TRIO WILL BE SENTENCED THIS MORNING

George and Elmer Gallant and George Perry Found Guilty Of Retaining Stolen Goods.

At the close of the case against George Gallant, Harry and Elmer Gallant, the jury returned a verdict of "guilty" on the third count, that of retaining in their possession stolen goods knowing them to be stolen. The case occupied the Supreme Court all day.

Bernard Riley, West Cape, was the first witness called. He had been a lobster packer for 17 years. He remembered Oct. 19th at four o'clock in the morning, George Gallant sold him 10 boxes of lobsters; he paid $20 a case for the half pounds and $12 for quarter pounds. The last witness drove the car and George Gallant carried the boxes to the door. He did not remember seeing anyone else. He paid George Gallant in O'Leary after the bank was open, paid cash. It was quite the usual thing to buy canned lobsters at night.

Redmond Riley, Cape Wolfe, fisherman, said that the prisoners had come to his place about 9:30 and his wife had given them something to eat. Witness and his wife came to Summerside with the party at 4 o'clock the next afternoon.

Chief of Police Kinch gave evidence that after being notified of the loss of the lobsters he had gone to West Cape and later to Charlottetown where he had located the lobsters, said to have been stolen from Paturel's factory. Peter White corroborated Chief of Police Kinch's evidence.

John MacGregor, Burton Lot 7, said he bought cans and returned them full. He had bought 50 boxes of cans with enamel tops and bottoms. Disposed of 38 to Paturel. He had never packed before in enamel cans. Witness said he could tell if lobsters were a regular pack.

Hon. Thane A. Campbell, K. C., addressed the jury for the Crown and C. D. MacCallum and J. Watson MacNaught for the defence. His Lordship addressed the jury and they retired returning with the above verdict.

This morning at 11 o'clock the prisoners will receive sentence.

Old Timer Wants Airplane Flight

(Canadian Press)
CENTRE GORE, N. S., Dec. 3.—The airplane is about the only modern invention that appeals to 86-year-old George DeWolfe.

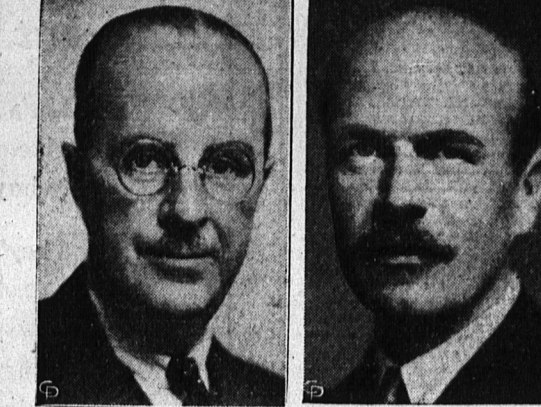

On his birthday, he told friends he was all for the old days with their quilling, bees, candy pulls and other old-fashioned customs. But he added he'd like to take a plane ride if he ever got the chance.

MAIL BAG ROBBERY

OLDHAM, England.—A mailbag and contents valued at $1,000 was stolen from a van in front of a post office here while the driver had gone in the building for a few minutes.

NAINI TAL, India.—Two little Pahara girls playing hide-and-seek were suffocated when the heavy lid of a box in which they had hidden fell and they were unable to extricate themselves.

powers through foreign advisers and experts. This foreign control has never been flatly rejected by Rome as a possible means of procedure.

The five previous proposals are as follows:

1. The Italian plan, based on the division of Ethiopia into Amharic and bordering regions, the former of the Ogaden frontier, an outlet to the sea through Zella, British Somaliland, would be assured Ethiopia in return. This plan was rejected the day of its presentation by Italy.

2. The Eden plan, put forward by Anthony Eden, British League of Nations Minister June 24 last, based on the ceding to Italy of a corridor between Eritrea and Italian Somaliland and correction of the Ogaden frontier. An outlet to the sea through Zella, British Somaliland, would be assured Ethiopia in return. This plan was rejected the day of its presentation by Italy.

3. The British proposal, presented during the three-power conversations last Aug. 18, by which the League of Nations would name an Anglo-French-Italian delegation for the economic and administrative reorganization of Ethiopia. Italy would be given a privileged part in this task, territorial advantages, mining, agricultural and railway concessions, the right to install technical and military advisers in Ethiopia, control of the communications systems and establishment of frontier police. Italy's rejected this plan.

4. The five-power League of Nations committee plan, based on the British proposal. This provided for a vast system of aid to Ethiopia, assured not only by Italy, Great Britain and France but other powers to be delegated by the League. Great Britain and France would facilitate territorial adjustments between Ethiopia and Italy and would be ready to recognize Italy's special rights in its economic development. Italy rejected this proposal Sept. 26 last.

5. The fifth proposal is that of Maurice Drummond Peterson, British Foreign Office Ethiopian expert and Rene Doynel De St. Quentin French Ethiopian expert. It has never been published, but it is reliably understood to have been rejected.

