On Sunday, April 10th, there passed away at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Hennigar, Montague, Mr. Simon Peters at the age of 74 years. The late Mr. Peters had been ailing during the past year, and although all possible was done, the inevitable and final came to bring to a close a life full of varied interests and experiences. Well known throughout the Island, the late Mr. Peters will long be remembered for his kindness and generosity to all who knew him. His unflinching pleasant disposition was a treasure to all, and his passage was marked with renewed hope and faith in those who listened to his friendly philosophy of life. The funeral mass was said on Wednesday morning at St. Mary's Church, Montague, by the pastor, Rev. Owen Kiggins. Besides his sorrowing wife, he leaves to mourn four daughters, Violet and Gladys in Antigonish, Lucy (Mrs. James Larkin) and Margaret (Mrs. William Hennigar) in Montague, and two sons, Clem in Moncton, and Archie in Antigonish, all of whom arrived in Montague on Sunday. One son, John, predeceased him several years ago. Pallbearers were Messrs. Levi Power, George Stewart, Harry Johnston, George McKimmen, Alphonse Larkin, and Pearson Hamilton. Interment took place in the church cemetery.

During the past week extensive work has been done on fixing the drains in Montague. Mr. Tom Clair, the recently appointed town policeman, has taken charge of this work and is doing a splendid job. He has put into condition several approaches to intersections which have been troublesome every year, and has even built up these approaches with side rock to prevent side fall-in. It is also noticed that he has cleared away the sand deposit at the approach to the bridge, which in itself is worthy of notice, since it has been troublesome to motorists and pedestrians for some time. Such good work deserves praise, and Mr. Clair is putting forth every effort to get the streets in good condition.

Daylight Saving Wins No Converts In United States

NEW YORK, April 18—(AP)—The city-dominated states in the north-eastern sector of the United States will cling to the daylight saving system this year but they have not won converts elsewhere in the nation.

In fact, the number of Americans enjoying the extra hour of sunshine in the evening will be smaller in 1949, since populous California does not plan to use "fast time" as it did in 1948.

Nearly all communities using daylight saving will go on the new time at 2 a.m. April 24. It will extend five months until Sept. 25.

A nation-wide survey indicates at least one-third of the nation's 145,000,000 citizens will live under the new time for the late spring and summer.

It continues to have its great appeal for golfers, gardeners, commuters, and other lovers of the great outdoors. Farmers oppose it just as much as ever; they insist the cows recognize only standard time.

State legislatures, frequently dominated by rural members, traditionally display hostility to daylight saving. This year was no exception.

In Tennessee, the 1949 legislature banned the system completely, thus slamming the door in the face of Nashville, Chattanooga and other cities which had used it. Nashville, in a city-wide referendum, had voted for the system last year but the legislative action voided the ballot verdict.

For Standard Time

The Indiana legislature passed a law this year making standard time official for the entire state. But Indiana plans to get around it by using "fast time" through "recommendations" of city councils and mayors.

In Ohio, a bill for state-wide daylight saving was killed. This year probably will split on the question again this year, with Cleveland and nearby cities in the north-eastern section adopting it and others staying on eastern standard.

California used daylight saving most of last year because of a drastic power shortage. It doesn't expect to repeat in 1949. Elsewhere on the Pacific coast, there is sentiment for the new time in large cities. Seattle plans to use it, but will not move its clocks ahead until June.

All or most communities will observe daylight saving in these states: Maine, Vermont, New Hampshire, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Connecticut, New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Delaware and Maryland.

Some communities probably will use it in these states: Ohio, Michigan, Indiana, Illinois, Missouri, Virginia, West Virginia, North Dakota, Washington and Oregon.

PONTYFRID, Monmouthshire—(CP)—A factory to be erected here, will have a sun-bathing terrace for its 1,500 workers.

was unanimously elected to the office of general manager of club equipment. Plans were laid for the holding of a lottery in aid of the team and the ball diamond will be put in shape in the very near future.

SAYS POULTRYMAN KNOWS WAR CURSE

VANCOUVER, April 18—(CP)—Robert St. John, former Associated Press foreign correspondent, believes the poultry farmer has a cure for war.

After six years of poultry-raising in New Hampshire, he said in an address here, he doesn't care to repeat the experience, but he learned one valuable fact.

"I've had enough of chickens," he said. "Though, sometimes I think I would rather work with chickens than humans.

"Chickens, except on rare occasions, do not kill their own kind. And a good poultry farmer knows how to handle these rare occasions. He treats the cannibal hen as a diseased hen — and the
