though he was second in the poll to a Republican, who gained one seat from the Government. The second Government candidate was very low in the poll.

DUBLIN, IRISH FREE STATE, Feb. 22. — (Canadian Press Cable) — Presuming support from two Independent Laborites, Eamonn de Valera's Fianna Fail (Republican Party) and its allies tonight had the necessary 77 seats to give them a majority in the Dail Eireann as tabulation of results in the 145 ridings which voted in last Tuesday's Free State election came to an end.

The standing of parties was: Fianna Fail—Sixty-eight Labor—Seven. Independent Labor—Two. Government—Fifty-three. Independent and Farmers—Fifteen.

Without the support of either Labor or Independent Labor the Fianna Fail's 68 seats exactly balanced those of President William T. Cosgrave's Government party and its Independent and farmer supporters.

Seven seats are still missing tonight in Sligo-Leitrim where voting was postponed until March 3 owing to the fatal shooting of a government candidate and a detective a week ago Sunday.

Nominations were held today in Sligo-Leitrim where five Government candidates, five Fianna Fail one Labor and Independent were named to contest the seven seats Mrs. May Reynolds, widow of ths slain candidate, was among those nominated and became the second woman to enter the election.

The position of the two Labor groups was still somewhat uncertain. The two Independent Laborites in the last Dail voted with the Government, but De Valera's party tonight appeared to be counting on their support. The regular Labor group, so far numbering seven, was counted on to support the Republicans, but had already announced its condition that the Fianna Fail adopt its plan for the relief of unemployment. The situation was still further complicated by the defeat of the Labor leader, Thomas J. O'Connell.

It seemed clear, however, there would be no formal alliance between Labor and the Republicans and that the Laborites would take the position of holding the whip hand in the next house "Change the Government, but control its successor," was one of the party's election slogans.

President Cosgrave tonight remained silent on the result, except to say he and his party were willing to support any government to the extent that its policy should be in the interest of the country. Mr. De Valera, on the other hand, confident of victory, heralded the result as the beginning of "a new era of peace and prosperity for Ireland." He then went to bed with a cold which his doctor said was not serious. He was expected to be up and working within a day or two.

LATER
 DUBLIN Irish Free State, Feb. 22.—(A.P.)—Eamonn De Valera's Fianna Fail and its Labor allies had won 77 seats in the new Dail as against 68 for the Government party of President William T. Cosgrave and its supporters in complete returns tonight from last week's election, except for seven districts in which the voting was postponed.

the Dresdner Bank, and several smaller institutions—the Deutsche Gesellschaft, the Barmer Bankverein and the Commerz Und Privat Bank.

By writing off losses and transferring some of them to the Reich on condition that they will be restored later from earnings, as well as by investing some of the Reichsbank surplus profits in private banks, the German Government believes the way has been paved for restoration of confidence, which, in turn is expected to end hoarding by the people.

Finance Minister Hermann Dietrich explained that the main feature of the reorganization is the fusion of the Danat with the Dresdner under the name Dresdner Bank. Ordinary shares of both banks will be folded up at a proportion of ten to three. Preference shares of the Dresdner will be folded up at 3 to 2 and later will be transferred into ordinary shares.

The capital of both banks, which amounted to 554,000,000 marks (about $139,000,000) will be reduced to 200,000,000 marks (about $7,000,000).

In the fusion of the Barmer Bankverein with the Commerz Und Privat Bank, which will result in a capital of 80,000,000 marks (approximately $19,000,000) with 30,000,000 marks reserve (approximately $7,000,000) the Reich will invest directly or indirectly about 112,000,000 marks (about $27,000,000).

 (Special to the Guardian)
 LONDON, Feb. 22.—Including the booths of many Canadian exhibitors nearly thirty acres of floor space are occupied by the British Industries Fair which opened simultaneously today at Olympia and the White City London and Castle Bromwich in Birmingham.

Abundant interest of continental buyers was in evidence and the Danish Government in particular has authorized a considerable debate on the state railways for travelers to the fair. It is the 18th of the series and the largest of them all with more than 2,000 exhibitors.

The Duke of York and Rt. Hon. Walter Runciman, President of the Board of Trade speak at a banquet at the Mansion House tonight in connection with the fair, while the Prince of Wales will visit the Birmingham section on Thursday.

body of troops were entrenched there. This spokesman declared that the Japanese attackers got ahead of their schedule in their assault Monday on Kiangwan, a position the high command did not intend to attack too strongly in order that casualties on both sides might be kept down.

CHINESE VERSION
 The Chinese version of the action around Kiangwan was considerably different. It gave the Chinese command credit for having executed a smart movement. The Chinese contended that when the Japanese turned their flank they quickly withdrew, allowing the attackers to walk into a pocket in the village of Mo Hang Chen, two miles northwest of Kiangwan, where machine gunners and riflemen swept them with bullets.

CASUALTIES
 Estimates of casualties, which have been very low since the action started, began to get a little closer to what seemed to be the truth. The Japanese admitted 300 in Monday's fighting. Chinese hospitals and foreign soldiers guarding the boundaries of the French concession reported that 344 wounded Chinese had passed through the gates. This did not include scores of wounded Chinese civilians.

The Japanese intelligence division reported to headquarters that the 88th Chinese division, a unit in the forces of former President Chang Kai-Shek, had joined the 19th Chinese route army and was operating under German instructions. It was impossible to check this report with Chinese officials. The Chinese, in turn, averred that the Japanese had landed two new divisions of troops, a report that brought forth from the Japanese headquarters spokesman the remark that he wished it was true.