(By Guardian's Special Wire) CAIRO, Egypt, Dec. 3.—An authoritative religious source disclosed today that the supreme head of the Coptic Christian Church, at the request of Emperor Haile Selassie, probably will begin conversations with the Italian Minister here in December in an attempt to end the Italo-Ethiopian war.

The Emperor, it was stated, sought the intervention of Patriarch Johannes, whose authority extends over Ethiopia, proposing that "the most favorable moment to begin conversations will be between Dec. 10 and Dec. 15."

Canada's Stand On Sanctions Clear Claim

(C. P. By Guardian's Special Wire) OTTAWA, Dec. 3.—Hon. Ernest Lapointe, Minister of Justice and acting Prime Minister, declared tonight the government's attitude toward sanctions against Italy had been plainly set forth in the statement issued Sunday and there was nothing further to be said.

In that statement Mr. Lapointe repeated largely the remarks of Prime Minister King Oct. 29 when the latter announced the government's adherence to the sanctions proposed by the League of Nations. Mr. Lapointe then stated that Dr. W. H. Riddell, Canadian Permanent Advisory officer at the League of Nations, was speaking for himself as a member of the committee of 18 when he advocated the extension of sanctions to include oil, coal and iron.

MUSICAL COMEDY GREAT SUCCESS

A "Bold Front" Well Received By Large Audience.

A "Bold Front", the musical comedy which has been under preparation for some time, and for which an expectant audience filled to capacity St. Paul's Hall, was presented last night. This show had been widely advertised and much was anticipated. A pleased and satisfied audience clearly indicated that it had lived up to all expectations.

Opening and closing with a delightful chorus, there was not a dull or dragged moment in a deal he is trying to put over on a Mr. Hamilton Webster, who with his wife are also vacationing at the Summerside Beach Club. Meanwhile the real son of the millionaire, a shy and shrinking youth arrives, only to assume a clerk to avoid attention. His identity is revealed by an accident after he has time to fall in love with Lois Parker, the hostess at the Club House. The venture-some Joe wins the hand of his lady-love and places in her father's business. The colored porter, Sam and a spinster by name, Priscilla Bodkins, cause many amusing scenes. This gay story is enlivened by snappy up-to-date songs and choruses.

The part of Joe Reynolds (the bold front) was taken by Ted Ahern, who is new to Summerside audiences. His part was well taken and his rich voice thrilled the hearts of many in the audience.

The part of Sally Pembroke, who plays opposite Joe, was taken by Hamilton Sheppard, a favorite with Summerside audiences and fitted naturally into her part of a pretty, vivacious girl of about twenty.

Lois Parker, one of the most difficult feminine roles, was played by Yvonne Arsenault. She sang a lovely voice and sang and played her part with her usual ability.

Roberts, the shy and shrinking youth was played by Vernon Clow, who was on the stage for the first time. This was a particularly difficult part and he carried it off well.

The part of the colored porter Sam was taken by Earle Campbell, who is probably the most versatile actor in town. He received many laughs with his droll jokes and much applause for his singing.

The role of Priscilla Bodkins, the elderly spinster was enacted by Miriam Cameron, one of our most talented actresses. She characterized the spinster type particularly well and sang the solo part of the "Scandal Song."

Hamilton Webster, a sour domineering man was personated by George Clow, a veteran of the stage who is known to many audiences and is a finished actor. He directed the dramatic part of this presentation.

Andrea Dalton, as Mrs. Webster, was exceptionally good, and has much dramatic talent.

The part of Jefferson Pembroke, the father of Sally was performed by Edward Arsenault. Eddy is a real find. Never having appeared before he played his part with the finesse of a professional actor.

Mrs. Pembroke is played by Guelida Blacquire, another well known actress and singer of ability. She carried off her part very skillfully.

The chorus, who were a number of summer guests, was composed of Hilda Brotherhood, Marie Gaudet, Leonore McNeill, Mrs. Chas. Cahill, Jean McKeeney, Mary McCullough, Pat McLellan, Guy Holton, Edgar Holton, Joe Gaudet, Freddie Gaudet, and Holland.

On Friday evening, November 22nd, upwards of one hundred and twenty-five relatives and friends of Mr. and Mrs. J. Elton Cairns gathered at their home in Lower Freetown to congratulate them on the twenty-fifth anniversary of their wedding.

Mr. George Jardine called the gathering to order and called on Mr. and Mrs. Cairns, during which Mrs. Roy Burns presented them with a purse on behalf of those present. A beautiful wedding cake was presented to her parents by their daughter, Mrs. Fred Moase. A humorous letter, accompanied by a substantial cheque, from the Marshall family, Fort William, was then read.

The remainder of the evening was very pleasantly spent in social intercourse, games and music. After a bounteous lunch was served by the ladies, the people went home wishing Mr. and Mrs. Cairns many years of wedded bliss.—S.
