New Nasturtium Has 40 Petals

NEW YORK, March 30. — (CP.) — A new type of nasturtium has been placed on view, and a reception was held for its creator, David Burpee of Philadelphia, at the Gardens of the Nations in Rockefeller Centre.

The new flower, which has been patented, is known as Burpee's Super Double Nasturtium, and in the United States patent office is called trapeolium majus Burpeei, plant No. 141.

The flower has between 40 and 50 petals and resembles a camellia in shape, whereas the ordinary nasturtium has only five petals, and the double hybrid has 10. Two colors have been developed to date, brilliant scarlet and golden. It was the result of 11 months' work, during which 40,000 flowers were hybridized and three generations of seeds were produced.

Mr. Burpee said work began in June, 1935, and before it was through it was necessary to hire 100 Japanese women in California to pollinate the flowers and to use airplanes to rush seeds to South America and back to get continuous summer growing conditions.

The 40,000 crosses were made between the golden gleam double nasturtium, introduced from Mexico in 1932, and all the colors of the single nasturtium. One problem that arose was how to prevent bees from mixing up the pollen and interfering with the hybridization work. This was solved when it was found that bees would not touch those flowers whose petals were clipped off, because they had lost their beauty.

The object of the experiment was to prepare for market the result of this hybridizing and not to produce any startling new flower. The super-double type was an accident, Mr. Burpee explained, and was just as much a surprise to him as to the horticulturists.

New York Cutting Out Noise Nuisance

NEW YORK, March 30. — (A.P.) — New York City's voluntary anti-noise campaign, now six months old, tonight headed toward a status of legal compulsion.

Alderman Murray Stand disclosed he will introduce a comprehensive noise abatement ordinance to the board of aldermen Tuesday, to give police effective enforcement powers in curbing automobile horns, radios, steam whistles, vehicle loading noises, peddlers' cries, loud speakers, and "noises caused by animals," among many others.

Jack of all Trades

Some people say that there is no such thing as a genius today but let me tell you there is a man living at Peaks Station who is in every sense of the word. It will take me some time to tell you about him.

First and foremost he is a carpenter of great experience and is known widely throughout Kings County. If any one around needs a clock or watch repaired they take it to him because he is an excellent clock doctor and he certainly knows that business.

When there is any mechanical work to be done such as repairing cars, engines etc. they know where to go if they want a good job done.

Many blacksmiths can well envy him although he never had the training they had.

We could well assure you that if you saw his jewellery, blacksmith or carpenter shop it would surprise you.

It is very seldom that you go to his place that you do not see five or six people in the yard waiting for Charles Lamb who has the determination and ability of this man.

The idle moments he puts in are few in number for he is always working at something — P.

Husbands After Gambling Wives

BOSTON, March 30. — (CP.) — Answering an appeal by husbands to do something about gambling wives, Police Captain Thomas Connelly conducted a second raid today and arrested five women.

Recently Captain Connelly made a raid in the Mattapan section and arrested 32 men. Immediately, he said, several men in police division 19 asked him to do something to keep poker playing wives from dissipating family funds.

Early today Connelly led a squad of officers into the home of Mrs. Sadie Goldberg. They arrested Mrs. Goldberg and five other women. The captain said he found 15 decks of cards, a supply of poker chips and a small amount of cash. The husbands provided bail for the wives.

Premier Aberhart No Believer In Divorce

CALGARY, March 30. — (CP.) — Premier Aberhart told his Prophetic Bible Institute listeners Sunday he was "old fashioned" — he did not "believe in divorce."

The Alberta Social Credit Leader declared he was not "a divorced man." "I've only been married once and I'm still living happily with my wife," he said. "I have wondered how she put up with me so long — 38 years — but she hasn't divorced me yet. I guess it must be because of her goodness and kindness to me."

The assertions were made in reply to a letter from Saskatchewan which asked Mr. Aberhart to "kindly verify" the statement that you are "a divorced man."

Red Lights Make People Irritable

HOLLYWOOD, Calif., March 30. — (CP.) — A girl should have a dim blue light to help a bashful electrician at a big film studio.

A red lamp shade in the living room is likely to drive a man to the divorce court.

"Those things are just practical psychology," Kolb explained. "We've been using them for years to help stimulate the mood a star must have to play a certain type of scene. They never fail."

He said red light makes people irritable, even quarrelsome; a lot of white light tends to cause gaudy; green shades bring peace and calm; so do brown, blue or purple are effective in generating affection.

The blue tinge, typical of romantic ideas, is what makes moonlight so popular with lovers, Kolb said.

A very jolly time was spent throughout the evening.

Spring seems to have its inevitable effects on all living creatures since the beginning of Time. Some effects being more pronounced earlier date this year than usual, such as the appearance of the may-flowers, butterflies, pussy-willows, mat-hookings, and house cleaning etc. An incident happened a few days ago which might confirm the belief that Spring has its influences — a young man out riding his horse for the first time this spring, had occasion to tie his horse at the village shop but to his astonishment when the owner came to look for his steed he was far in advance, leaving his owner to pick up and carry home his milk cans, wraps, wagon seat etc. but most startling or at least surprising was to find his runaway horse tied securely and patiently standing on the top of the hill, waiting for his master whom he seemed to consider "lagging" as is sometimes the case in spring.

Women Pilots Ready Should War Come

BOSTON, March 30. — (CP.) — One of the outstanding women aviators of the United States, Mrs. Theodore "Teddy" Kenyon, revealed today she and several other women were preparing for war-time service, should they ever be needed.

Mrs. Kenyon, who holds several flight records and has been a regular contestant in the national air races, said the women pilots did not expect to do any actual fighting. Rather, she added, they would pilot new planes wherever needed, transport wounded soldiers, carry dispatches and relieve male commercial pilots for fighting service.

The aviatrix said groups of women now were forming flying clubs, each having about 20 members. Each group, she said, was contributing to a common fund to purchase training planes.