FEAR FOR CIVILIANS
 Shortly before midnight the Chinese moved a battery of three-inch howitzers and three heavy trench mortars into the compound of the North Station, almost within sight of the Japanese lines. These pieces provided part of the battle spectacle for the sightseers of Shanghai's rooftops. All night long the howitzers dumped explosives into the northern section of Hongkew. At frequent intervals the darkness was broken by brilliant shellbursts.

Monday's fighting was started after the Chinese command learned that Japanese units had been with drawn from Hongkew to assist the storm troops that were making little headway into the Kiangwan sector. There was brief artillery preparation on for this assault. One wave of infantry was sent over, but that was not enough to dispose of the numerous Japanese machine gun nests. The attackers fell back and the heavy guns to their rear laid down a harassing fire. This kept up for several hours. Then, after dark the Chinese artillery men really let loose. Their bombardment covered a wide front. Numerous shells burst in the vicinity of north Szechuen road. Others fell in Chinese areas and it was feared that many civilians had been killed, as numerous residents had refused to evacuate. The shelling was so heavy that ambulances could not get to the wounded. In the neighborhood of the Japanese barracks a dozen fires started. Fire headquarters itself was hit by a shell and several firemen were wounded. Another projectile struck the isolation hospital.

TOKYO ANXIOUS
 TOKYO, Feb. 22.—(A.P.)—Bad news from Shanghai gave rise tonight to considerable anxiety in authoritative civilian circles. Press dispatches told of stubborn resistance by the Chinese army and said the Japanese offensive was meeting with reverses.

Despite these dispatches, government officials declared there was no plan at present to send additional reinforcements. The war office, remaining outwardly calm, said there was no confirmation of the reported reverses and pointed out that the Japanese advance would necessarily be slow as the Shanghai terrain is cut by numerous canals which make quick progress difficult.

Government officials interpreted the news from Shanghai as indicating the advance of Lieutenant General Kenkichi Uyeda was proceeding "according to schedule." It was said it probably would take a week or ten days to drive the Chinese back from the twelve mile zone around Shanghai. Government officials, taking it for granted that the zones eventually would be cleared, asserted the Japanese army would occupy it definitively until the situation warranted withdrawal or until a temporary neutral area was decided

No cabinet meeting was held today but War Minister Araki conferred with high military officials at the War Office. A war office spokesman said General Chiang Kai-Shek's National Guardsmen were not assisting the 19th Chinese route army in the defense of Shanghai. The 19th, the spokesman declared, was practically isolated, and a breach had occurred between the Nanking Government and the Chinese faction. The 19th is from Canton.

U. S. COMPLAINS AGAIN
 United States officials complained to the Chinese authorities that Chinese troops had fired across Soochow creek on members of the 31st U. S. infantry who were working on their barbed wire defenses. No casualties were suffered by the 31st. At Chinese headquarters it was said that their soldiers had mistaken the Americans, who were wearing blue dress uniforms, for Japanese bluejackets. The Japanese high command added propaganda to its munitions of war during the fighting Monday evening. Aviators "bombed" Chapel with thousands of pamphlets which were supposed to have been issued by the headquarters of the Kuomintang, the Chinese National Party. The pamphlets said that the 19th route army, in opposing the Japanese at Shanghai, was opposing the wishes of the National Government, that they were traitorous to their country, and that they had precipitated the Shanghai crisis by attacking the Japanese without warning. The pamphlets were dropped over Chapel, but the wind carried great numbers of them over the International Settlement.

Dr. T. K. Jen, chief of the Chinese red cross hospital, issued a statement that several of his red cross trucks transporting wounded from the battlefield had been deliberately attacked by Japanese aeroplanes.

Mr. P. LeBlanc was called and gave evidence that he heard something like an explosion and saw smoke coming out of the window.

Mr. Millman in returning his verdict said that the firemen had done everything they could to save Mr. Hynes, and that the action of Alister Bernard, in going into the room, which was a mass of flames to drag out the deceased, was to be highly commended. It was nothing short of heroic. Two of the witnesses were badly burned about the face.

 BENTLEY, England, Feb. 22 — Boys all over the world joined with veteran army campaigners today in congratulating Lord Robert Baden-Powell founder of the Boy Scout movement on his 75th birthday. He was confined to his home with a cold but made light of it.

Mother—Robert, you haven't studied your history lesson.
 Bobby—Aw, mother, why not let bygones be bygones.

FAIL TO BREAK LINE
 SHANGHAI, Feb. 23. (Tuesday) (A.P.)—Unsuccessful in every attempt to break the Chinese line at Kiangwan, the Japanese determined today to starve out the force of defenders still surviving in the ruins of the battered village. With tanks, armored cars, infantry, aeroplanes and field artillery, they attempted to drive a wedge in the Chinese line north of the village that they might be in position to stop any attempt to get food or ammunition to the Chinese stationed in the Kiangwan machine gun nests.

merse, represented the Attorney General. The jury viewed the remains at Mr. Roy Phillips Undertaking Parlors before going to the court room.

Dr. Gillis, of Kensington, was the first witness called and gave evidence that he had viewed the body of Justin Hynes shortly after he had been taken to the undertaking rooms. The surface of his skin was severely burned, and the shock would be sufficient to cause death within five minutes was his opinion. His face and hands were completely burned.

Dr. MacBride, of Kensington, saw the body soon after they had taken him out of the room. He had severe burns on his face, hands, feet and in fact all over his body. Death was due to burns and shock.

Jack Burns, who occupied the shoe store down stairs, testified that he saw Hynes between 9 and 10 o'clock in William Cameron's tailor shop. Hynes asked Cameron to put on a fire for him. Witness saw Cameron make on the fire from old auto tires and paper. In the afternoon he was down in his own shop but heard no noise of an explosion. The first he knew of the fire was when he heard someone running upstairs. Someone in the shop said they smelled smoke. He ran up-
