Evidently you have made the mistake that this woman made. You have lost a good husband in trying to make a successful man. And you have made another mistake in telling him of his faults. That is a fatal blunder for any wife to make. Men get plenty of hard knocks in the outside world without having a hammer-wielder at home, and so the wise woman is she who takes her husband "as is," as the shipping manifests say, and lets it go at that.

But a shrew is no other woman in the case I think you have a fine chance of winning your husband back if you will quit being a female Simon Legree and not drive him too hard and if you will resign the role of being a critic on the hearth. Why not try jollying him for a change?

DOROTHY DIX.

Dear Dorothy Dix—What program would you advise a young couple to follow in order to provide against being dependent in their old age?

G. W. Q.

Answer: The way to save, like the way to reform, is just to do it and the trouble with saving, like the trouble with reforming, is that most people intend to do it, but they keep putting it off until tomorrow, and tomorrow never comes.

There are a million ways of saving so as to safeguard your old age. There are saving banks and old-age insurance and thrift clubs and buying real estate and whatnot. Any bank or trust company will furnish you with a budget and show you how to invest money safely so that it will grow into a competence for your old age.

In the end it all comes down to a matter of character, whether you have the self-control and determination to do without something you want and put the money that the indulgence would cost into the bank instead of spending it on pleasure. If you can do this and have the strength to put some money aside every week for the rainy day that is sure to come to us all, you won't be found out without an umbrella when you are old and feeble.

A very wise man said to me once that the first year after a young couple were married told the tale of what they would be when they were middle-aged. If at the end of the first year they had saved up even so much as $100, they would go along to prosperity, but if at the end of the first year they had spent more than they made and were in debt or even if they had not saved anything, they would be poor to the end of the chapter and in their old age would be dependent on their children or be public charity.

We all know how interest eats us up. We know how it grows and grows like Jack's beanstalk until it reaches the sky, but we fail to realize that the interest on the money we save accumulates in the same ratio and that the money we lend out draws the same interest as the money we borrow.

Virtually all young people expect to save something. They don't intend to spend everything they make as they go along and have nothing to show as a result of their life work but a pile of receipted bills, but they never save because they keep deferring it until they don't want a new car or a new radio or to take a trip or to go on a whoopee party or something and that time never comes. We always want something.

So if you want to save, begin now. This very day. And keep it up. Systematic saving is the only sure way of keeping the wolf from the door.

DOROTHY DIX.

Dear Miss Dix—My adopted daughter, who has been brought up with every comfort and luxury and tenderness, has fallen in love with a man who in all the five months that he has been engaged to her has never given her a single thing. Not even a box of candy. When he gave her the unavoidable engagement ring, which was little and cheap, he enlarged upon the foolishness of such an extravagance. He spends the week-ends at our house, but never brings her even a book. He will not even take her to a movie or an ice-cream parlor and the poor girl is so nervous when it is suggested that her sweetheart will have to spend a cent and she gets pale, trembles and cries. And this man has plenty of money. What do you think of such a man?

Answer: I think he is a poor bet for a husband. A stingy man makes the meanest husband on earth and any girl is an idiot who trusts her happiness in his hands. He will begrudge her the very food she eats and makes her life a torment to her.

HARVEST FESTIVAL—St. John's Church, St. Eleanors, held their annual Harvest Festival on Sunday. Dr. White conducted the service and preached from the text: "He reserveth unto us the appointed weeks of the harvest." Jeremiah, Chap. 5, verse 24. His sermon was very inspiring and encouraging to the congregation, the speaker pointing out that God has never failed to give to his people the fruits of their labors. The choir rendered appropriate hymns for the occasion. The church was beautifully decorated with flowers and at the foot of the chancel steps were laid the harvest offerings of grain, fruit and vegetables. A large congregation attended the service. A box of flowers from the church were given to the Prince County Hospital. S.

SPECIAL MISSION OPENS

A special two weeks mission by Rev. Father Connolly and Rev. Father Enwright of the Redemptorist Fathers of Charlottetown was officially opened at High Mass in St. Paul's Church, Summerside, at 10 o'clock on Sunday by Rev. Father Connolly. Rev. J. J. McDonald sang High Mass, the choir rendering very effectively Landry's Mass; Mr. J. J. Morris and Mr. J. P. McInnis taking the solo parts. Rev. Father Connolly opened the Mission by giving an outline of the program for the week. The Gospel for the day from St. Matthew, Chap. 9 was in keeping with the Mission. Rev. Father Connolly's sermon based on the text: "Behold I bring you good tidings of great joy," St. Luke, Chap. 2 verse 10, was a very inspiring one. He earnestly asked the congregation to at-

PUT HIM OFF HIS PIPE

Indigestion and Acidity

A few months ago, I had an attack of indigestion, heartburn and acidity, and had no appetite for meals, especially breakfast. I am a pipe smoker, and for several days I felt so ill I could not even look at my pipe. I decided to try Kruschen Salts. A few days afterwards I found that the heartburn and acidity had gone, and for the last five or six weeks I have been in my usual good health. I can now enjoy my pipe-smoking, and in fact feel about 10 years younger.—R. P.

When your digestive juices fail to flow freely your food lies in the system and ferments, thus causing the distress of indigestion. The "little daily dose" of Kruschen first stimulates the flow of the gastric juices, and then ensures complete, regular and unflinching elimination of all waste matter every day.
