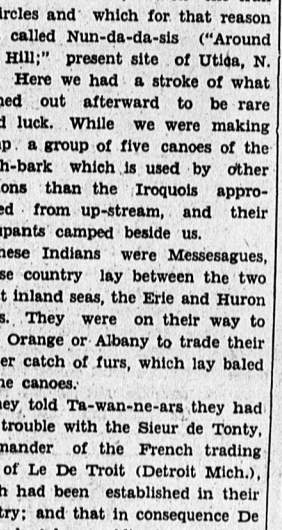

By the Honourable Harold Leonard Palmer, Surrogate Judge of Probate, &c., &c.

To the Sheriff of Queen's County or any Constable of literate person within said County.

GREETING:

Whereas upon reading the petition on file of Jennie Gladys Vaughan of Charlottetown aforesaid, Single Woman, the Administratrix of the above named estate praying that a citation may be issued for the purpose hereinafter set forth: You are therefore hereby required to cite all persons interested in the said estate to be and appear before me at a Surrogate Court to be held in the Court House in Charlottetown, in Queen's County, in the said Province, on Wednesday the first day of April next, coming at the hour of eleven o'clock forenoon of the same day to show cause if any they can why the Accounts of the said Estate should not be passed and the Estate closed as prayed for in said petition and on motion of M. Alban Farmer, Esq., Proctor for said petitioner. And I do order that a true copy hereof be forthwith published in some newspaper published in Charlottetown aforesaid, once in each week for at least four consecutive weeks from the date hereof and that a true copy hereof be forthwith posted in the following respectively, namely, in the hall of the Court House in Charlottetown aforesaid, at or near the City Weigh Scales and at or near the Bank of Nova Scotia both in Charlottetown aforesaid. And I do further order that a true copy hereof be forthwith served on the Attorney-General of this Province, so that all persons interested in the said Estate as aforesaid may have due notice thereof.

Given under my hand and the Seal of the said Court this 28th day of February, A. D., 1931 and in the 21st year of His Majesty's reign. (Sgd.) H. L. PALMER, Surrogate.

FORDED THE FOOT OF THE LAKE

all the other tribes, save Only the Tuscaroras, who live to the south of the Oneidas; but none of them is so far as the valley of Gen-nis-he-yo (literally, "The Beautiful Valley") where my brethren dwell."

From the little village that was huddled on the near bank of the river Ta-wan-ne-ars sent off that night a messenger to carry on word of our coming. So two days later, when we had passed the Gen-nis-he-yo and the belt of forest beyond to the Senecas' chief town, De-o-nun-da-ga-a, it was to find ourselves expected guests. Warriors and hunters, women and children, along the trail, hailed Ta-wan-ne-ars and his friends, and at the gate of the palisade which fortified the village—for it was the principal stronghold of the Western Door—stood De-ne-ho-ga-eh himself, the Guardian of the Door, with his roy-an-ehs and ha-sen-no-wa-weh (literally, "An Elevated name"), or chiefs around him.

Tired and Rundown

"Before taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I was always feeling tired, weak and rundown and I worried over things. Since taking the Compound that feeling has left me. I can work now and not get so tired. I do my wash and take care of my house and three children. I eat and sleep better. In fact, I feel better in every way. I will answer letters from interested women at any time."—Mrs. H. C. Fletcher, 127 Smith St., Peterboro, Ontario.
